Not Yet Ratified By Gov'ts

Times News Services

LONDON — United States and Soviet negotiators have agreed on a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons, but their governments must still approve it, qualified diplomats said Tuesday night.

The sources said the breakthrough in the disarmament stalemate was achieved last month following a series of secret exchanges in New York and Geneva.

Details of the agreement were not disclosed, but informants said the Russians made at least one important change in their position by accepting the idea of West German participation in nuclear planning arrangements set up by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last month.

Leaders of NATO nations established a seven-nation high command that will manage the political and strategic use of the nuclear weapons available to the alliance. The plan gives West Germany and smaller Allied powers a share in the planning, but leaves the United States the right to veto any proposal by its partners for use of U.S. nuclear weapons.

The arrangement is designed to satisfy West German demands for a say in nuclear policy and also to meet Russian opposition to giving Bonn control of nuclear weapons, which the Soviet Union maintained was the chief bar to agreements on a non-proliferation treaty.

MESSAGE FROM LBJ

Meanwhile, Llewellyn Thompson, the new U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, arrived in Moscow today and said he was carrying a message from President Johnson to the Russian government. He refused to disclose the contents.

Johnson in his state of the union message Tuesday night called for better ties with the Kremlin, and on his arrival Thompson expressed optimism that U.S.-Soviet relations would improve.

CUTTING a birthday cake to open day-long celebrations of the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald is Kingston Mayor Robert Fray. Prime Minister Pearson and other dignitaries were on hand for the festivities.

Pearson Leads Nation In Sir John Tribute

KINGSTON (CP)—A Liberal prime minister led Canadians in a tribute today to Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister and the man who earned the title Father of Confederation.

Prime Minister Pearson shared in celebrations marking the 152nd birthday anniversary of Sir John, a Conservative who was prime minister from 1867 to 1873 and from 1878 to 1891.

Kingston, where Sir John first entered politics as an alderman, and which he continued to represent in Parliament, is the focal point of the birthday observance.

Mr. Pearson joined in a day-long program of speeches, band music, civic dinners, choir singing and midnight dancing in costumes popular 100 years ago.

A giant birthday cake was cut this morning in Market Square, followed by a memorial service at Royal Military College and a trumpet fanfare by the Royal Canadian School of Signals Band.

School children have the afternoon off, but businesses remained open. A display on the life of Sir John was open all day at the Macdonald public school.

Crippled Weathership Heads Home

The crippled weathership Stonetown was battling heavy seas today in an emergency dash to Victoria.

The department of transport vessel was forced to vacate Station 'Papa' 900 miles west of here after a fault developed in her power steering mechanism.

Gale-force winds and heavy swells prevented repairs being carried out on the spot.

TOO DANGEROUS

"In present weather conditions it would have been too dangerous."

Ship's master, Capt. F. Gordon Nesbit radioed he was having trouble with the steering early this morning.

Although the ship can be steered by hand, it would have been virtually impossible to keep the former navy frigate on station under present conditions.

This is only the second time Station Papa has been vacated since it was first manned on a round-the-clock basis in 1950.

On the last occasion, three years ago, the Stonetown went to the aid of a stricken freighter.

With Stonetown's sister ship St. Catharines, undergoing refit at Victoria Machinery Depot, it will be impossible to man the station before next Tuesday. She will leave Sunday if ready.

NEW HOLIDAY COMING UP

EDMONTON (CP) — State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday a new national holiday will be established during Canada's centennial year.

It would not be Jan. 11, Sir John A. Macdonald's birthday, because that would be too close to Christmas and New Year's, Miss LaMarsh said. Tribute had already been paid to Canada's first prime minister by declaring Jan. 11 "Sir John A. Macdonald Day."

Miss LaMarsh said the new holiday would have both historical and centennial significance, but gave no further details.

Italy Foils Blast Plot

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Police found a hidden cache of explosives here Tuesday and took six pro-Peking Italian Communists in custody on suspicion of a plot to dynamite the U.S. consulate and library in Milan and the U.S. military base at Vicenza.

Police said one of those arrested was a woman, Professor Maria Arena Regis.

BARE BOTTOM BELT MAY BE ABOLISHED

LONDON (AP)—Abolitiion of spanking was urged today in a massive study of England's primary schools commissioned by the government.

British public and private elementary school teachers may use corporal punishment. In England, the cane—a flexible wooden switch—usually is used across the hand, although in extreme caes teachers apply it across a pupil's bare bottom.

Evidence presented to the committee indicated that 80 to 90 per cent of England's teachers want to keep the right to cane a child, mostly as a final sanction after other methods of punishment fail. But psychologists told the committee that they feel the cane has more disadvantages than advantages.

CP-MACDONALD PACT BLASTED

Hot Words Before the Good

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—A concession made by Sir John A. Macdonald to the CPR in 1880 came under debate Tuesday in the Commons.

To entice the railway into building a line to link the country from coast to coast, Canada's first prime minister agreed to exempt it from municipal taxes.

The tax exemption, now a statute of Parliament and a part of the constitutions of Saskatchewan and Alberta, came under scathing attack from David Lewis (NDP — York South) as the Commons continued to make progress on a government bill outlining a new national transportation policy.

The House takes a one-day break from the transport bill today to debate the first stage of a bill to insure the deposits of banks and qualifying trusts and loan companies.

And since today is Sir John A. Macdonald Day, there were plenty of tributes to the Conservative who headed the first Canadian government.

Tuesday, however, Macdonald's commitment to the CPR 97 years ago was questioned not only by Mr. Lewis but by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Good or bad, the government was bound by the Macdonald-CPR pact, said Mr. Pickersgill.

"With all the wisdom I now have, if I had been Sir John Macdonald, I do not believe I would have made this particular type of contract with the Canadian Pacific," said Mr. Pickersgill.

Mr. Lewis, the NDP's deputy leader, said times have changed since Macdonald's government signed the pact with the CPR.

"If the exemption was ever justified—and my study of the matter has never persuaded me that even originally it was justified—it certainly has not been so for many years," the labor lawyer said.

The matter cropped up as both Conservative and NDP members sought assurances

MORE LOSS, COST, AGONY

Johnson Asks For Tax Hike To Fight War

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has asked Congress to increase taxes by 6 cents on each tax dollar to help pay for the Vietnam war in which he says the United States faces "more cost, more loss, and more agony".

Congressional reaction to a tax boost is cool. Republicans and many majority Democrats said a domestic budget cut, not a tax boost, is the way to finance the costly Vietnam war.

The president proposed the tax increase in his State of the Union address Tuesday night, a 70-minute speech to the Congress in which he outlined his legislative program for the forthcoming year. It was his fourth State of the Union address and his most sombre.

The president also proposed higher social security benefits, which will mean higher costs to both the employer and employee, but he didn't say how much the costs would be.

He called for reorganization of some of the machinery to run his Great Society program, renewed his appeal for more bridge-building to the Communist nations of Europe and asserted once more that "we will stand firm in Vietnam."

PROPOSES SURCHARGE

Johnson proposed a six-percent surcharge on corporate and most personal income taxes to last two years or longer unless war costs drop.

Married couples with two children and incomes up to $5,000 yearly would be exempt, as would single persons with incomes up to $1,900 and childless couples earning up to $2,000.

The president indicated he wants the increase effective next July 1. He said the plan will raise about $4,500,000,000 in its first year.

His proposal would cost an extra six cents for each dollar paid in income taxes. As an example, a person who now pays $1,000 a year would pay $60 more.

The president told the Congress in his speech, televised live in the U.S. and Canada:

"We shall continue on a sensible course of fiscal and budgetary policy that will keep our economy growing without new inflationary strains; finance the needs of our men in Vietnam and the progress of our people at home; support a significant improvement in our export surplus, and press forward toward easier credit and lower interest rates."

PLANS VIETNAM REPORT

He said he plans to send a detailed report to Congress on the situation in Southeast Asia, particularly in Vietnam.

"I wish I could report to you that the conflict is almost over. This I cannot do. We face more cost, more loss, and more agony. For the end is not yet. I cannot promise you that it will come this year—or come next year."

The president said he has no intention of scuttling his domestic programs. But he conceded there have been "setbacks and mistakes" that must be corrected. Not once did he use his usual label of Great Society.

He won his greatest applause with a proposal to raise social security payments by 20 per cent, $4,100,000,000 in the year beginning July 1, 1968. This would come three months before the presidential election in which he is expected to be a candidate.

WANTS BENEFITS RAISED

Johnson proposed that minimum benefits be raised to $70 from $44 a month and that anyone with 25 years of coverage get at least $100 monthly. He suggested raising the limit on income retired workers can

Mao's Backers Call on Army

Times News Services

HONG KONG—The central committee of the Chinese Communist party called today on the army and the people to beat back the forces opposing Mao Tse-tung in China's titantic power struggle.

The appeal was broadcast by the New China News Agency and was addressed particularly to pro-Mao elements in Shanghai.

It came shortly after reports from China said Mao's followers were wresting control of the city of 10 million persons from his opponents in a move hinting at mass arrests.

First appearances were that Mao had won a major victory in his struggle with the forces led by President Liu Shao-Chi and Communist party secretary general Teng Hsiao-Ping, if he had indeed won support of the central committee.

The message was signed by the central committee, the state council, the military commission of the central committee and the cultural revolution group under the central committee.

UNDER CONTROL

The message was sent to the pro-Mao elements in Shanghai who apparently have been able to keep the city under their control despite paralyzing strikes and demonstrations by thousands of workers opposing Mao and his Red Guards.

It told the Maoists they had "seen through and exposed in time the schemes" of reactionary elements and "have launched forceful counter-offensives."

If it was not a great victory for Mao it was at least a great propaganda coup.

Only this week informed sources in London said Mao had lost the support of many members of the central committee.

But the tide appeared to turn Sunday when Premier Chou En-lai entered the dispute publicly for the first time and appealed for moderation.

Big posters went up in Peking streets today urging demonstrating workers to go back to their jobs.

But other new posters demanded "drag out capitalist elements in the army," and singled out vice-premier and former Marshal Ho Lung as a main target.

Today's posters said "Ho Lung is a time bomb at the side of Mao Tse-tung," and "Ho Lung must be removed from the party central committee."

Banks Take It on Chin At Committee Hearing

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Bankers in collusion? Exercising "fantastic power"?

They were so accused Tuesday in formal testimony before a committee of the House of Commons, by a non-conforming financial analyst on the one hand and by a young promoter on the other.

R. G. D. Lafferty of Montreal said interlocking directorates extend the influence of banks into big trust companies, into securities trading and into the biggest underwriting organizations in Canada.

Business initiative is stifled, competition goes by the board and the press holds back news unfavorable to the banking "cartel" for fear of reprisals, he said.

Terry Howes of Toronto, self-styled entrepreneur-general who freely admitted a background of curious business enterprises, said bankers are too powerful.

They ignored shareholders, published meaningless financial statements and ran their institutions with "nowhere near" the efficiency of American banks.

It was bop-the-banks day for the committee, which was beginning another wave of hearings on government proposals for revision of the Bank Act.

Mr. Lafferty and Mr. Howes were witnesses No. 2 and 3. They followed the morning appearance of Joseph Pope, Toronto investment dealer who said the banks should offer better services for foreign exchange trading.

They would get the necessary experience only if Toronto or Montreal were opened up as an international money market. This in turn depended on banishing an "absurd" and "wretched" Bank Act restriction against establishment of branches of foreign banks in Canada.

The committee met Mr. Howes first with amusement and then with some seriousness. The portly witness accused Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) of smearing him in bringing up his business interests.

He acknowledged that the U.S. post office had issued fraud orders in 1965 and 1966 against his use of the mails to distribute a so-called "air force diet".

He had indeed advertised bargain prices for lease of square-mile tracts of wildlife domain in Ontario, he said.

NO BEEF ON ARTICLE

He had no complaint against an article in a national magazine that described other "money - coining enterprises".

"Okay," he said at last "I'm a thief, a crook, a no-goodnick from away back.

"Now that we're through with this, can we discuss my proposals?"

The 17 proposals were to change the Bank Act to improve corporate disclosure by the banks, change voting and proxy practices and accord the federal authority various devices of control.

He outlined the history of a private war with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, in which he holds one share. He had waged proxy fights to find out whether shareholders have

IT'S A WORLD OF PINK IN A CURRY KIND OF A WAY

DARLINGTON, England (AP)—Miss X is 19, pretty, an efficient secretary, and everything she touched turned pink.

She touched her white blouse and left pink patches. There was pink on her desk, pink on her writing pad and pink on the letters she typed for the boss.

Her fiance's collar turned pink, too.

For two days Miss X put up with her pink problem at the Chrysler-Cummings works in this north England town. Then she went to see Dr. Valentine Crowley, the factory physician.

After laboratory tests, Dr. Crowley came up with the answer Tuesday. It was all caused by a curry dinner.

REACTED TO CURRY

"No wonder the poor girl was so upset," the doctor said.

"A spice called turmeric in the curry was the trouble. Her system reacted against it and sent something like a pink dye through her pores.

"I have never known a case like it. The girl didn't look pink, quite normal in fact, but everything she touched went that color."

Turmeric is used extensively as a dye in Asia, where it is cultivated.

Miss X's trouble is clearing up, and on Dr. Crowley's advice she is going to skip curry in future.

"We don't want to give the girl's name because she is so embarrassed," a factory spokesman said. "She can't help blushing."

BORN OF A DISPUTE

Never a Dull Moment Controlling Pollution

The pollution of British Columbia's air and water is a major threat facing the province in the century ahead. The Times assigned reporter Gordon Ritchie to examine the many aspects of the problem in British Columbia and elsewhere. Here is his eighth report.

By GORDON RITCHIE

Born of a dispute, British Columbia's Pollution Control Board has been a centre of heated controversy ever since.

The board is the government agency charged with regulating water pollution.

In 1956 the lower mainland communities of Vancouver and Richmond became embroiled in a dispute over the pollution of the North Arm of the Fraser River which separates the over 400,00 residents of these areas.

To help settle the quarrel the Pollution-control Act was passed establishing a pollution control board with broad regulatory powers, on paper, over water pollution in the lower mainland area.

Mixed Success

The board's intervention in the dispute met with the mixed success that has characterized most of its ventures.

Vancouver, North and West Vancouver, Burnaby, Coquitlam and Port Moody banded together that year in the Greater Vancouver Sewerage District. They are in the midst of an ambitious $44 million sewage treatment plan centering on the $10 million Iona Island treatment plant located ironically in the North Arm. But Richmond waited until last year before joining. And New Westminster is still holding out.

The board was successful enough, however, to attract the favorable attention of municipalities in the Columbia-Kootenay-Okanagan watershed. At their request the board had its jurisdiction expanded to take in that area.

As pollution and awareness of pollution increased so did the board's jurisdiction, It was enlarged in 1963 to include the Fraser River basin and the southern two-thirds of Vancouver Island as far north at Campbell River. (Buttle Lake was added by a special cabinet order last June.)

The board now has responsibility for a large portion of the area of the province — "and 90 per cent of the problems," says the board's executive engineer Charles Keenan.

Main Weapon

Mr. Keenan represents the pollution control agency on the seven-man board made up of government officials from the deputy-ministerial and directorial levels of agriculture, mines, health, forest services, recreation and resources departments.

Chairman of the board is the deputy minister of resources, Arthur Paget.

The board is the main weapon in the battle against water pollution in the province. (The federal deartment of fisheries also has regulatory powers under the federal Fisheries Act but contents itself with a primarily advisory role.)

It has no control over air pollution although Resources Minister Ray Williston says it may be given that power.

At present the board more than has its hands full trying to control all waste discharges of over 5,000 gallons a day into any of the lakes, streams and tidal waters it oversees.

Even the board doesn't know exactly how many outfalls this covers. Mr. Keenan estimates the number at "slightly over 1,000."

The board can oblige any or all of these to meet the earn without losing social security benefits.

The increase would not affect the $135,000,000,000 spending budget he said he will submit for the year beginning next July 1. With receipts estimated at $126,900,000,000, this would leave a deficit of $8,100,000,000.

On foreign affairs the president said: "We are in the midst of a great transition from narrow nationalism to international partnership; from the harsh spirit of the cold war to the hopeful spirit of common humanity on a troubled and threatened planet."

Despite evidence that the more conservative new Congress may prove recalcitrant he renewed requests for passage of an East-West trade bill and other steps and forecast fresh efforts to avoid another round in the nuclear arms race with the Soviet Union.

This hinges on establishment of an anti-missile defence system—rockets capable of downing attacking nuclear - tipped rockets — which the president said has begun around Moscow.

NATO must be kept together but recast to anticipate more East-West accord, the president said. Regional self-help would be the American target from Latin America to Africa, the Middle East and Asia.

He waved anew an olive branch to China on the familiar theme of containment without isolation, expressing the hope China in due course would feel it desirable to join the world community.

Among his domestic proposals was one to provide federal grants up to 90 per cent to states to fight crime. Wiretapping, electronic bugging and snooping would be made illegal except for federally - authorized use in national security, the president said.

Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, said Johnson had "dropped into the lap of the 90th Congress the fiscal mess he made in 1966."

Everett M. Dirksen, Senate Republican leader, said he got "mental indigestion" from all the details of other programs the president outlined.

Chairman Russell B. Long (Dem. La.) of the tax-handling Senate finance committee said that if there is to be a tax increase "I'd be more disposed to a corporate increase than one on individuals."

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem. N.M.), a veteran member of Long's committee, thought that trying to get Congress to approve any tax increase would be a "very difficult task."

that the CPR would begin paying municipal taxes in 1967.

In a letter to the government in early 1966, the railway said it would pay the levies starting the year after the new transport bill was passed.

Conservative MPs have argued that municipalities along the CPR's main line in Western Canada count on receiving these taxes in 1967. It was not their fault, nor the fault of Parliament, that the government hadn't brought the bill into the Commons earlier so it could be approved before Dec. 31.

Mr. Pickersgill said he would take the matter up with the CPR after the bill was passed —within the next few weeks, he hoped.

He hoped the CPR would accept a Conservative suggestion to pay the taxes from the month the bill is approved if not for the full year. But that was entirely up to the CPR, he said.

Mr. Lewis said the CPR's letter to the government "was written with the CPR's characteristic arrogance."

"The time is overdue to say to the Canadian Pacific that the time when it can be exempted from municipal taxation is over and ended."

WOULD MAKE CHANGES

Debate on the CPR issue produced the only harsh words of the sitting. Mr. Pickersgill, as he had already announced, was ready to make changes here and there in his bill to meet opposition suggestions.

Mr. Pickersgill also assured MPs the regulatory board overseeing all modes of transportation coming under federal jurisdiction would not throttle competition.

In fact, he said, it would encourage competition in areas where this was possible. In marginal areas where it was in the public interest, subsidies would be paid to one carrier to carry on.

The board itself would be appointed partially on regional grounds, Mr. Pickersgill said. No one had been approached yet to sit on it since it wouldn't be proper to do so until the bill passed.

But 14 of the 17 spots would be taken up by existing members of the board of transport commissioners, the Canadian maritime commission and the air transport board.

any voice in the bank's affairs, and had been rebuffed, he said.

He said that three Canadian banks had been substantial lenders to Pioneer Finance in Detroit, a company he identified as being in trouble "largely due to the enterprises of the well-known Texas bon-vivant, Billy Sol Estes . . . "

He identified the banks as the Bank of Montreal, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The magazine story unrefuted by Mr. Howes said he and partner John Heaven ran several companies under the wing of the Great Northern Pulp and Paper Group Ltd.

From an office in the same building as the Metropolitan Toronto police department they arranged advertisements promising information for $1 on how to rent 640 acres of wildlife domain for $20 a year. The same information could be obtained free direct from the Ontario government. The lessee was in fact leasing only one acre.

Other activities were described as advertising auctions of tax-sale properties, promoting packaged fishing trips, selling gold bricks and charging interest pending pickup by U.S. buyers, and printing facsimilies of obsolete foreign currency in large denominations.

Mr. Lafferty said his Lafferty, Harwood and Co. was subjected to charges by the Montreal Stock Exchange and had its bank credit cut off after it issued statements on exchange regulation in 1964.

INFLUENCE POLICIES

He said the Royal Bank of Canada, the Bank of Montreal and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce effectively influence the policies of the three largest trust companies in Canada.

In turn, these trusts have in their orbit of influence close to 50 per cent of the market value of all Canadian - owned industrial stocks listed on the combined Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges, he said.

The association of underwriters with banks put this part of the money market "on a basis of agreement and accommodation related to the influence each respective group can exercise," he said.

He urged that the Bank Act be changed to eliminate bank directors and officers as directors and officers of any other financial institution or corporation.

REPUBLICANS 'WON'T BUY IT'

Both Parties Shocked By Johnson Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The 90th U.S. Congress, barely organized but its new conservative bent already showing, reacted with shock today to President Lyndon Johnson's proposed tax increase to pay for continued spending at home and abroad.

Republicans said flatly they wouldn't buy it. Surprised Democrats generally indicated they won't go along either, unless every effort is made to cut the outlay for great society programs.

Members of both parties, publicly or privately, expressed amazement that Johnson made no mention at all in his State-of-the-Union address Tuesday night of holding down spending.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, who held a news conference following the president's address to a joint session of Congress, said they felt Johnson failed to heed the "Stop" signs of the November election.

Ford said Johnson appeared to be proposing a "continued policy of guns and butter, rifles and ruffles," without spelling out where he would cut domestic spending.

'SAME TIRED WAY'

The speech, Ford said, indicated the administration is "going to continue in the same tired way", ignoring the voters' desire for new directions in domestic and foreign policy. He said the president had not "made a case for a tax increase in 1967."

Dirksen said the entire domestic spending program was "going to get a long, hard look". He predicted Congress would not go along with a tax hike until it determines if "items can be cut from the budget".

On the Democratic side, Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the Senate finance committee, noted almost thankfully, that a tax increase is a House problem first.

"As for the tax increase," I've recommended against that kind of thing for a long time," Long said.

"I don't feel it's necessary to fight a war with a balanced budget," he said.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, while praising Johnson's speech, said of the tax plan: "If the House passes a tax increase, the Senate will go along."

CONFUSING

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D—Ga.) chairman of the Senate armed services committee, said he found it "confusing" that the president appeared to be advocating continued outlays for highways, beautification programs, and other projects for which "he claims to have been impounding funds.

"This message was so sweeping that I'm going to have to study it," Russell said. "He really covered the waterfront."

Members of both parties had looked to Johnson to pledge strictest economies on the home front to help offset soaring costs of the Vietnam war.

When he came through with a proposal to slap a 6-per-cent surtax for two years on corporate and personal taxes alike, members who had applauded his proposed increase in social security benefit payments sat stunned and silent in their seats.

Boycott Ky Visit

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP)—Opposition Labor parties in New Zealand and Australia plan to boycott South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky when he visits the two countries Jan. 18 to 26. Both parties oppose their countries' participation in the Vietnam war.

Norman E. Kirk, head of New Zealand's labor party, said today he will be out of the country when Ky arrives, but would have declined any invitation to meet him had he remained.

Australian Labor Leader Arthur A. Calwell has promised to lead demonstrations against Ky and appealed to Prime Minister Harold Holt to call off the visit.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario joined Quebec and the Maritimes Tuesday by announcing an amendment in the Liquor Licence Act to permit the sale of alcoholic beverages with meals on Sundays.

NO APPLAUSE FROM SEN. BOBBY KENNEDY

LBJ Wants Ban on Wire-Tapping

In his State of the Union message, Johsnon said the country should respect what the late Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis called the "right most valued by civilized men," the right to privacy.

"We should outlaw all wire-tapping—public and private—whether and whenever it occurs, except when the security of the nation itself is at stake—and then only with the strictest safeguards," Johnson said.

"We should exercise the full reach of our constitutional powers to outlaw electronic 'bugging' and 'snooping'," Johnson said.

Johnson did not refer to the recent public dispute between Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem.—N.Y.) and Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation over who was responsible for stepped-up FBI wire-tapping when Kennedy was attorney-general.

But Johnson emphasized his own attitude toward wiretaps with a grimace of distaste as he spoke the words "bugging" and "snooping."

Senator Kennedy was among the few in the audience of lawmakers who did not applaud.

QUEEN TO 'LAY IT ON' FOR VISITING RUSSIAN

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin will meet Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace during his February visit to London, informed sources said today.

Kosygin is being invited for a meal, the sources said. Officials were taking a great deal of trouble to "lay it on" for Kosygin and the invitation took on the wider significance of seeming designed to demonstrate Britain's desire for closer co-operation with Russia.

Overtime Ban Easing For Outlying Areas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most northern construction projects will be allowed to work overtime until mid-March, Labor Minister Peterson announced Tuesday night.

His announcement followed an Industrial Relations Board hearing earlier in the day called to "clear the air" on Premier Bennet's overtime ban that became effective Jan. 1.

Mr. Peterson said permits for such projects will be valid "until each application from the individual firms can be dealt with on their merits and all of these applications will be dealt with before March 11."

He said the permits applied only to projects in northern and outlying regions of the province and will allow a 56-hour work week, the same as granted to the government's Portage Mountain Dam project on the Peace River.

The regular work week is 44 hours.

Mr. Peterson's announcement followed a statement from the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., representing employers, which said a general relaxation of the ban was rejected by the IRB.

Cut Canada Content Broadcasters Plead

OTTAWA (CP)—Private broadcasters made a pitch to MPs Monday for lowered Canadian content on television and a way for stations to contest disciplinary action before an impartial bench. The Canadian Association of Broadcasters, representing some 95 per cent of private stations, presented a brief to the Commons committee on broadcasting, films and assistance to the arts.

JONES SAID AUTHOR OF OWN INJURY

Suit Dismissal Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — A slander suit against Premier Bennett continues today after a motion for dismissal was rejected by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan late Tuesday.

George Murray, lawyer for Mr. Bennett, moved for dismissal of the suit brought by George E. P. Jones on grounds that words used were not capable of having slandering meaning.

The premier was quoted as saying at a March, 1965, Social Credit meeting that he was "not going to say anything about the Jones boy, but I could say a lot."

Jones, who was fired by special legislative act from his post of B.C. Purchasing Commission chairman the same month, contends the words are slanderous because the premier had not previously given a reason publicly for the firing.

Mr. Murray argued that Jones was the author of his own injury.

Under cross examination by Mr. Murray, Jones said he told a University of Victoria science forum he believed the premier was not anxious to fire him, but had received bad advice from government lawyers.

Jones identified the lawyers as Gilbert Kennedy, deputy attorney-general G. S. Bryson, deputy finance minister, and A. E. Webb, deputy public works minister.

He told the B.C. Supreme Court hearing that he told a Victoria reporter following the forum: "If you believe all the corridor couriers, I have enough skeletons in my closet to keep a hallowe'en party going for 20 years."

"Did you say that the government was using something that happened 10 years ago to get you fired?" Mr. Murray asked.

"Yes," Mr. Jones applied.

He also agreed that after meeting, he told a reporter:

"It was a simple thing. I shot at someone and missed; I am a lousy marksman. They reduced the charge and let me go free."

Much of the day's testimony involved Jones' former positions and his application for employment as commission chairman and of his "sit-in" at his office following an order for his dismissal.

Prior to the special act, Jones was told he was dismissed but refused to leave his office until the legislature approved his removal.

Classrooms and Policy

IN APPROVING A PROGRAM of new and expanded schools for the next three years — at a probable cost of $10 millions—the Greater Victoria school board is well aware of the provincial government's hold-down on most forms of public construction. But in view of the need for more classrooms, kindergartens and school libraries, the board has no alternative but to draw up its plans and present them for government and public endorsement.

Some of the needs are immediate; others are foreseen as the inevitable result of the growth of population during the next three years. The needs will become even more acute if the construction program which was approved by voters in the last referendum is long delayed by the provincial government's current freeze on building.

The province's hold-back on schools is part of the general slowdown urged by the federal government as a means of curbing the rapid inflationary spiral; by postponing many projects it is hoped to ease the demand on services and materials which helps to push prices upward. But while numerous building proposals may logically be postponed, schools and hospitals should not be among them. There is no more important function of the state in this era than the provision of adequate educational facilities for both youth and adults — an educated and trained population is a necessity for the proper functioning of our intricate democratic system and the complex technological world which we have created.

The minister of education has said that building approval will be given only where there is proof of serious over-crowding. This principle may be reasonably applicable in cases of proposed replacement of antique school buildings, but it should have a very flexible interpretation in the provision of necessary new classrooms.

The school board will do well to undertake a vigorous campaign to educate the public regarding the needs involved in the projected building program, so that the people of School District 61 can not only give their support if asked to do so in a referendum this year, but can also present an informed public opinion to the provincial government in an effort to get an enlightened and perceptive response to the public need.

Costs of Going Up Are Coming Down

FOR VICTORIANS HOPING TO join group air tours crossing the oceans, it is encouraging to learn that the costs of going up are coming down.

But there is more significance to recently announced fare reductions than the personal satisfaction of prospective air tourists from this community. The cuts reflect compromises in a continuing campaign which Air Canada, with certain other efficient airlines, has been conducting for years to bring air travel within the reach of more people. The proponents of cheaper fares have not received all they want, but the trend is their way.

The case for reductions is straightforward: Lower fares will increase volume and so maintain revenues for the efficiently operated company. This was Air Canada's experience when earlier tariff cuts were made. Moreover, chartered flights by affiliated travellers have shown a large potential market, if the price is right.

The difficulty in making reductions is also clear. Some airlines, for various reasons, cannot compete in an open market. But they have the backing of their own governments, who can decline to permit competitors entry into their countries. In consequence the International Air Transport Association, the governing body for the industry, could not, even if it wished, ignore the position taken by the less competitive international lines. The air transport industry is closely linked with governments, and no nation can afford to overlook the special interests of its own carriers.

The changes effected for 1967 are to be applied to groups travelling as organized parties. There are still certain conditions laid down for those groups, but they are much more liberal than those previously applied to charter business.

The reductions give point to the Canadian argument that efficiency can make money for the companies and extend financial benefits to a larger number of people.

Ticket to Where?

HOW DIFFICULT IS IT FOR an English-speaking railway conductor to learn to say "Billet, s'il vous plait," when working on a train running in Quebec? Or how much pride does a French-speaking passenger have to pocket to respond to the request, in English, "Ticket, please"?

The margin, either way, would seem slight to a reasonable person, but in Quebec the other day the refusal of a Quebecois to give up his ticket in response to an English request led to his being put off the train.

This sort of headlong collision between French-Canadian pride and English-speaking stubborness seems to be growing dismayingly more evident. A talented and clever French-Canadian author, Mme. Solange Chaput Rolland, travelled across this country and came to the conclusion that Quebec, not Canada, must in the future be her homeland. Outside of Quebec, among English-speaking Canadians, she claimed she could find nothing but indifference at best and hostility at worst toward French-Canadian aspirations to preserve the language and culture in which she was brought up.

Much of this may be viewed as a not unexpected reaction of non-French Canadians to the at times strident, even violent, efforts of French Canadians to assert themselves over the past few years. After a noticeable lull, relations between the two founding races may again be wearing thin. Quebec's "quiet revolution" is beginning to simmer again; the possibility of confrontation rather than accommodation between French- and English-speaking is growing greater.

To avert the tragedy of a widening of the gulf between Quebec and the rest of Canada, French and English citizens of this potentially great country must learn to display more sympathy for the culture, heritage, language and aspirations of the other. This could be a personal Centennial project of far greater value than any of the official celebrations yet announced.

No Room for This Nonsense

THE CITY COUNCIL'S RECreation and community services committee has acted properly in calling for severe action against spectators who throw staples, or other dangerous objects, on the ice during hockey games at the arena.

This is a stupid and dangerous practice that could have very serious results for a skater travelling at high speed.

Those who are guilty might profitably note the penalties which can be imposed for public mischief in its serious forms. They can be heavily fined and, in some instances, placed in jail.

A few examples made by the court should prove a deterrent.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

And Now Appointment by Click

STUDENTS of public affairs will be fascinated by a new political technique revealed last week by the secretary of state in the course of a television interview. Miss LaMarsh was describing the difficulties, including cabinet difficulties, which complicate the making of appointments in the public service. Even after a minister has settled on a nomination,

Western

"It's interminably slow because like most women I can feel a click when it happens — when the right person comes — like Dr. Boggs for the National Gallery. I thought about a lot of other people first and there was a click when I heard about her. I had never met her, and I asked her to come up and visit me, and I thought; 'This is what we want.' Well, I haven't really for sure felt this click yet with respect to the CBC."

This admirable exposition of the processes of government by click is particularly helpful at a moment when correspondents are searching desperately for some rational explanation for the reappointment to cabinet of Mr. Walter Gordon. What we are confronted with here is a double mystery.

Public attention has centred chiefly, as would be expected, on the problem of the appointment itself. According to some newspapers, it is welcome (or unwelcome) but unfair to the Liberal party. According to others it is welcome (or unwelcome) but unfair to Mr. Gordon. According to a third opinion, it is merely incomprehensible.

Secretive

Little has been said, however, about the manner of the announcement. By any accounting Mr. Gordon on Wednesday was major news, worthy, one would have supposed, of full dress press conference treatment. Yet the official advice until mid-afternoon was that all was quiet on the ministerial front. So hastily were arrangements finally concluded that some correspondents had to be summoned from the midst of another government press conference while others received the glad tidings when it was too late to join the welcoming party. If this trend continues we may expect the next minister to be smuggled into cabinet by a secret staircase.

The value of the LaMarsh exposition, however, is that it offers a plausible explanation of these otherwise perplexing events. For the last fortnight a number of troubled Ontario Liberals have been whispering, muttering, writing, shouting, telephoning the name of the member for Toronto-Davenport in the general direction of the prime minister. Suddenly, perhaps in the presence of Miss LaMarsh, Mr. Pearson felt a click and exclaimed — in the very words of the secretary of state — "Walter Gordon is more with it than anybody else . . . I think."

As the click came only in mid-afternoon, there was no time for the normal arrangements, still less for the principals to reconcile their scripts. Mr. Gordon was simply launched as he was with the happy thought that any details could be tidied up afterwards.

Bizarre

It is not necessary to assume that the technique is entirely new merely because it has only now been revealed. Mr. Benson, not so long ago, gave us a very similar account of the discovery which led to the resolution of crisis by computer. No doubt other bizarre incidents of recent years could be explained in the same fashion. One of the results has been a certain jerkiness in government reflected in the common use of such phrases as "to pull the rug." The technique seems, however, to be distinctively Canadian and it is bound to make an impression of sorts on the Americans since it has given us back Mr. Walter Gordon.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Chaos the Sign of Dynastic Change?

NOTHING is more exasperating to a reporter than a truly vast event, of the most earthshaking significance, whose outlines are difficult to discern and even more difficult to describe. Such is the present convulsion in China, whose extraordinary character can only be conveyed by imaginary parallels. Imagine, then, the United States in a condition of simmering insurrection, already bursting into armed conflict in more than one big state, with many leaders of the government, the armed forces and the bureaucracy on the side of the rebels! Imagine the president and Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara vanishing from public view for many weeks, leaving everyone uncertain whether their hands are still on the helm!

Alsop

And then imagine the primary responsibility for supressing the insurrection and restoring the vanished president's authority being openly exercised by Mrs. Johnson and Marvin Watson, with the aid of ill-disciplined and violent teen-age gangs!

Unimaginable

Such a situation is downright unimaginable. Yet incredible as this may seem, the foregoing really is an almost exact parallel for what is now happening in China. In several major provincial centres, there has been, or there now is open armed conflict. In at least one centre, Nanking, the army has apparently supported the party leaders who have defied Mao Tse-tung, and the insurrectionists have won undisputed local control.

Mao himself has not been seen for nearly two months, although several messages, more than one of them near-lunatic, have lately been published in his name. Almost more curious still, the announced heir of Mao, Defence Minister Lin Piao, also disappeared from public view after a rally in Peking on November 26. There is nothing whatever to indicate that Marshal Lin is still playing an active role in this desperate crisis so clearly calling for his leadership.

Peking Opposition

Instead, in Peking, the leadership has been quite openly assumed by Mao's Marvin Watson, Chen Po-ta, and by Mao's shrill, ex-actress wife, Chiang Ching, These two are front and centre, violently denouncing an ever lengthening list of "bourgeois reactionaries," howling for the blood of opponents, and orchestrating the forays of the Red Guards. Thus far, moreover, they seem to have had little success in crushing the ever more ominous opposition.

The final outcome of a situation so lurid and improbable cannot of course be predicted with real confidence. But it is surely of the utmost significance that Mao's wife and chief secretary have now emerged as the two most fully trusted lieutenants of Mao and the two most active leaders of Mao's "great proletarian cultural revolution."

A hundred lesser questions press for answers. What has happened to Lin Piao? Was he perchance the victim of one of the "contrived automobile accidents," which the "bourgeois reactionaries" have been so strangely accused of arranging, along with poisonings and other more normal crimes?

Riddles

Again, why was Tao Chu, so recently a leading Maoist, so abruptly condemned as the worst of "bourgeois reactionaries?" Again, what exactly is the role of that Mikoyan-like figure, Chou En-lai? And why has the suppression of the secret police been suddenly announced?

But these intriguing mysteries, crowding in on every side, are far less important than the basic outline of the situation, which is in the last degree astonishing but nonetheless quite clear. It will be time enough, later on, to ask why and how on earth Mao's wife and secretary came to assume the roles they are now playing. For present purposes, what matters is the fact that they are indeed playing these key roles in a China nearing chaos.

This means — it really must mean — that something comparable to a change of dynasty in China may well be at hand. Almost alone, this reporter has always insisted upon the possibility of a great and convulsive mutation of the Chinese Communist system, that would have effects much like one of the great dynastic changes of the past. But what has always been possible has now become probable.

If this probability is realized — if the threatened change of dynasty occurs — it will surely be one of the great events of the second half of this century. Its main effects, one can be just about certain, will be to replace paranoia with pragmatism, and thereby to give vastly greater play to the incomparable energies and talents of the Chinese people.

For these reasons, a great advance for China is likely to result from the present turmoil, comparable to the advances that also resulted from the fall of China's two previous transforming but paranoiac dynasties, the Sui and the Ch'in. But let no one suppose that such an advance will solve the China problem, for it will do nothing of the sort.

FLOWERS OF THOUGHT

The basic meaning of all Japanese flower arrangements is to lead you to meditation. That's why they have so few flowers in them; they always stress simplicity and restraint, because they say that will lead you to meditation; if you have anything in profusion then that will only create confusion.

Invading Privacy

New York Times

The one thing that emerges with any clarity from the flak currently enveloping Robert F. Kennedy and J. Edgar Hoover is the apparent impossibility of putting effective restraints on invasions of privacy by electronic snoopers.

It has never been a secret that cordiality was distinctly absent from the official relationship between Mr. Kennedy as attorney general and Mr. Hoover as his supposed subordinate in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The cross fire of self-serving documents they have now unleashed is unlikely to persuade anyone that either lay awake nights worrying about the dangers to civil liberties involved in wiretaps or "bugging."

Obviously, no one in the Justice Department knew at any given moment — or perhaps ever — just what homes, offices, embassies or hotel rooms were being bugged, much less why. Perhaps the most disquieting single disclosure in the current tangle is the plaintive comment of William G. Hundley, former chief of the department's organized crime section, that he had lost his original belief that the FBI would clear with the attorney general before planting any bug in plain violation of legal prohibitions. "I have found that that's not true," he said.

The Kennedy-Hoover exchange merely underscores the difficulties involved in trying to establish practical limits on eavesdropping, even when performed solely by law-enforcement agencies in the interest of national security or crime control. The minimum requirement before any tap is established ought to be an order signed by a judge, but it becomes increasingly evident that watching the watchdogs can be as vexing a problem as what they watch.

Finished Products

I would like to congratulate Arthur Mayse in the contribution he made on the front page of the 2nd portion of December 30th issue of The Times.

As he intimates so accurately, "Our dangers remain those confronting the country endowed with more resources than population."

Personally, though an old man, I do not like to see our resources being exploited, to a marked extent, by another nation, in the raw condition, but rather as the finished product, completed here by our workers here in Canada.

Of course, that raises a snag through our wages being higher than those in another country.

Nevertheless, Mr. Arthur Mayse, keep on hammering or yammering, for we need it.—Harry Wyser.

Americans and Laos

With regard to your article in yesterday's Daily Times, headed "Protest Organization Expanding," I should like to ask Mr. W. T. Lawson whether he is giving the public the following facts.

The Americans withdrew from Laos in accordance with the Geneva Agreement; the North Vietnamese did not. The Americans are in South Vietnam, Laos and Thailand at the invitation of the legal governments. In Laos there are camps on the mountain tops formed by tribesmen, driven off their farms. The people are dependent for food and everything else on air-drops by the Americans. One of these Americans has a price on his head. One of the tribesmen asked about their attitude to the North Vietnamese said that if North Vietnamese got control, they would force the men to act as bearers, the women they would divide among the soldiers, and the children they would take away and the parents would never see them again.—Vox Clamans.

Seeing It Through

Your correspondent who conceals his identity under the "nom de plume" of Trade Unionist does no credit to himself or to the trade unions whom he takes as a shield when he attempts to condone the United States in its foreign war as "a nation which sees it through." By the same standard one might condone a common thug for gunning down defenders of the law.

The United States has no legal, political, or moral right to have armed forces in Vietnam.—C. K. Morison, 2220 Windsor.

Looking Back

From The Times of Jan. 11, 1906:

Those who stand at the front of the Charmer's gangplank tonight will, if there are proper train connections, see a regiment of visitors debark from that familiar packet.

They will be distinguished from the transient travellers by the proud badge of the prairie — the coonskin coat—while bulging hip pockets will speak eloquently of an opulence born of the culture of No. 1 hard.

They come with returns from this season's crop to buy a few business blocks or residences in the city.

Yugoslavia's Famed Heretic, Milovan Djilas Returns Home

By ANATOLE SHUB
The Washington Post

BELGRADE — Talking with Milovan Djilas, one can scarcely believe that he has spent nearly nine of the last ten years in prison, nearly five of them since his ill-fated 15-month parole in 1961-62.

Heretical Yugoslavia's greatest heretic has been home just a week—he was amnestied New Year's Eve—and it has been a hectic week, crowded with sights and impressions, relatives, friends, visitors, telephones and telegrams. Yet Djilas is neither tired nor bewildered, neither exultant nor bitter.

He is serene, sovereign, self-contained, with a vivacity and lively humor that belie his 56 years and the salt gray of his close-cropped prison haircut.

He is a tall, lithe man who moves with springy, supple step, and his mind, too, ranges freely, lightly, confidently over a variety of subjects and moods. Whether the talk is of military rule in the Sudan or the novels of John Updike and Mary McCarthy, he is prodigiously well informed and uncommonly perceptive.

When conversation turns to his native Montenegro, his tone of intimacy and personal identification with its history and legends convey a sense of the deep roots which have helped him grow — rather than wither — in these difficult years.

Bold, Open And Flexible

And when he speaks of Yugoslavia today and tomorrow, it is with in intellectual boldness and openness, and also with a new flexibility that may surprise both his former Yugoslav Communist comrades and some of his Western anti-Communist admirers.

This is a mind unbeset by the hobgoblin of foolish consistency — a free spirit. "I am a dogmatist," he says with a twinkle, "dogmatically opposed to all dogmas."

For those who knew Djilas before, it is as though he had never been away. A restaurant waiter ushered him to a table by reminding him that he had sat there "last time" — five years ago.

Many friends have remained loyal since his first fall from President Tito's grace in 1954. Many others, too, who had been pretending that he was an "unperson," now greet him warmly and speak of him again by his old nickname of "Djido."

Even more amazing, among Communists as well as non-Communists in Belgrade, there is constant talk that he is the "inevitable," the "natural" successor to Tito; there are even rumors to the effect that this is why Tito released him.

"The old man," says one observer, "is thinking about his place in history, about the heritage he will leave behind. There is only one man who can either justify or damn that heritage, and that is Djilas."

Although there is absolutely no concrete evidence along such lines, and Djilas frowns at such suggestions, these reactions are remarkable testimony to the appeal not so much of Djilas the symbol as of Djilas the man. The appeal, the personal magnetism are unique.

For Djilas is more than a record of offices and functions — former Partisan general and war hero, editor of Borba and holder of party card No. 4, vice-president of the republic, poet, novelist, historian, political essayist and analyst. He is pre-eminently himself, Milovan Djilas, an individual of rare quality and qualities.

Someone meeting him the first time understands quickly why he was (along with the late Ivo-Lola Ribar) the most beloved of the Partisans, and so long the "favorite of the entire party" (as Lenin in his time dubbed the Bolshevik Nikolai Bukharin). Nor does it take long with Djilas to uncover the proud, rebellious spirit which first Josef Stalin then Tito found impossible to harness — and which led Djilas in prison to translate the supreme epic of rebellion, John Milton's "Paradise Lost."

Warrior Hero Of 19th Century

Entering Djilas's second-floor apartment, one sees first the impressive portrait of a white-mustached 19th century Balkan warrior. It is, Djilas explains, Marko Miljanov, a hero of the 1876-78 Balkan wars which made Montenegro independent. The war hero quarrelled afterward with King Nikola and the "new class" around him and spent eight years in disgrace and isolation. He used the time to become a writer, composing ethical parables of unusual purity.

"There are many parallels," Djilas remarks, and Miljanov and his time are the theme of "Lost Battles," the shorter of two novels which Djilas wrote in prison and which is substantially completed.

The longer novel, "Bridges and Worlds," is only in first draft. Its theme is a massacre of Moslems in Montenegro in 1923, which Djilas remembers as a boy.

Djilas remains unsure of the fate of these and other manuscripts, some of which — notably a prison journal — are still being held by the authorities. Although he hopes that at least the Milton translation can be published in Yugoslavia, the terms of his amnesty reaffirmed a five-year ban on all public activity.

Djilas intends to inquire, perhaps next week, at the ministry of the interior as to precisely what his rights are. When he called on the authorities a few days ago to request the return of his war medals and decorations, he was treated with surprising deference and courtesy by all concerned.

Keenly Curious About the U.S.

He would like to travel — first and foremost across the length and breadth of Yugoslavia itself, which he knows has changed enormously since his imprisonment; then later, perhaps, abroad. He is keenly curious about the United States.

"I visited New York briefly in 1949," he says, "but that was not really seeing anything. I do remember, though, being disturbed by the thought of why, in that highly industrialized country with tens of millions of workers, there were no Communists. I don't really remember New York, but I do remember the intellectual pain of that idea."

Although most Yugoslavs are thoroughly indifferent to the Vietnam war, Djilas displays a lively interest in its complexities. He is struck, on the one hand, by the erosion of President Johnson's popularity under the barrage of criticism from politicians and particularly from the press. "Such a development in the middle of a war would be impossible in Europe," he says.

He also notes, on the other hand, that despite the apparent unpopularity of the war the American forces have had relatively few desertions or morale problems. "That is something new since the Second World War, America having a real army. Even though they are mostly draftees and not dedicated professionals like the British in the heyday of their army, they fight. I suppose that is a sign of a maturing American nationalism."

Russia, too, arouses his interest. He has always been disturbed by the darker continuities of its history, from Ivan the Terrible to Stalin, but has been impressed by the accounts of a fresh new spirit among Soviet youth and intellectuals. He believes the Stalin times can never come back again, and that such dictatorships generally are an anachronism in modern industrial nations.

Soviet Rulers The Best Yet

"I have the feeling the preent government is the best Russia has had since Lenin died — maybe because they are not trying to do too much. But being a great power makes it more difficult for Russia to evolve democratically than for the smaller countries of Eastern Europe." He is curious about Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, who strikes him as sympathetic and capable.

In discussing Yugoslavia, he speaks with measured respect and no bitterness of Tito, and with interest of several of the younger leaders who have emerged in recent years.

MARSHAL TITO

Djilas is encouraged by the evolution which has taken place in Yugoslavia these last years and months, and is sympathetic to the aims of the current economic reform. Yet (like many of the liberal Communists) he feels the reform has not yet gone far and deep enough. "Agriculture and commerce have not been fundamentally touched," he says.

"I am not advocating a reutrn to capitalism — that would be senseless. But there could be much more room for private energy and initiative, for individuals, groups, co-operatives, companies independent of the state and the Communist party. Why should the state, for example, have to own hotels and restaurants?"

His own conviction is that the question of ownership remains the crucial dilemma to be resolved. A number of Yugoslav writers have recently suggested instituting a kind of socialist "people's capitalism" by issuing the workers stock or profit shares in their enterprises. Djilas has only begun to reflect on this problem, and would like to observe the Yugoslav economy more at first hand. But his instincts appear to lean in the direction of more thorough-going changes.

He Has Made No Compromises

"I was prepared to serve the sentence to the end and have made no compromises," he emphasizes strongly.

Apart from the prison warden who informed him of his release, no officials have approached him and he intends to make no overtures. He would rather continue his writing than accept some kind of showcase post in an institute or commission.

His friends all believe that time and history are working for him, that most intelligent Communists have now arrived at virtually the same political conclusions that Djilas reached alone in the 1950s and that put him in disfavor.

The man himself seems quite above such tactical considerations. "You know," he says when pressed on the subject, "if it should ever happen that I were called to power again, I wouldn't stay long — I would do what had to be done and then go. When I was in power before, I was never really comfortable with it, and I don't think I ever could be."

Is Canada's Hockey Team Offering an Object Lesson?

By ART STOTT

A few weeks ago, during the intermission program of a hockey game, "King" Clancy was expressing the view that the National League really began to roll when the Maple Leaf Gardens arena was built in Toronto and Con Smythe became a big wheel in the Canadian game.

Stott

From a business point of view, I believe Clancy was right. We on the West Coast remember, of course, that Lester Patrick was building a Stanley Cup team before that epoch, but the industry of hockey was not what it is today.

As far as eastern and central Canada were concerned prior to the Maple Leaf Gardens, Clancy said, main public interest centred on the amateurs. The Winnipeg Falcons, from whom Patrick acquired Frank Fredrickson and "Slim" Halderson, had won top international honors. The Toronto Granites carried on the tradition, whipping any team outside Canada at will.

Then came the European surge in ice hockey, with the Czechs, trained by a former Canadian resident, bringing that country's team up to scratch and Russia making a later drive which produced winners of so-called World Championships. These were in tournaments with somewhat different rules to those followed by the Canadian pros. Canadian amateurs — within the hockey definition of "amateur" — started to take their lickings.

* * *

Our national pride was injured. We figured we were the font of all things excellent in hockey and we didn't like it when other countries could beat our boys. So the old question was asked: "Why don't we send a big league professional team into these tournaments? The so-called amateurs of Europe aren't amateurs by traditional standards anyhow."

With the increasing successes of the Europeans, the question was mildly qualified. We wondered how the best in Europe would stack up against the best in Canada — and we took it for granted, quite properly, that our best hockey players went into the pro ranks to make an honest living from the game

Just possibly the results of the Winnipeg International tournament, won by the Canadian Nationals, with Czechoslovakia and Russia finishing second and third respectively, provided an answer or at least indicated one.

The Canadians brought Carl Brewer, a first line National Leaguer, back into the amateur ranks at a time when he still had the moxie to be a National Leaguer, and his ability and experience provided, in my opinion, the punch and the steadying influence needed by a highly competent crew of Canadian amateurs.

Brewer may not have made all the difference. He made a lot of it. Figure the team that might have been on the ice if it had been possible to pick Canadian all-stars from the National League ranks, drill them together for months and then send them against the best hockey players produced elsewhere.

* * *

At this stage of the game, it seems to me, there isn't much question over the results that would occur — not yet, at least, but the Europeans no doubt will improve. Among other things they'll learn the little tricks the Russians picked up to hold a man back, but the Russians lack smoothness in these gimmicks. The referees catch them. Gordie Howe could teach them.

Winning an international hockey tournament may not loom very large in the important affairs of this globe. It may, on the other hand, suggest a course of action which could be followed in other fields.

The hockey selectors picked good talent for the Nationals — boys who had started to prepare themselves when they laced on skates as infants. To their native abilities were added the experience, knowledge, coaching and conditioning of men who know their business thoroughly. Added was incentive, dedication and the discipline that is required of first class athletes. Out of it came a winner.

It should be possible to apply the formula to other activities. We, as Canadians, have talents in various areas. Somehow or other, though, we also have tremendous capacities for dissipating them in quest of easy living and personal comfort.

Possibly the significant point proved by the Nationals at Winnipeg might be that when Canadians try hard enough to exploit their abilities, and when the effort is adequately organized and financed, they can achieve.

The obvious fact emerging from the tournament seems to be that this nation still produces the best hockey players in the world, though most of them go into the sports entertainment business when they become good enough.

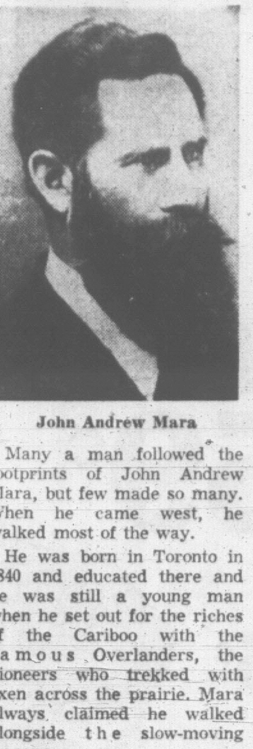
Alvira Packingham Earp
(1847-1947)

The wife of Virgil, eldest of the five famed Earps of Tombstone, Ariz., lived for a century. Just before dying, she said that an epitaph she wrote in fun when a girl was still appropriate: "Here lies the body of Alvira Packingham. She's dead as hell, and she don't give a damn!"

Founders Of B.C.



John Andrew Mara

Many a man followed the footprints of John Andrew Mara, but few made so many. When he came west, he walked most of the way.

He was born in Toronto in 1840 and educated there and he was still a young man when he set out for the riches of the Cariboo with the famous Overlanders, the pioneers who trekked with oxen across the prairie. Mara always claimed he walked alongside the slow-moving wagons.

Maybe it was to rest his poor feet that he went into steamboating when he reached Kamloops. He then worked as a miner at French Creek in the Big Bend rush but couldn't have been too successful. It is recorded that when he gave it up and came to the coast, he hiked over Seymour Mountain on snowshoes.

His experiences didn't sour him however. He loved the new land of the west. He was a fine speechmaker and a handsome man with a black beard and so fanatical about confederation that politics soon appeared to be his destiny. He was elected to the provincial legislature in 1871 representing the Kootenays and later was returned as member for Yale and he was Speaker between 1883 and 1886. Later he won a federal seat and held it until 1896.

Defeated in politics that year he resolved to build a ship to carry freight to the Klondike miners. In 1898 he brought his wife and two daughters to Vancouver and there the Stikine Chief was launched, a river sternwheeler that required a tug to take it north to Wrangell. But the tow parted and his ship sank and he returned to settle down in Victoria. There he was active in the Board of Trade, Royal Jubilee Hospital, the Anti-Tuberculosis Society and the Union Club until his death in 1920.

Slaves to Possessions, Strike Off Your Fetters!

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

That was a striking picture in the newspaper the other day — a Greek freighter breaking up and gradually sinking off the rocks near Halifax.

Underneath the picture, it was reported that looters had removed almost everything that could be taken off the vessel — brass fittings, compasses, even the ship's wheel.

The same thing happens after railway and airline crashes; people come swarming in to pick up anything that's lying around, even scraps of metal.

I find it hard to see how anybody's life is improved by having a ship's wheel in the parlor, or a piece of airplane fuselage in the basement. But then I find it hard to see how anybody's life is improved by having a Westminster chime clock or an electric toothbrush or any of the other strange objects which people buy, give each other or steal.

I suppose having things, even useless things, gives most people a sense of importance, security, and indeed of wealth.

A Lot of Stuff

When we say a man is rich, we mean that he has a lot of stuff, or has a lot of money which can be transformed into stuff. We do not consider if he is rich in health or in happiness, in love, in courage, or in faith. Nor do we consider if the stuff surrounding him is a blessing or a curse.

George Santayana contended that possessions were a form a slavery. The more you own, the less freedom you have; the less you own, the more freedom.

"Public vehicles, public libraries, and public attendants (such as waiters) are a convenience which even the impecunious may enjoy; but private vehicles, private collections of books or pictures, and private servants are to my thinking an encumbrance. I like to walk about amidst the beautiful things that adorn the world; but private wealth I should decline, or any sort of personal possessions, because they would take away my liberty."

"As usual, a great proportion was trumpery which had begun to accumulate in his father's day. Among the rest was a dried tapeworm. And now, after lying half a century in his garret and other dust holes, these things were not burned; instead of a bonfire or purifying destruction of them there was an auction or increasing of them. The neighbors eagerly collected to view them, bought them all, and carefully transferred them to their own garrets and dust holes, to lie there till their estates were settled, when they will start again."

That was more than a century ago, but things haven't changed. In the newspaper the other day was a report from Saigon about the stuff which the United States is pouring into the South Vietnamese capital for the 30,000 American personnel there.

"There are warehouses piled with tea-sets, refrigerators, brass candlesticks (for Heaven knows what purpose), hi-fi equipment, tape recorders, radios and cameras. It blocks the port. Much of it is sold to Vietnamese black-marketeers who have never had it so good."

The people I wonder about in this respect are the inhabitants of what J. B. Priestly calls Topside — magnates of politics, business and the rest. They are always giving each other paintings and scrolls and plaques and bronze busts and engraved silver trays and totem poles and stuffed owls.

What happens to all the junk these people accumulate? Do they give it away as soon as they're safely out of sight? Or is it solemnly kept and looked after and insured and passed down (like the deacon's tapeworm) from one generation to the next?

If I had advice for anybody in this New Year, it would be to sell or give away something each time they bought or were given something, thus at least making the clutter no worse.

It would be even better for them to dispose of more stuff than they acquired, thus giving themselves more space and freedom. I intend to do this myself in 1967, getting rid of everything save a few basic books, a few basic clothes and a basic alarm clock.

THE GALLUP POLL

NDP Continues To Gain, Scores Over Conservatives

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

The NDP continues to win favor with the general public, at the expense of the Conservative party.

From a trend question, aimed at establishing what party the voters think is best for themselves, the NDP has scored heavily over the Conservatives. There has been only a slight drop among those who choose the Liberal party as best for them and their families—from 29% in 1963 to 24% today. The big change is between the Conservatives and NDP. In 1963, 26% named the Conservative party as "best for self"; today that figure is 15%. Four years ago only 8% expressed personal approval of the NDP; today twice as many (17%) feel this way.

The question used in frequent studies to check voter attitudes is this: "Of all the political parties in Canada today, which one do you think would be best for people like yourself?"

	National Average	East (with Quebec	Quebec	Ontario	West
Liberals	24%	23%	22%	26%	22%
Conservatives	15	14	13	16	14
NDP	17	10	7	20	22
Other	8	11	11	3	11
Can't say	37	42	47	36	32
	101%*	100%	100%	101%*	101%*

In 1963, when this same trend question was asked, the results were as follows:

NATIONAL AVERAGE

Liberals	29%
Conservatives	26
NDP	8
Other	12
Can't say	25
	100%

* Some respondents stated both Conservative and Liberal parties.

'Bombing Won't Compel Hanoi to Enter Talks'

SALISBURY

. . . 'I believe them'

HONG KONG (AP)—Harrison E. Salisbury, an assistant managing editor of the New York Times, said today he does not believe that North Vietnam can be "compelled to come to a conference table."

"These people strike me as being very tough, very hardy, very independent and very courageous," Salisbury said in a taped interview with Radio Hong Kong on his two-week visit to North Vietnam.

"They say, and I rather believe them, that you cannot drag them to the conference table; That they can't be beaten into submission.

"They would rather go back to the jungles and the mountains and fight a guerrilla war for 20 years against the United States as they did against the French."

REPORTS FINDINGS

Reporting his findings during two weeks of talks and observation in the Communist capital, Salisbury said he did not believe a serious military defeat would force Hanoi into negotiations.

"I think there are two circumstances which highly color the thinking of the North Vietnamese," Salisbury said.

"One is their defeat of the French at Dien Bein Phu. This is their greatest achievement, to their way of thinking, and I think that they cannot help when they are considering the prospect of the further course of war, they can't help believing that sometime there may be an opportunity for a Dien Bien Phu against the United States. That's point No. 1.

"Now, point No. 2. I do believe that they are deeply conditioned by their experience, first with the French in the negotiations immediately after the war and then again with the results of the Geneva negotiations. In both cases they feel, rightly or wrongly, they feel that they were let down, that they reached an agreement and the other side refused to abide by them.

"As a result of that they say, time and again and quite openly, that they have to be doubly sure this time if they go into negotiations it's going to be one in which the agreement can be enforced. And those terms, an agreement which can be enforced, were used specifically to me by Pham Van Dong, their prime minister."

Salisbury said American policy with regard to the bombing of North Vietnam "seems to me to have been a little bit unclear."

"We started it with the contention that it was designed to bring the North Vietnamese to the conference table. In other words, we would increase the military pressure on them and when they felt it enough, they would be willing to negotiate.

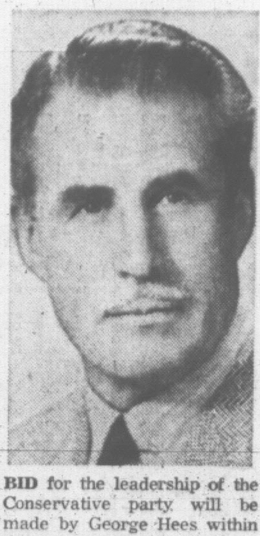
"Well, we have been at it for nearly two years and, as far as I can see, negotiations are just about as far away as ever."

Salisbury said that he had heard a more recent explanation that the bombing is aimed at improving morale in South Vietnam "by showing them that we were really hurting the North Vietnamese regime."

Salisbury said he was able to do his job "remarkably well" in North Vietnam because he could write "quite freely" and the Communist authorities let his dispatches go through uncensored.

Salisbury said restrictions placed on him during his two-week stay in Hanoi were "mild considering the fact that this is a country engaged in a very tough war."

"I walked around the city of Hanoi on my own, and I went off to various foreign embassies and called on them on my own."



BID for the leadership of the Conservative party will be made by George Hees within three months say Tory officials in the Toronto area. "Mr. Hees' every action is aimed at replacing John Diefenbaker," one official said

CPA CREW TELL OF SIGHTING

They Believe in Flying Saucers

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Five members of a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 crew never believed before, but they believe in flying saucers now.

The crew reported Tuesday they saw one on a recent flight from Lima, Peru, to Mexico City, and couldn't explain it away.

"We tried to discredit the thing from beginning to end, but it couldn't be anything we could think of," said Capt. Robert Millbank of suburban Burnaby.

He said he saw two beams of light during the Dec. 29 flight. Second officer John Dennis Dahl of White Rock, navigator Mike Mole of Mexico City, purser Joseph Lugs of Vancouver and pilot trainee Wolfgang Poepperl of Richmond gathered to watch the object.

"It was getting bigger all the time, and at one point shot out a trail of sparks like a rocket," Capt. Millbank said.

"Then it seemed to be getting closer and we could see a string of lights between two white lights.

"It then levelled off at our left wing-tip and, in the full moon, we could see a shape between the two lights which appeared thicker in the middle."

He said the object remained a couple of minutes then disappeared behind the big passenger plane. He said he filed a report in Mexico City after the flight.

The passengers did not see the object. The crew did not wake them.

Youth Pleads Guilty To Theft of Auto

James Delorme, 21, of 1128 Queens Avenue, will be sentenced Jan. 17 after Magistrate Ostler has reviewed a probation officer's report.

Detective Nat Bouchard said in central court Delorme had been drinking the night of Dec. 30 when he was twice turned away from his sister-in-law's home. He then took her husband's car which was parked in front of the house.

Delorme escaped with minor injuries when the car sideswiped another on the Johnson Street bridge before plunging through a guard rail and down an embankment to the water's edge.

Damage to the car was estimated at $2,000.

They will be able to make short-term borrowings carrying a maximum six per cent interest from the Bank of Montreal for construction projects "pending receipt of funds" from provincial government grants or the Universities Capital Fund campaign.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—Soybeans and corn were firm in relatively light trade on the Chicago Board of Trade grain futures market today.

There was only moderate interest in soybeans.

Wheat was firm a good part of the session then weakened in the two nearby contracts but remained firm in the deferred. Oats and rye were in light demand and light trade.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Full gains failed to hold near the end of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and an easier tone developed with rye being the only commodity not recording a recession.

Flax was hesitant with some export interest reported, but no sales were made.

The rye market got some stimulation from export interest with 4,000 tons sold to Norway and 1,200 to Japan. Oats and barley were irregular but some firming was evident with upturns in United States market near the close.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and Domestic wheat were all up ⅛ cent.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Sharp Drop Recovered

The Dow Jones industrial average was down 2.12 at noon whereas at the end of the first half-hour it was off 11.47.

AT NEW YORK advances extended to more than eight points for Xerox, five fore Polaroid and Texas Gulf Sulphur and four for Ling-Temco-Vought.

Eastern Air Lines gained four, and U.S. Gypsum two.

Among Canadians traded, International Nickel was up ⅞ and Dome Mines ⅛. Canadian Pacific fell ½, Distillers Seagrams ⅝ and Granby Mining ¾.

AT TORONTO Bank of Nova Scotia advanced 1½ to 66¼, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines 1⅜ to 27⅜ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Moore Corp., 1 each to 59¼ and 91.

AT MONTREAL stocks reversed direction and edged higher today after dropping lower in early morning trading.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines was up 1½ points to 27¼ and Noranda Mines ¾ to 53¼. Inco firmed ⅝ to 92½.

Home Oil A was up ⅝ to 25⅝ and Interprovincial Pipe Line ½ to 89½.

Bell Telephone and MacMillan-Bloedel each won ¼ to 47⅝ and 23⅝ respectively.

AT VANCOUVER early trading on the stock exchange today reflected the see-saw action in other North American markets.

Trading was mixed with Endako, Dynasty and New Imperial posting good gains and Bethlehem, Brenda, Pyramid and Western Mines sustaining losses.

Magnum, with 126,000 shares, was the leading trader and gained .03 to .77.

In the industrials, Home A and B both went to 1966-67 highs but Trans Prairie dipped .37 cents to a low of $7.25.

B.C., Seattle Settle Land Deal

The compensation formula worked out in the Columbia River project has been used to set the price for a 99-year agreement allowing Seattle city to flood 6,350 acres near Manning Park, Resources Minister Ray Williston said today.

A rental of $34,566 annually in U.S. currency—along with stumpage royalties and land taxes—probably will bring the B.C. government some $3.7 million over the 99 years for the 5,710 acres it owns in the flood area.

The land will be flooded when Seattle raises its Ross Dam on the Skagit River to increase the reservoir for generating electricity.

As a hedge against inflation during the long life of the agrement, B.C. has the option of taking 9.2 kilowatts of power instead of money as the rental payment on one year's notice.

BOUNDARY DELIVERY

The electricity would be sold at the rate of 3.75 mills per kilowatt hour and would have to be delivered free to the B.C.-Washington boundary.

Flooding of the Skagit to build the Ross dam was approved under an international agreement in 1942 but no long-term agreement on price has been worked out until now.

After the dam was built, B.C. passed the Skagit Valley Lands Act in 1947 permitting a year-to-year arrangement.

A payment of $500 land rental was made by Seattle for the approximately 600 acres of B.C. land that has been flooded by the dam at high water periods each year since then.

Mr. Williston said Seattle has paid a $5,000 annual standby payment to compensate the province for reserving the flood area and allowing it to clear the land pending agreement on a long-term lease.

"We used the formulation determined in the Columbia River negotiations to set the terms here," he said. The price is based on computation of the value of the extra generating power created by enlargement of the reservoir area in B.C.

Mr. Willsiton said Seattle is in the process of signing the agrement but he did not know when the dam would be raised.

Machinists To Hold Up Payments

Victoria local No. 3 of the Machinists' Union has decided to withhold future payments to the B.C. Federation of Labour until E. P. O'Neal resigns from the federation's executive board.

The resolution was passed unanimously Monday night by the members of the union local.

O'Neal has admitted involvement in the Nov. 5 bugging of hotel rooms occupied by members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, a rival union to O'Neal's Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers Union.

The bugging incident is the subject of a public inquiry by Judge R. A. Sargent.

Craigmont Profits Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. D. Simpson, president of Craigmont Mines Ltd., has told a shareholders meeting the company's earnings would be subject to income taxes in the fiscal year ending in 1967.

Mr. Simpson said Craigmont, which operates a copper producer near Merritt, 110 miles northeast of Vancouver, had been exempt for the normal three-year tax-free period and exempt another two years because of deduction of preproduction expenses and other allowances.

Despite being in operation for only 6½ months of 1966 because of a strike, Craigmont reported profits of $7,627,627 or $1.50 per share, compared with $2,256,248 or 44 cents per share in the

HIGH LABOR COSTS BLAMED

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Tuesday said rising labor costs were the main reason for a special warrant adding $4 million to his $52 million appropriation for building roads, bridges and ferries.

The warrant was passed by the cabinet Tuesday.

He said it was needed for projects already committed. There were some extra contracts called but "when the labor boys went after fantastic increases everything went up."

New Companies Mark Up Record

New companies registered in B.C. last year set a new record. Attorney-General Robert Bonner gave official figures Tuesday—a total 4,746 incorporations in 1966 compared with 4,646 in 1965, the previous record.

There were 372 extra-provincial companies against 344 in 1965, and 263 societies compared with 259 the previous year.

That makes for 5,381 new incorporations in the province, or 132 more than in 1965.

Island Mine Back at Work

By AB KENT
Business Editor

KENT

Work started this week at South Vancouver Island's second copper-producing mine, an operation that first produced ore in 1895.

Three old Crown-granted claims on Mt. Sicker, six miles north of Duncan, have been given a new lease through the development of the bacterial leaching process on relatively low-grade ores.

According to the promoters of Mt. Sicker Mining Limited, Victoria, the new operation will be profitable and employ up to 60 men.

They will treat old dumps of ore abandoned as far back as 1907 by claim owners who considered them of too low a quality to bother with.

In addition, there will be open pit mining of new ore and continuing exploration on 2,500 acres of land leased by the company from E. and N. Railway Co.

Mt. Sicker president Charles Field, of Victoria, said the first phase of operation will cost about $100,000 and employ 18-20 men. They will leach 200,000 tons of ore already in place.

The second phase, of broader concept, will cost $250,000 and involves both mining and exploration, Mr. Field said.

He expects the first phase will return 2½ tons of copper per day, under direction of the company's vice-president, University of B.C. professor Charles L. Emery, of the department of mines and metallurgy.

It is Dr. Emery's process that has revolutionized the refining of copper ores by bio-chemical leaching, which he pioneered in B.C.

Mt. Sicker has 26 Crown claims, or 820 acres, surrounded by the leased acreage. Three mines on the old claims are the Lenora, Tyee and Richard III.

At least three attempts to reactivate the old mines have been recorded since 1936, the latest in 1950.

Another firm, Tecknol Mining Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, also has interest in the area, holding 17 claims across the Chemainus River from Mt. Sicker, which puts them about two miles from the old claims, and with about 18 claims on Little Sicker Mountain, further to the southeast.

National executive committee of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada meets in Vancouver next month to consider recommendations for increased disclosure by Canadian corporations.

IDA president W. Thomas Brown, of Odlum Brown and T. B. Read Ltd. in Vancouver, told a meeting of Victoria Sales and Marketing Executive Club Monday he is in full accord with suggestions that there be more full disclosure of financial affairs by Canadian companies.

"There has been too little disclosure in Canada. I'm all in favor of it," he said.

He also said Canada is moving in the direction of greater securities control by legislation with the federal level playing a role although provinces have jurisdiction.

IDA's money market committee has called for semi-annual filing of questionnaires and annual audit statements prepared by independent auditors.

The committee also recommends that securities listed by subsidiary companies that principally finance the products of parent companies be considered on the adequacy of information supplied by the parent.

Byproducts may one day be more important than sweeteners to B.C. Sugar Refinery Ltd.

Company chairman Forrest Rogers told the annual meeting in Vancouver that byproducts are of increasing importance to the firm.

Research is slow, however, with the most encouraging to date being toward sugar as a detergent source.

Sugar is also being looked at as a raw material for other chemicals or plastics, he said.

CANADA BUYS N.Z. BUTTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has bought butter abroad for the first time since 1952 to compensate for dwindling domestic stocks.

The newly-established Canadian Dairy Commission has placed an order for 2,240,000 pounds of New Zealand butter worth about $900,000.

The price was not disclosed but it was thought to be in the neighborhood of the 40 cents a pound that New Zealand gets from Britain.

Long Distance Phone Rates To U.S. Cut

MONTREAL (CP)—Rates for long-distance telephone calls from Canada to points in the United States will be redced as of Sunday, it was announced today.

The rate reduction, announced jointly by the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, and seven other telephone organizations forming the Trans-Canada Telephone System, will apply to all types of calls.

The most substantial savings will be made on station-to-station, night and Sunday calls of more than 900 miles.

Reductions on calls made during these times will range from 15 cents to $1.10 for the basic three minutes, depending on the distance between the Canadian and U.S. points. Charges for additional minutes will also be lowered.

Day rates on calls between Canada and the U.S. are in effect from 4:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday; night rates are effective from 6 p.m. to 4:30 a.m., Monday through Saturday and all day Sunday.

BANK PRESIDENT

Price Stability Lack Big Problem

TORONTO (CP) — A. T. Lambert, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, called today for a re-examination of federal and provincial responsibility as set out in the British North America Act.

He said the step is necessry if Canada is to achieve an "appropriate over-all economic policy."

"Such a council armed with proper research facilities, could assist in making more successful use of the traditional fiscal and monetary policy instruments in adjusting federal and provincial powers to present-day conditions, in assessing our social service programs and in the development of suitable manpower policies."

LACKED PRICE STABILITY

Mr. Lambert said that, despite high employment and a good rate of economic growth in the last two years, Canada has lacked reasonable price stability.

One trouble, he said, is that the federal government, which sets fiscal policy, now controls only one-third of all government expenditures. Provincial and municipal governments spend the other two thirds.

Mr. Lambert said it is important to evaluate public investment to be sure private needs are not being "starved to provide public goods of less value."

LIBERALIZATION

Canadian trade policy should aim at further liberalization of world trade, perhaps through a wider Atlantic-Pacific free trade association.

"Any attempts to induce us to follow policies of extreme economic nationalism should be resisted."

S. T. Paton, vice-president and chief general manager, told the meeting Toronto-Dominion reached high total in deposits, assets and earnings during the year ended Oct. 31, 1966.

Assets were $3,076,000,000, an increase of $219,000,000 from the 1965 fiscal year, and deposits rose by $199,000,000 to $2,840,000,000. Earnings were $10,900,000, or 10 per cent higher than in the previous year.

Firmness Shown By Job Market

OTTAWA (CP)—The job market showed firmness between November and December and unemployed rose by less than the seasonal rate, to 266,000 from 238,000, the monthly employment report said today.

The rise of 28,000 compared to a rise of 32,000 recorded between November and December a year earlier. However, the unemployment total in December was 14,000 above the previous December, mainly due to an increase in the labor force.

The jobless rate for December worked out to 3.6 per cent of the labor force compared to 3.5 per cent in December of 1965 and 4.1 per cent in the same month of 1964. November's rate was 3.2. Statistics were issued on the basis of a sample survey in the week ended Dec. 10 by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the manpower department.

	Dec.	Nov.	Dec.
Labor force	7,439	7,428	7,185
Employed	7,173	7,190	6,933
Unemployed	266	238	252

There was a drop of 17,000 in total jobs between November and December, smaller than normal, following the unusually large job drop that took place between October and November.

Employment dropped in construction and manufacturing but all other non-farm sectors showed increases.

MORE FOR WOMEN

The report said job opportunities for women increased substantially in the year-to-year comparison. The number of women employed in December was 129,000, or 6.2 per cent, higher than the previous December. Employed men increased by 111,000, or 2.3 per cent.

Of the total unemployed, 213,000 were men and 123,000 of these were married. There were 53,000 women looking for work; 22,000 of them married.

All regional unemployment rates rose in the month.

The Atlantic area had 5.8 per cent of its labor force out of work, compared to five per cent in November. Quebec jumped to 4.4 per cent from four and Ontario to 2.4 from 2.2. The Prairie rate was 2.6, up from 2.1, and British Columbia advanced to 5.6 from 4.9.

HARVARD University is next stop for Alan Insley, partner in Victoria consulting engineering firm of R. C. Thurber and Associates. Beginning Feb. 1 he has a six-months appointment for part-time teaching in earthwork and foundation engineering and he will attend a special course for practising engineers while completing some research studies.

Prospecting Reaches Peak

VANCOUVER (CP)—Prospecting was at a peak in 1966, with the staking of 80,000 claims in British Columbia and 15,000 in the Yukon, reported Dr. J. A. Gower, retiring president of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines, at the annual meeting on Tuesday.

Among promising properties now under active exploration are the Cariboo-Bell copper property, Newmont's Ajax molybdenum deposit, Liard copper at Schaft Creek and the copper-nickel property of Silver Standard Mines, he said.

THREE CITY ACES ON CANUCK TEAM

Three young Victorians will match their swimming talents against the best in North America on Jan. 28-29.

Victoria Olympians Mary Pat Pumfrey, 13, Lorrie (14) and her sister Louise (12) Cosby have won places on the 50-member Canadian team which will compete against U.S. swimmers in the national age group championships at Pittsburgh.

The Victoria trio had the best times in their age groups. They were chosen by Canadian coach Marv McDonald of Edmonton after an analysis of best times achieved in trials last month.

Miss Pumfrey will compete in the 100 and 200 breaststroke. Her times for the events were 1:14.5 and 2:40.3.

Lorrie Cosby will compete in the 100 and 200 backstroke and the 100 freestyle. Her times were 1:11, 2:27. and 1:01.2.

Louise Cosby will contest the 100 freestyle and the 100 breaststroke. Her times were 1:05.6 and 1:23.2.

QUITS SHORE

Pidhirny Puts Pride on Top

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Eddie Shore, Jr., son of the fiery National Hockey League Hall of Famer, today appeared the best bet as next coach of his father's hockey team after Harry Pidhirny went on the warpath and quit the Springfield Indians.

Pidhirny quit as coach of the Indians Tuesday, charging Shore the elder was robbing him of his self-respect.

The 28-year-old coach, who took over the Indians last fall after closing out an 18-year playing career, said the immediate cause of his resignation was a special 8:30 a.m. Tuesday practice which had been called without his knowledge.

He stomped off the ice, through the dressing room and left the building.

GUESS I'M NEXT'

Eddie Shore Jr. acknowledged he appeared likely as Pidhirny's successor.

"My father hasn't confirmed it, but I guess I'm next in line," he said.

Pidhirny said he had had frequent arguments in the past with Shore and had made private threats to quit on numerous occasions, but had been dissuaded each time.

"If I'm the coach, I should be out there directing practices," he said, "not having one called without my being notified so I can attend and run it."

"This has been building up for a long time and the pressure has become unbearable. No man can live with himself without retaining his self respect.

"I can't continue as coach of the Indians without sacrificing my pride," he said. "I'm just not built that way."

TROUBLES APLENTY

During his career, Pidhirny played centre for the Indians, Baltimore, Syracuse, Philadelphia and Providence of the AHL and San Francisco of the Western Hockey League. He also played two games with the NHL Boston Bruins during the 1957-58 season.

Pidhirny's angry resignation is the second major incident to rock the Indians in the last month. Three weeks ago, Shore the elder suspended four players and the rest of the team struck in protest.

Several practices were missed but no games were missed before the players returned to the fold.

Springfield is in fourth place in the American Hockey League's five-team Western Division.

CASSIUS CLAY

Board Flattens Cassius

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay appears to be hanging on the ropes today in his battle to avoid military service, but his lawyer said the fight with Uncle Sam still is in the early rounds.

"The champ is far from in a jam—we may knock them out on this," said lawyer Hayden Covington. He added he's prepared to go as high as the U.S. Supreme Court to try to exempt Clay from the draft as a Black Muslim minister.

A five-man state selective service appeals board in Frankfort, Ky., refused Tuesday to classify Clay as a conscientious objector. The decision was unanimous, blocking any appeal to Washington and leaving him 1A and prime for the draft.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Clay, whose 25th birthday is next Tuesday, was in Houston, Tex., training for a Feb. 6 title defence against Ernie Terrell. The champ said he didn't think the latest draft ruling would effect his career immediately.

Covington went further than that—he estimated it might be months or years before Clay's draft status finally is clarified.

Besides deferment as a conscientious objector, Clay also has filed for draft exemption as a minister in the Black Muslim faith, which he embraced three years ago under the name Muhammad Ali.

Canucks Compete In World Games

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 50 Canadians will compete in the 1967 World Students Games in Tokyo next August, the Canadian Union of Students announced Tuesday.

Canadians will compete in eight sports—basketball, fencing, gymnastics, judo, swimming, tennis, track and field and volleyball.

No Doubt About It . . . Nancy Greene IS Elite

GRINDELWALD (AP) — Canada's Nancy Green outclassed the world's skiing elite today to win the giant slalom of the Swiss international ski championships nearly a second ahead of Annie Famose of France.

Dressed in red, Canada's elegant team tunics, 23-year-old Miss Green, from Rossland, B.C., flashed down the icy course to finish in one minute, 36.06 seconds.

Miss Famose, who was next, was timed with 1:36.93.

The two girls were favored by early starting numbers, and French champion Marielle Goitschel, with starting No 15, was lucky to place third with 1:37.47.

THIRD MAJOR WIN

It was Nancy's third decisive victory in an international classic this season and confirmed her as one of the world's best skiers.

She won both the slalom and giant slalom in the international meet at Oberstaufen, Germany, last week.

The 1,230-metre-long course, with a total drop of 310 metres, was unusually difficult and the gates were placed in such a way as to require frequent sharp turns on the icy surface.

WAITED ANXIOUSLY

Nancy, who was fifth down the track in the 68-women field from nine nations, stood anxiously at the finish watching her competitors come down one by one with slower times than hers, but she refused to accept congratulations until all her serious rivals were down, saying: "You don't shake hands until it's all over. That brings bad luck."

She said the course was "very hard indeed" because of the sharp corners which made it difficult to keep up speed.

The 23-year-old Notre Dame university student placed fourth in the giant slalom at last year's world championships at Portillo, Chile, but was then racing with an arm hurt in training.

Official results showed that Nancy was more than one second ahead of Miss Famose at the halfway point and lost nearly two-tenths of a second to her main rival in the lower part of the course.

Two other French girls, Christine Beranger and Florence Steurer, took fourth and fifth places to give the powerful French team four out of the first five places.

TV TRIP BETTER THAN PAYING $12

Burt Rose, who supervises sales on behalf of Pete Rozelle, pro football commissioner, said Tuesday about 52,000 tickets to the Los Angeles Coliseum game have been sold, with another 41,000 left.

The rate of sale has been picking up, Rose said, adding:

"Los Angeles has always been a very fine day-of-the-game city, but it is hard to tell on a game like this when you're dealing with tickets that cost $12 and $10 for the better seats as compared to a day-of-the-game sale of the Los Angeles Rams games where it's in the $5 bracket."

With a television blackout in store for the Los Angeles area, travel to Bakersfield, San Diego or Palm Springs, Calif., where the game may be seen on TV, is expected to be heavy.

Five Rangers Bolster NHL All-Star Squad

NEW YORK (AP)—Rod Gilbert, the National Hockey League's leading goal scorer, and Ed Giacomin, its top goaltender, were among five members of New York Rangers named Monday by coach Sid Abel to round out the NHL's All-Star team.

Abel, coach of Detroit Red Wings, will handle the All-Stars, who play the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens in the annual classic at Montreal Jan. 18.

Abel also named three members of Boston Bruins, two from his own Red Wings and one from Toronto Maple Leafs to complete the 19-man squad.

Picked from the Bruins were centre Murray Oliver, left winger Johnny Bucyk and defenceman Ted Green. Veteran centres Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio were selected from Detroit and another centre, Dave Keon, was picked from Toronto.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Fullback Cookie Gilchrist, who rams opposing American Football League linemen with relish, also likes his comforts.

Cookie's new car, provided by Miami Dolphins, includes: A seat warmer, twilight signal that switches on the headlights when it gets dark, push-button trunk lid, rear-window defroster, four-speaker stereo radio and six-way adjustable seats.

It also has a device that automatically dims the lights for an oncoming car, an adjustable steering wheel, rear vents, tinted glass, air conditioning, cruise control for consistent highway speed, front disc brakes, and other extras.

The team provides Gilchrist, a veteran of several years in Canadian pro football as well as the American league, with a new car each year as part of his contract.

Stolle Signs Pro Contract

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Australian tennis ace Fred Stolle has signed a contract to play professionally with the International Professional Tennis Association, executive director Wally Dill has announced.

Dill said Stolle would join fellow Australian Rod Laver Jan. 25 in Brisbane, Australia, to kick off a world tour against Dennis Ralston and Pancho Gonzales of the United States.

Refs Are Worse Says Russ Coach

Canadians Score Another Victory Over Soviet Club

TORONTO (CP) — Russian coach Anatoli Tarasov threatened to delay a game between his touring national hockey team and Canada's national team Tuesday night when informed that a Russian referee would not be used.

He was even less enchanted with Canadian refereeing after losing 4-3 to the Canadians at Maple Leaf Gardens before a crowd of more than 16,000.

The Canadians have won two games and tied the other against the Russians in the last six days.

"I can't understand it," Tarasov told Frank Mahovlich of the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs after the game.

"The Canadian referees were good until this year. This year, the referees are not so good."

Referees Brian Lewis and Bob Nadin of Toronto handed out five penalties to each team, but the Russians were the only ones to capitalize, scoring the only power-play goal at 16:44 of the second period while Carl Brewer was sitting out a holding penalty.

Actually, neither team missed an opportunity to employ sticks and elbows in a fashion not intended to score goals.

LEARNED LESSON?

The Canadians, who may have taken a lesson in the finer points of clutch and grab tactics of former NHL defencemen Brewer and Jack Bownass, appeared to get the better of the Russians in the roughing tactics.

Bownass and Brewer were at their best, seizing every opportunity to exasperate their opponents along the boards and at the blueline.

O'SHEA PRAISED

O'Shea, who graduated from Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series at the end of last season, earned the praise of coach Jackie McLeod for his strong play.

"He was really moving out there and digging all the time," McLeod said, adding that O'Shea was probably the most improved member of his team.

McLeod also pointed out that Canada's three-game record against the Russians might indicate the outcome of the world championships at Vienna in March.

"We're much stronger," he said. "We've learned to play much better positional hockey than we did in past seasons and now we are waiting for the Russians instead of chasing them."

KEY PLAYERS MISSING

McLeod was quick to reply that the Russians had all their players in the linep for Sunday's 3-3 tie against the Canadians in Montreal.

"It was a tie, but we outshot them 42-18 and they had all their best performers in uniform," he said.

The Canadians won the Centennial hockey tournament in Winnipeg last week with a 5-4 win over the Soviets.

Both teams appeared to have trouble Tuesday negotiating the Gardens ice and McLeod said afterwards that he feels sorry for Toronto Maple Leafs who must play 35 regular-season games on it.

"If I had to play 35 games on that, I'd go crazy," he said. Both goaltenders, Winnipeg-born Wayne Stephenson for Canada and Victor Konovalenko for the Russians, were outstanding.

The teams meet in the final game of the Russian tour in Kitchener Thursday.

Leafs Will Take Chance on Jinx Against Blades

If that attendance jinx is catching, then the obvious thing Victoria Maple Leafs should wish for tonight is just an average crowd for their Western Hockey League date with Los Angeles Blades.

WHL turnstiles clicked merrily (except in Victoria) last week, and you could hear the home-town teams moan from border to border.

In Los Angeles Saturday night, the Blades drew their largest home crowd of the season — and fell to Oakland Seals.

The same night in San Diego, a record throng of 13,089 turned out — largest crowd in the league this season. Naturally, the Gulls fell to Seattle.

The next night (Sunday) in Portland, the turnout was 10,075, largest home crowd of the season for the Buckaroos.

However, the Leafs are willing to risk the big-crowd jinx at Memorial Arena tonight when they go gunning for a share of fifth place at 8:15.

Despite the recent experiences of other clubs, the Victorians are convinced that encouragement from seats full of home-town fans can be a big help.

Against the Blades they'll be clashing with a club that seems determined to improve its fifth-place position. Coach Fern Flaman's club looked anything but fifth-placers Sunday when they clipped the league-leading Buckaroos 4-1 in Portland and won't care anything about crowd figures tonight as they attempt to beat back the challenge of the Leafs.

★ ★ ★

Victoria's Larry Keenan, who missed 24 games before returning to the lineup Dec. 28, was singled out as the WHL's "Player-of-the-Week" because of a five-point performance.

He's scored in six of the seven games he has played and takes a four-game point streak into tonight's game at Memorial Arena.

Portland captain Art Jones scored goals in both of his team's games last week to hold first, a spot he's held since the start of the season, in the scoring race. Jones now has 50 points on 23 goals and 27 assists in 32 games.

Los Angeles' Dick Meissner picked up five points in three games to move into second with 45 points, Meissner, Jones and Seattle's Larry Lund are tied for the goal-scoring lead with 23 each.

Seattle's Guyle Fielder, meanwhile, turned goal-scorer with three in four games last week but also earned an assist and still leads all playmakers with 31 for the season.

★ ★ ★

Portland's Don Head yielded eight goals in two games last week but still leads all netminders with a 2.71 goals-against mark for the year. His teammate, Rick Charron, is second at 2.86 and Don Simmons of Vancouver is third at 2.89.

But the goalie moving up the fastest is Seattle's Jimmy McLeod. Bombed for eight goals by Portland last Nov. 13, McLeod left the ice with a 3.86 goals-against mark and was rested until Dec. 23. In six games since returning to action, McLeod has yielded only 11 goals (a 1.83 average) and his season mark has dropped to 2.92.

ICE CHIPS: Maple Leafs' Andy Hebenton will be featured on national television network tonight . . . Scenes from "Andy Hebenton Night" are scheduled to be shown (Channel 8) between periods of tonight's Toronto-Montreal telecast . . . San Diego's Jim Watson is off by himself in the badman department . . . His 102 penalty minutes are tops in the league . . . Victoria's Sandy Hucul needs to be tagged with seven more minutes to make it an even 1,000 minutes in his WHL career . . . Vancouver's Phil Maloney is looking for two assists to make it to the 500 circle . . . Jones is close with 494.

IMPRESSIVE PRIZE LIST . . . . . . FOR MARCH 13-19 EVENT

Centennial 'Spiel Has 'Em Talking!

Curlers know a good thing when they see it and they see the Centennial International Bonspiel with rose-colored glasses.

The 'spiel is two months away (March 13-19) but more than 25 per cent of the available 96 spots have been filled. This included 13 out-of-town entries complete with $20 deposit, half the over-all fee.

In the secondary events the T. Eaton Co. and The Bay offer as first prizes a matched set of de luxe luggage, and made-to-measure suits.

Winners of the two tertiaries will receive from Fairfield Moving and Northwestern Creamery 35-millimetre cameras with tripod and flash and two-channel 10-transistory receivers.

Four draws will be held on the first two days of competition at Allan's Curling Club to ease the congestion at Victoria Curling Club, hub of the 'spiel competition.

Each rink is assured of a minimum of six games in the six trophy events.

A feature of the 'spiel will be the International Tankard event between six Canadian and six American rinks. It will start March 18. Draws will be arranged so that curlers can compete in the Tankard and the Centennial.

Centennial entries will be guests of the provincial government at a closing night banquet in the Empress Hotel.

Bonus Payoff Certain For Mikita, Giacomin

MONTREAL (CP)—It's nearly bonus time in the National Hockey League.

And centre Stan Mikita, of Chicago Black Hawks, and goaltender Ed Giacomin, of New York Rangers, appear certain to collect the mid-way money for their performances during the season's first half.

The NHL awards bonuses of $500 to the scoring leader, $250 to the runner-up and $250 to the top goaltender after all clubs have played 35 games in the circuit's 70-game schedule.

With the Hawks still two games away from their half-way point, Mikita holds a 16-point lead in the individual scoring race with 17 goals and a league-leading 35 assists for 52 points.

And the league says that unless Montreal Canadiens post two successive shutouts in their next two starts, Giacomin will pocket the $250 bonus for goaltenders.

The Ranger goalie has a personal average of 2.15 goals against in New York's 36 games, best in the league. Canadiens' Charlie Hodge is close behind at 2.16.

Ken Wharram of Chicago, one of Mikita's linemates, is second in scoring and stands to collect the $250 bonus as the runner-up in the scoring race.

He has 19 goals and 13 assists for 36 points, a three-point leader over Canadiens' Bobby Rousseau, the only man with a chance to catch him as Canadiens are also two games away from the half-way mark.

Here's Howe Mixing With Leaders

In the scoring derby, Rousseau is tied in third place with Phil Goyette of New York. Each has 33 points.

Gordie Howe of Detroit scored his 700th NHL goal last week, helping him into fifth place where he is tied with teammate Norm Ullman at 32 points.

In the nets, Giacomin and Cesare Maniago of New York are the league's best combination with a goals-against average of 2.28. Montreal's Hodge and Gump Worsley are in second spot with a combined average of 2.42.

DOUG HARVEY

Doug Harvey Joins Detroit

CHIVAGO (AP) — Doug Harvey is back in the National Hockey League.

The man who once maintained the James Norris Memorial Trophy for his defensive work has the task of getting Detroit Red Wings back into contention for a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

Harvey won the Norris Trophy a record seven times while with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

But he's been away from the big time for more than three years, and is 42 years old, a month younger than Johnny Bower, the ageless goaltender for Toronto Maple Leafs.

Harvey not only thinks he can help the Wings regain respectability in the NHL but says that if he were not shackled to his defence duties he could play up front and score 20 goals a season.

STILL IN SHAPE

"Basically, the job on defence is getting the puck and I can still do it," says Harvey.

"I'm in shape. I played 45 minutes a game at Baltimore. I only played one game at Pittsburgh before Detroit recalled me.

"I haven't seen the Wings play this year but if I didn't think I could help them, I wouldn't be here. I guess coach Sid Abel feels the same way. I can still hold my own.

Harvey's recall is part of a last-ditch effort by Detroit to get into the playoffs. Currently in fifth place and seven points behind Montreal, the Wings recently brought up defenceman Howie Young to bolster their ranks.

Harvey is ready to play against the Black Hawks in Chicago tonight when the Wings try to break a road slump. Detroit can show only one tie and 17 defeats in its last 18 road games.

VIKING VIEWS

By MIKE WOODLEY

"Last year they won the cup on spirit," exhorted the voice. "They're a good bunch of boys; they're intelligent and they catch on quick, which is a big help." The speaker was Wallace Milligan, University of Victoria Viking soccer coach, and the cup he referred to was the second division goblet his team collared last spring.

Over the summer months, with the silverware safely tucked away in the university's athletic coffers, Milligan and his boys anxiously awaited the arrival of the 1966-67 Victoria and District Soccer League season, for with the second division title goes automatic elevation to the first division.

When September rolled around the Viking steeds were in the starting gate champing at the bit. They were ready for the challenge. The first hurdle was the McGavin Cup chase. The Vikings broke in strong fashion, pressing Canadian Scottish down to the wire before bowing 2-1 in the final match.

In league action Milligan's boys have settled into a steady pace, playing solid .500 soccer. As they round the turn (Christmas exam break) and head for home, Vikings find themselves in sixth place, but only five points back of league-leading Canadian Scottish and with a game in hand on the Scots.

Is Milligan disappointed with his team's standing in league competition, considering Vikings' fine McGavin Cup showing? "Not at all," he says. "I'm quite pleased. There's an awful difference between the two divisions, and with the players we have we're doing very well."

* * *

If Milligan is happy with his club's performance to date, Tony de Groot, coach of the university's second soccer team, must be ecstatic. He has his Norseman tooling along atop the second division ladder after a 4-1 triumph over Island Tug last Sunday. It was Norsemen's first game in the new year, and the Vikings, not to be outdone by "little brother," also opened 1967 with a bang by trouncing Gorge 5-0 the same day.

There are many games to be played yet before the 1966-67 season is history, but judging by present circumstances it does not seem too far-fetched to gaze ahead and visualize two University of Victoria teams competing for top honors in the city's premier division.

With hundreds of Victoria school children playing soccer these days, the future looks bright indeed for campus teams. Many of today's school-age youngsters will find their way to Uvic's halls of higher learning and soccer fields and could conceivably make the university a power in soccer circles in the years to come.

* * *

Jim Crawford is our new goalie this year, when he isn't suffering from the soccer player's bugbear. Jim has suffered considerable knee trouble but when healthy he is a very aggressive goalie.

Ed (Doggy) Chala (fullback) who provides the — ah — bulk on the defence. Ed is one of the veterans who gives the team much of its spirit.

* * *

Jack Magi (centre half) is another newcomer who is very welcome in the Viking camp. He is a big fellow who can put an impressive boot to the ball.

* * *

Joe Milligan (inside) is another attacker of repute. Unfortunately he will be lost to the Vikings for six weeks for a knee operation.

Greg Pearson (centre) is our persevering pivot who, inspite of all his trials, usually has the last say as the opposition goalie picks his shots out of the back of the net.

Oscar Valdal (wing), while a high scoring and speedy winger, is also an excellent playmaker.

These members constitute the 'first team' and little has been said of those who wait patiently on the sidelines, Grant Mebs and George Kemshaw. They can, however, rest assured that they are not forgotten and are important cogs in the Viking machine.

Toronto Heading For Gate Record

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Toronto Board of Trade, co-sponsors with a Canadian brewery of the $200,000 world golf tournament at their club next summer, have announced that more than $75,000 in tickets have been sold.

The record gate for a golf tournament in Canada is $81,000 set last year at the Canadian Open in Vancouver.

Hoop Training Camp

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Basketball Association has announced a training camp will be held next summer to select a team to represent Canada at the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg in August.

Eager Rearguard Fined, Set Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Defenceman John Brophy of Long Island Ducks has been fined $100 and suspended for three games, Tom Lockhart, president of the Eastern Hockey League said.

Lockhart said Brophy pushed a linesman during a game against Florida Rockets in Jacksonville Dec. 26. Earlier, the defenceman had received a major penalty for fighting plus a 10-minute misconduct.

NEWFOUNDLAND

'Babies' Building A Province

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

"We are the babies of Confederation," I was reminded by George Giannou, member of the federal centennial commission for Newfoundland, who was in Victoria with his wife Marie, for the inauguration of the Centennial Train.

Their home is in St. John's and they can boast that their families go back many generations in the life of Canada's newest province.

They remember the days when Newfoundland was a "country" and not a province. When anyone "going out to Canada" went through customs and immigration. When there was two separate railroad divisions on their island, the local and the "foreign" express that used a car ferry to take its passengers "to the mainland."

* * *

These are things that are well in the past now, George Giannou told me, "and it is only the very old who remember them with any nostalgia."

Even they bring them to life in reminiscences only for they are well aware that the benefits gained by entering Confederation far outweigh any advantages they may have had as an isolated country.

He cited old age security, family allowances and unemployment insurance as outstanding examples of the "better way of life" that has come to his province.

In the old days a person had to be 75 and pass a Means Test before receiving $30 a quarter for a couple; children were often kept from school because they were too poorly fed and poorly clad to attend and those who were out of work stood in a street queue to draw the dole.

"Now these cheques come regularly to their doors, with the result that pride and dignity has been restored and these people can plan ahead and take an interest in what is going on around them."

* * *

Turning quickly from this phase of Newfoundland life Mr. Giannou told me with every evidence of pride that "although we have only been a member of Confederation for 18 years already we can say that 50 per cent of our population is Canadian by birth. That's a pretty good average."

This is the generation that will benefit most, he believes, from what has been labelled "our golden age in history."

For generations Newfoundlanders have lived by fish and the forests. But fish and timber do not build an all-year-round economy, he points out. "That is why we looked around for another leg on which to stand. And we found it in our mineral riches."

* * *

It is not surprising that Newfoundland is "the baby" of Confederation, this quiet spoken man from St. John's believes.

"She was much farther away from the mainland than Prince Edward Island — or even your own Vancouver Island," he reminded me.

"We did have two delegates away back at that second Confederation conference but it wasn't until after the last World War that events encouraged our entry."

He pinpointed these events as the serious effects in Newfoundland of a pre-war depression which resulted in the loss of responsible government and the country's strategic role in continental defence during the war, which permitted economic recovery and political reform.

* * *

This brought forward once again the proposals of union with Canada. There was a referendum on the subject in 1948 that came up with an affirmative vote and in 1949 Newfoundland, "the fortress isle," became our 10th province.

The people knew this union would not solve all of their problems. However they hoped that it would give them the best chance to solve them.

According to George Giannou this hope has been realized.

"We're going ahead in Confederation," he said, "and we are proud and happy to be Canadians!"

HEFTY FINES LOOM FOR STAPLE SHOOTERS

City manager Dennis Young and recreation facilities director Jack Morgan were instructed by Victoria recreation and community services committee Monday to work out a system to end the practice.

Mr. Morgan remarked that when the same problem was faced in Chicago, a number of offenders were caught and fined heavily.

The matter was raised by Ald. Cecil Parrott, who said small objects on the ice are a danger to hockey players. Ald. Hugh Ramsay said steel staples are being shot from elastic bands or sling shots, threatening eye injuries.

HOME GARDEN

Begin Seeding Now For a Fast Start

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

Newcomers might well ask why we are beginning to talk about seed sowing of bedding plants while January is still less than half-way along.

The answer is that experience has taught us that some of the most desirable are slowest to reach flowering size, and also that some of the hardiest may be planted outdoors during April if we have them prepared by that time.

If we delay all of our seed sowing until one time, late March, for instance, there will be too many seedlings on hand at one time clamoring for space and attention. And they will be almost a month later to commence blooming.

Snapdragon seed sown indoors around Jan. 21, and having the seedlings brought along in flats with only the slightest heat, will be ready for hardening in coldframes during March.

April planting out into the garden beds will result in first blooms before the end of May.

Lobelia is notoriously slow in its early stages, but it is so lovely when blooming all summer that it is certainly worth the effort of making a January sowing in a slightly heated greenhouse or a frost-free sunporch.

Pansies are a hardy annual which need a little warmth only for germinating the seed; then a cooler place is better.

Once the seedlings are established in their flats, pansy plants will do best in a place outdoors where they get plenty of light, sun when available, but shelter from cold wind.

This early start on seed sowing is more needed when the gardener has a heavy clay loam in the garden beds, for this type of soil holds moisture longer than a sandy loam and is often too wet for getting any preparation done before May.

Man Shot to Death Protecting Purse

NEW YORK (AP)—A 61-year-old man was shot to death early Sunday as he and his wife were accosted by six Negro youths as the couple attempted to board a bus in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn.

The vicvtim was identified as Leon Negri, who is white.

The youths tried to snatch a pocketbook from Negri's wife, Elora, just as a bus pulled up to the curb. Negri tried to protect his wife and was shot in the back. Mrs. Negri retained hold of her handbag.

Arthur Mayse

Like any city with a history worth mentioning, Victoria has certain unregistered and ectoplasmic citizens whom I for one would just as soon not encounter.

There's the Oak Bay clanker, for instance, who occasionally rattles a chain or some other item of hardware in a suburban basement, and the wistful female spectre of Golf Course Point.

Except on dark and windy night, I incline to take this sort of thing casually. So do a couple of friends who, on a dark and windy night about two years ago, began to wonder just what went on in their newly-acquired Rockland area residence.

Lights, for no apparent reason, dimmed themselves. Then the doorbell would ring, but not to the touch of any human finger.

This was all too mysterious for comfort, especially since the gracious Dutch colonial with its high ceilings and ornate plaster-work boasted a scandalous legend.

As the tale ran, a tycoon who wintered in Victoria had built the place, circa 1914, as a bower for his beautiful mistress.

The doorbell chimed again; and practical-minded though they are, the new owners began to wonder whether the long-gone lovely wanted her house back.

It would be nice if we could break off the account right here. But there are other reasons for lights that dim and doorbells that ring, and a flashlight check of the basement revealed the answer in the shape of a defective master fuse.

Too bad: but we still have that white flitter one of you reported to me from a Greater Victoria woodland . . . and while it's probably a strayed Arctic owl, who can be sure?

★

A year or two ago in this corner, I uttered some fretful words about calendars that failed to purvey enough information to the householder.

Well, it's calendar time again; and to you, J. L., my grateful thanks for another North Countryman, 1967 version.

Even though I'll not be fishing the streams controlled by the Yorkshire Ouse River Board, it's good to know that they'll open to anglers on the first of June, a day which I trust will be properly warm, with a light breeze from the south.

Fox hunting (pink coats, hounds and fine horses) will commence on Oct. 31, to an accompaniment of protests from those who abhor blood sports. More to my taste are the Quarter Days, the first of which will be Lady Day on the 25th of March.

★

The old folk had to wait over-long and were hustled through too fast.

School children should have been given a holiday so they could visit the train without cluttering up the scene for their elders.

It favored Quebec (a French-Canadian viewer felt it leaned toward the English), failed to deal adequately with the fur trade, and slighted British Columbia.

And so on, with a moppet administering the capper. She found it all very disappointing after Disneyland.

With this in mind, it now becomes obvious that what Ottawa should have done is send out nine trains, with a narrow-gauge tenth for Newfoundland.

Each would crowd the rest of Canada into one car, while it gave the remaining five to lavish displays of the province to which it was assigned.

And that's it, except to chide the Saturday Review for permitting Lord Thomson of Fleet to style himself a Canadian in a probably ghost-written take-out on Canada.

HOW HEAVY? That's what public works department employees George Popham, left, and James Winger wondered as plans were being made for shipping of Legislative Chamber desks to New Westminster for ceremonial opening of 28th British Columbia Legislature and return to Victoria next day. They found out—100 pounds and there are 55 of them.

Operation Chairlift To End in Sitdown At New Westminster

About seven times the normal number of spectators who have witnessed the ceremonial openings each year of the legislature over the past century will be on hand later this month for the 101st occasion.

But there will be about seven times more work for government employees too as they transfer the legislative assembly's furniture and paraphernalia to New Westminster for the event.

The ceremony—augmented by the additional traditions of choosing a speaker for the newly-elected legislature — will be staged in the Queen's Park Arena, Jan. 24.

EXACT ANNIVERSARY

The date was picked because it is the precise 100th anniversary of the first session of the first B.C. legislature which was held in the short-lived capital of New Westminster after union of the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

The 55 desks and chairs of the enlarged and redistributed 28th legislature will be placed in the centre of the arena in the same line-up they will have when the whole show comes back to Victoria the following day.

"It's expected up to 7,000 people will witness the opening," said L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

The arena — usually resounds to the rough-and-tumble thumping of lacrosse players and the roaring of fans but officials hope the loudest sounds this year will be the traditional desk-drumming after MLAs applaud their new speaker — likely to be William Murray of Prince Rupert again.

NO HECKLING

They also have their fingers crossed there will be no audience heckling or cheering as Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes reads the speech from the throne while author Premier Bennett listens.

Outside the arena, there will be a show for those who didn't get a seat, with the colorful arrivals of the dignitaries marked by the Royal New Westminster Regiment Band and the Royal salute given by the Ancient Order of the Hyack Anvil Battery which also gave the salute 100 years ago.

'SUPER PORT' TALKS HERE NEXT WEEK

National Harbors Board Chairman Howard Mann of Ottawa will come here next week to discuss the broad future of port facilities along the entire B.C. coast.

He will meet commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner and Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark next Thursday to evaluate all the ports but concentrate on Vancouver Harbor and a proposed "super-port" at Boundary Bay near Tsawwassen.

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Mann arranged the meeting.

"We are glad we have caught his attention on the necessity of expanding port facilities on the west coast and in particular Greater Vancouver," said Mr. Bonner.

Teachers at Wage Talks 'Like Hoffa's Teamsters'

By DESMOND BILL
Times Eeducation Reporter

Teachers "want to be professionals but they act like Hoffa's Teamsters" when it comes to salary negotiations.

That is the sort of impression school trustees sometimes have when they become embroiled in contract talks.

So said Peter Bunn, chairman of Greater Victoria School Board, at a meeting Tuesday night of the district trustee-teacher co-operative committee.

Mr. Bunn told how some trustees react when the committee discussed ways to avoid "the annual months of hate" that usually accompany the yearly dispute about salaries.

Trustee Dr. Carron Jameson said negotiations "always become a fight. This is the nature of the present method. But there are other ways."

REVIEW BOARD

Dr. Jameson suggested one such way: the setting up of a review board, consisting of persons nominated by both sides, to settle salary matters.

He said the use of intermediaries would prevent the bitterness that always creeps in when trustees and teachers bargain directly with one another.

Dr. Jameson pointed out that in the past few years this is actually what has happened since each year both sides have been unable to reach agreement and the issue has gone before an arbitration board.

Ray Wunderlich, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said it is impossible to over-emphasize the importace of improving the method of wage negotiations.

He suggested the co-operative committee could handle negotiations. He said the committee has been able to handle some loaded issues amicable and should be able to use the same approach on the question of salaries.

Irvine Dawson, a principal, agreed the present method is not entirely satisfactory but added, "My experience goes back to the time before we had bargaining rights and that was pretty unpleasant too."

Each side ended by agreeing to examine the other's proposal and to discuss it with their respective groups. They will bring back ther recommendations at a later meeting.

Friends of Louis: He's Healthy, Still Wealthy, Wiser Than Us

Louis the parrot is fine, thank you.

These questions were answered today.

But the poser concerning Louis' whereabouts remains a secret locked in the hearts of his caretaker, Yue Wah Wong, 1706 Denman, and his lawyer, J. Howard Harman.

Louis' welfare is of community, even world interest because of a will left by his former owner, the spinster Victoria Wilson. She left a fortune for Louis' care by Mr. Wong with a stipulation her parrot should live out its days in her old home which now is the White House Apartments, 737 Courtney.

Louis was moved on the weekend. Neither Wong nor his wife will say where he is now. Mrs. Wong said he will be lodged elsewhere in future.

HE'S ALIVE

And today she told a reporter that there are no grounds for speculation Louis is dead, despite his 102 years. He could reach 300.

"He's in the best of health," she said.

Meanwhile a spokesman for the present owners of the White House said he has no knowledge of the removal of any covenants which would permit Louis' removal and development of this old home—one of the choicest pieces of downtown real estate.

When Miss Wilson died in 1947 her property was purchased by a New Westminster man who was unable to fulfill his plans for a modern high-rise on the site.

A clause in the transfer documents stipulated Louis' environment must never be disturbed in his lifetime.

CAR PARK FIRM

Today it was learned the property was transferred again to a Victoria firm, Capital Car Parks Ltd. This firm permitted development of part of the land as a parking area, but the old house was untouched except for its renovation for flats.

Directors of the company are George James Schaffer of Dublin and William C. Mearns of Victoria, an executive of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Mr. Mearns said from Vancouver he could not account for the removal of the bird from the property.

He said that while he is no longer a major shareholder in the property, he knows of no new use indicated for the proerty.

He said he also is unaware of any changes which might have affected the terms of the Wilson will.

"Anything which has occurred with respect to moving the parrot has been done by the executors of the will," he said.

Saanich Areas Fret About Elk Lake Use

The Metro Health Board has recommended against relaxing a swimming and boating ban at the northwest corner of Elk Lake.

The recommendation came after Central Saanich expressed concern about requests made to the Victoria-Saanich Beach and Parks Committee for permission to swim and boat in the area.

"A population of about 10,000 on the north end of the peninsula depend on the Elk Lake water supply," Coun. Charles Mollard, chairman of the Central Saanich water board, said.

The board wanted to make sure every precaution is being taken to safeguard the water from pollution, he said.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer, said Saanich has two bylaws prohibiting boating and swimming in the area.

They should not be relaxed, he said, because the intake on the westerly part of the lake is a source of water for Central Saanich, North Saanich, the B.C. Government Ferries and Sidney.

The Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee sounded out the health board on the feasibility of permitting swimming near the water intake.

W. H. Warren, parks administrator, noted that at one time there was a popular swimming spot about 1,000 feet from the intake.

ROWING CLUB

The University of Victoria has applied for a lease in the area for a University Rowing Club.

The Elk Lake Water Skiing Association also sought permission to build a wharf on the northwest corner.

Dr. Whitbread recommended that the applications for leases be refused and the rowing club's lease be withdrawn.

NO SOULS, SAYS CLERIC

Christian Burial 'Wrong for Pets'

Pets should be buried decently and respectfully but without religious ceremony, the president of Victoria Council of Churches said today.

Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons was commenting on a report from Toronto that a dog had been given a Christian burial with prayers offered by a church minister.

"There is no justification for this," Dr. Parsons said, "and it tends to ridicule the function of the church. I see nothing wrong with pets' cemeteries if people want them, but any kind of religious observance is out of place.

"NO BASIS"

"We have no reason for believing that animals have souls. Many pet owners like to think they have, but there is no scriptural basis for such a belief.

"The Bible makes it clear that man has a soul which survives the death of the human body. There is no suggestion that animals live after death."

Dr. Parsons said there is a tendency for people to believe that dogs have souls because of their faithful companionship and devotion to human beings.

"Everyone is entitled to their own beliefs. I believe the dog belongs to another classification of being altogether.

"As human beings we have a responsibility to be kind to animals and bury them decently. But any kind of religious Christian burial is out of place."

Esquimalt Ship Back With Sister After Mercy Call

The Mackenzie, en route to the Caribbean for training exercises, transferred her ship's doctor, Surgeon-Lt. B. G. Roberts, to the U.S. freighter Santa Adela Tuesday to treat a burned man.

Lt. Roberts applied dressings to the right arm and back of the ship's master who received second and third degree burns while putting out a small fire on board.

The master declined an offer to transfer to the Mackenzie. The doctor and navy chaplain G. E. Tarrant, who asisted him, were taken by boat back to the Mackenzie.

The Santa Adela is due to arrive in Acapulco Thursday, the same day on which Mackenzie and Saskatchewan put into the Mexican holiday resort.

On arrival in the Caribbean, the navy ships will join east coast detachments and U.S. and British forces for a two-month anti-submarine warfare exercise.

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

NAVY

HMC ships Saskatchewan and Mackenzie arrive in Manzanillo, Mexico, today, return home March 23; St. Croix out for the day; Beacon Hill arrives in Long Beach, Calif., Friday.

IF A BUTTERFLY EMERGES in January, can spring be far away, is a question Mrs. B. Norwood, 536 Whiteside Street, is asking herself today. It's velvety brown with yellow wing edges and blue spots. She found the insect in the basement of her home. Entomologists say it is unusual for a butterfly to be on the wing in winter, but this month's mild weather probably put her timing mechanism out by three months. (Times photo.)

Saanich Rejects Mount Tolmie Apartment Bid

A proposal to allow an apartment development in the Mount Tolmie area was rejected Tuesday night by Saanich council.

Council turned down an application to rezone the northeast corner of Richmond and Mayfair to medium density apartment use. This would have permitted a town house development on the site.

The proposal was rejected after residents of the surrounding area objected that the district should remain a single-family unit area.

TRUSTEES SHOCKED OVER RECENT CASE

'HOW COULD IT GO ON SO LONG?'

Nobody Wants to Put Finger on Incompetent Teacher

Greater Victoria School Board seldom hears about the incompetent teachers in the system and if it does there is little or nothing it can do to remove them.

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association does little to ensure that teachers maintain professional standards.

The committee meets regularly to discuss how both groups can co-operate to resolve mutual problems.

Peter Bunn, board chairman, raised the matter by asking the teacher representatives, "What can we do about teachers who are no good?"

Dr. Carron Jameson, the other trustee representative, emphasized the importance of the matter by referring to a recent case which came to the board's attention.

He said he was shocked that the teacher involved "could go on for so long. I'm surprised the principal either did not know, in which case he is incompetent, or else he knew and let it go on."

A. J. Longmore, assistant school superintendent, said "there is a great reticence in the profession to put the finger on these people."

He said the best persons to help inadequate teachers are their colleagues in the schools where they work. He said a teacher is more impressed by concern about his work shown by fellow teachers than by criticism from a supervisor.

Mr. Longmore said teachers "can get closer" to an unsatisfactory colleague, and give him more help, than any supervisor.

"There are people in our classrooms who are not getting this assistance," he said.

Irvine Dawson, a teacher representative, said the British Columbia Teachers' Federation has tried to "upgrade the competence" of its members but has not been too concerned "to weed out the bad ones."

He said the BCTF has a committee which will review the performance of any teacher about whom there are complaints but "the prime purpose is to salvage such a teacher."

Mr. Dawson, a principal, said he thinks part of the problem is that principals are too "reticent in rejecting unsuitable teachers" serving a probationary period.

The teacher representatives agreed to have this matter discussed among members of the GVTA in order to "make teachers more sensitive" to the problem and to find out what teachers can and should do to solve it.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Take Heed to These Words of Wisdom

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The woman who is worried about her husband having a cigar or pipe in his mouth while pouring gasoline in the power lawn mower or filling the gas tank on their boat is worrying needlessly as far as her husband is concerned.

Pipe tobacco, cigars and cigarettes do not burn at a temperature high enough to ignite gasoline. You can prove this by dousing a lighted cigarette in a pan of gasoline. Puts it out like water.

LIVING DANGEROUSLY

DEAR LIVING: Please read another letter on the same subject from another reader:

DEAR ABBY: I liked your answer to the worried wife whose husband kept a cigar or pipe in his mouth while pouring fuel into his boat and power lawn mower. You said, "There is always a chance that the fire isn't as 'out' as he thinks it is."

I am in the safety field and it doesn't take an expert to know that "unlighted" cigars or pipes do not mix with fuel. The fumes, if they are strong enough, will certainly cause an explosion.

There were 900 deaths in 1965 from firearms. Most of the victims were killed by guns which were "not loaded." (Only, they were!) Many people die from accidents because they have the "it-can't-happen-to me" attitude. According to the national safety council, 6,000 people died from fires, burns or injuries associated with fires in 1965.

A READER

DEAR ABBY: My cousin was filling a transport truck with gasoline to be delivered to service stations on a route, and while filling this truck he was smoking a cigarette.

The fumes were so powerful that the fire on the end of his cigarette ignited and my cousin was burned to death. I hope others will read this and be careful.

JACKSON, MISS.

DEAR ABBY: My sister's daughter has been engaged for a year. Both she and her fiance have good jobs and money saved, but this girl has told her mother that she wants a big fancy church wedding with all the trimmings, and if the mother doesn't pay for it, she'll run off and get married by a justice of the peace.

My sister and her husband can't afford the kind of wedding their daughter demands, and the girl refuses to spend a dime of her own money for it. My sister has a heart as big as British Columbia, and she will go into debt to put on a big wedding if she has to. How can I help my sister see that she shouldn't jeopardize her own future security to please this selfish daughter?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Your sister may have a "heart as big as B.C." but she has a brain as small as Prince Edward Island if she allows her daughter to pressure her into going into debt for a wedding. Tell your sister to tell her daughter that she can't afford a fancy wedding, that a ceremony performed by a J.P. is just as legal as any other kind, and to take her choice.

DEAR ABBY: At the bottom of your column you said, "How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on DEAR ABBY."

As soon as I find a crate large enough, I'm sending you my husband.

M.G.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Queen Mother at Clarence House—Recovering From Recent Surgery

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth the queen mother is recovering well during her convalescence from an abdominal operation last month palace sources said this week.

"I feel 100 per cent already," she told a friend who visited her at her London home, Clarence House.

The sources said there were no after-effects from the operation to remove tissue which formed after an old appendix operation. They said laboratory examination of the tissue showed no malignancy, just adhesions commonplace after such an operation.

The Queen Mother, 66, prefers to convalesce at Clarence House rather than join the rest of the royal family now staying at the Sandringham Estate in eastern England.

She still needs rest in the afternoon and early evenings whereas quiet would be hard to find in the Queen's country house with its general social atmosphere and the royal children around.

She might also be reluctant to go there at this time of year because of its associations. She went with her late husband, King George VI, in January of 1952 and it was on a cold day in early February that he died in his sleep there.

The sources said the Queen Mother is spending a lot of time at the moment writing letters of thanks in reply to some of the many hundreds which reached her during her illness and are still arriving. Some include tonic recipes intended to aid her recovery.

She is likely to go abroad for some sunshine in February, possibly to the West Indies, to complete her recovery and intends to keep up with her crowded public engagement schedule which begins in March. January and February are always blank months for the Royal Family because the weather rules out many functions and gatherings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lowman

Do you want to look from five to 10 years younger in just eight short weeks: That's a foolish question! What woman past 40 doesn't? The wonderful truth is that it is entirely possible! I have seen it happen over and over again in my classes and thousands and thousands of readers have sent me their success stories. These are women who followed my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP) which I bring to you each January.

I know from experience that many women will work for good looks when they will not work for health unless they fear they are about to lose it. It works out all right, though, because the road to beauty is the road to health. Overweight is a health hazard as well as a figure hazard.

If you have been following my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan this week you now know how to measure yourself and how to judge those measurements. You also know how to decide what your ideal weight is. Now is the time to talk about calories!

It's really simple! If you eat more food than your body needs for energy, the surplus will be stored as fat. If you eat less food than your body needs for maintenance and your activity, the stored-up fat will be utilized, and you will lose weight.

What is a calorie? A calorie is a unit with which we can measure the energy which various foods give us. Actually, if you eat a well-balanced diet, nutritionally, and just eat less of everything, you will lose weight safely and successfully. If you have been stuffing yourself, you might even cut in half.

However, it is best to count calories and plan your menus carefully, because many overweights are starved for essential foods because they have been in love with calorie-packed, unessential foods. Being overweight does not mean that you are well-nourished. The opposite may be true, and all of you might forget some of those in-between-meal, seemingly innocent items.

So count your calories carefully, every bite. The average woman will lose from two to two-and-a-half-pounds a week if she holds her daily intake to 1,200 calories. If you are quite active, "up it" to 1,400, or a bit more.

Plan your menus with four basic food groups in mind: 1, dairy products; 2, meat, eggs, cheese, fish, sea food, poultry; 3, cereals and bread; 4, fruits and vegetables. The ideal diet, even the reducing diet, will have at least two foods from each group daily.

How to divide your calorie intake? First, do not skip a meal! Study after study has demonstrated that those reducers who skip a meal are not successful. They are tired, and often give up. They miss essential foods, and more than make up for the skipped meal at another time.

Divide your allowable daily calorie intake in three meals or in four or five small meals. There is some evidence that many people reduce more successfully and happily with the four or five small meal routine.

In future columns I will give you more detailed information about this.

If you missed the first part of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan or would like to have it in booklet form, send 25 cents plus 15 cents for postage and handling and your printed name and address with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper. This booklet gives you directions for weighing and measuring, reducing exercises, a calorie chart, 15 daily slimming menus, and the BIP weight chart on which you can see your beauty line rise as your weight line drops.

Start with your feet separated. Bend forward and touch your fingertips to the floor, or as far as you can. Later you can bend farther. Now raise your trunk to the erect position and your arms extending sideways at shoulder height, palms facing forward. NOW lift your rib cage up as far as you can. Continue bending and raising.

WOOL COMES A POOR SECOND

Viruses Vanquished With Cotton

WASHINGTON — That wash-and-wear shirt may provide better protection against virus infections than the wool suit that goes with it, two researchers think.

Further, even the suit may give better protection if the humidity of the surrounding air is high, the researchers believe.

The men, microbiologist Robert W. Sidwell and biochemist Glen J. Dixon, report on their findings in the winter bulletin of the Southern Research Institute in Birmingham, Ala.

Sidwell and Dixon worked with two viruses: vaccinia virus, which is very close to that of smallpox, and polio virus, which happens to be a member of the group that includes the viruses of the common cold. They would like to study the cold virus itself, but it is far more difficult to work with in the laboratory.

Sidwell and Dixon cut out little swatches of fabric and exposed them to the viruses. Then the pieces of cloth were stored at room temperature and at humidities that were either high (78 per cent) or low (35 per cent). Then, at varying times, the researchers exposed living human cells to the viruses to see if they were still alive and infectious.

They found that:

—Both viruses persisted longer on woollen fabrics, surviving up to three or even five months.

—On cotton fabrics, the viruses often lasted less than three days. "The viruses persisted less than one day on cotton fabric treated with a chemical to give it wash-and-wear properties," the researchers added.

—Even in wool, higher humidity appeared to be linked with a rapid dropping off of the number of infectious viruses. At lower humidities, the decline took longer.

—Treatment of fabrics with some known germicidal compounds resulted in "a marked reduction in the rate of virus persistence," the researchers found.

"The results of our studies would support the theory that fabrics can play an important role in the dissemination of viruses, and would suggest that further studies should be undertaken," Sidwell and Dixon wrote.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Make Closets 'Grow' With This Extra Bar

By Penny Saver

Three of my friends who are sharing a small house have learned, the hard way, that it never pays to be without ample closet space. If you can imagine three women with trunks and suitcases full of clothing, and two average-size closets, you can probably sense their frustration about the situation. Their new neighbor told them about a device to widen closet space without re-building a whole section of the house. (Believe me, they were almost at that stage.)

This wonder is a metal bar that attaches to the wall inside a closet or in a hallway. It comes with three-quarter-inch screws to secure it to the wall. One special feature about the bar itself is that it is indented every inch for spacing hangers. There's a knob on the end to prevent hangers from slipping off. Priced at $1.98, this is the perfect item for expanding closet space. The bar, made of metal, is about a foot long.

Another spot in their house that needs a boost when it comes to a space problem is the bathroom. They have one towel rack, and are naturally in drastic need of more. I found one thing that would be ideal for my three friends. It's a towel holder that hangs down from the back of a door. It attaches by means of a thin metal bracket — so thin, in fact, that you can still close the door when the towel rack is being used. A metal bar extends down from the bracket and there are two chrome-plated towel rings on it. Price is $2.25.

The home isn't the only place where there are space problems. Our glove compartment in the car, for example, is so full of maps, necessities and odds and ends that there's not an inch of extra space left. In one shop, I found a special car light that's a must for every driver in my opinion. You needn't cram it into the glove compartment either. It has a magnet in the handle so it clamps almost anywhere inside the car. This light works when you plug the cord into the cigarette lighter socket.

A safety feature, this light flashes red for emergencies, and if you ever have a flat tire at night, use the floodlight instead. The cord is extra-long. These sell for $4.49.

Save time and space with these items. Give me a call at 382-3131 if you want to know where to find them.

CRASH INQUEST

By DAVE MacDONALD

DORION, Que. (CP)—Harold Bohart, a CNR engineman who was in the engine of a passenger train which passed a level crossing just before a freight train smashed into a school bus, said today he saw five young boys on the tracks at the crossing.

Testifying at a coroner's inquest into the deaths of 20 young people in the Oct. 7 crash, Mr. Bohart, 47, of Montreal said:

"When the engine was about 300 feet from the crossing, I saw five boys. Three ran to the south and two ran to the north.

"When our train cleared the crossing they were still in movement towards the barriers opposite the sidewalk."

The bus was stationary in front of the barrier at the south of the crossing at the time. The eastbound train was travelling about 60 miles an hour, Mr. Bohart said.

Witnesses Tuesday night told of seeing two or three boys tampering with a barrier at the crossing.

The inquest started Monday and is being presided over by Judge Marc-Andre Blain. It was set up to deal with the collision between a westbound CNR freight train and a chartered bus carrying 45 students.

Eighteen students and driver Marcel Fleury, 20, died immediately. Another student died of injuries eight days later.

The inquest is being held in this community where the collision happened, 25 miles west of Montreal.

SAW TWO BOYS

Miss Trudeau said she saw two boys aged about 13 or 14 standing beside the bus facing the barrier minutes before the collision.

She also said she saw the boy nearest the bus extend his arms under the barrier as it rose to let the bus start its fatal crossing attempt.

She was seated on the right side of the bus four or five seats from the back, next to the window. A young girl sitting beside her died in the flaming wreckage.

The bus was headed for a dance in Hudson, Que., to celebrate the fact that all students aboard had won recent student elections.

As it pulled up to the crossing, Miss Trudeau said she "noticed the barrier was coming down."

A passenger train went past, bound for Montreal, "and immediately afterwards the barrier went up."

It was at this point that she saw the two boys. She could not identify the pair.

COWICHAN ONE OF 'BLACK SPOTS'

Hepatitis Causes Concern

By DON DINGWALL

A doctor and two nurses have been recent sufferers.

Dr. Hamish Symons, director of Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, said Tuesday: "We have had a few more cases than usual in the Duncan and Chemainus areas but I would not go so far as to say there is an epidemic.

Dr. Symons said that along with Bear and Beaver Creeks at Alberni, Cowichan is one of the Island's "black spots" in regard to sanitary conditions.

BYLAW REJECTED

The large urban area of North Cowichan centred on Sherman Road and Gibbins Road turned down a $456,000 sewer bylaw last October.

Mrs. Gordon Posey, a Mary Street resident, said Tuesday she and a number of neighbors will write to the municipal council asking for the bylaw to be re-submitted.

Reeve Donald Morton said today: "It is the intention to put the bylaw to the vote again but there has to be a waiting period of six months."

Dr. Symons said his first line of attack is to support councils which propose sewer bylaws.

Infectious hepatitis exists at a low level all the time in the Cowichan district but it is difficult to obtain accurate figures on the number of cases at any particular time.

Douglas Roe, public health inspector, said: "No one can say with certainty how the virus spreads, and I can only remember one instance where it was possible to trace the disease to a specific place.

SEWAGE IN DITCHES

Raw sewage runs down the roadside ditches in the Sherman Road area which has a considerable population of young families with children.

Mr. Roe said: "The message I am concerned in getting across is that when improved water supply and sewage disposal is proposed, people should ponder the outbreaks of hepatitis before voting against bylaws."

He admitted the high cost is a valid reason for some people voting against bylaws but he suggested that in a majority of cases it is false economy.

'DAMAGING DISEASE'

"It is pretty expensive to be sick.

"Hepatitis can put a man off work for upwards of six weeks and leave him weak for a long time afterward. It's a damaging disease which can recur."

At the time the North Cowichan sewer bylaw was defeated Oct. 29, a survey showed 90 of the 600 homes in the bylaw area had defective sewage disposal systems.

Mr. Roe said people with defective disposal systems are liable to prosecution.

But, he said: "When you're trying to get a bylaw passed you don't hit a man over the head.

"By prosecuting, all you succeed in doing is making an enemy and not helping the solution.

"The high cost is a worry but waiting and not putting in a proper system is only going to make it more expensive eventually."

Cost under the defeated bylaw would have been an annual frontage rate of $50 for 25 years, a user charge of $4.20 a month and a connection fee of $100.

Fire Destroys Repair Shop Near Duncan

Truck, Cars Lost; Partially Insured

DUNCAN — "A whole life's ambition gone up in smoke," said John Feist after his auto-body, repair shop was burned to the ground Tuesday evening.

The single-storey wooden building on the Trans-Canada Highway a mile south of Duncan was in unorganized territory so no fire deartment answered the alarm.

Pat Clackson, chief of North Cowichan (South End) Volunteer Fire Department, was on the scene 15 minutes after the fire started.

"At that time the building was only burning on the south side and the fire could have been put out at that stage," he said.

Chief Clackson said because the shop is in unorganized territory and is impossible for fire departments to attend.

TRUCK, CARS LOST

The 100 by 50 foot building was destroyed along with machinery, a tow truck and three cars which were parked inside.

Mr. Feist, who leased the building from neighboring car dealer Victor Gill, said he cannot yet estimate the loss.

Mr. Feist started the business three years ago after moving here from Campbell River.

DOWNTOWN

He was in downtown Duncan when the fire started.

An employee, Werner Firster, had been working in the shop on the tow truck but about 7:15 p.m. left to go to his trailer house next door.

"Suddenly the lights in the shop went out and the place went up in flames," he said.

Cause of the fire is unknown.

Mr. Feist said his loss is only partially insured.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Jim: "Don von Elsner dedicated his book, 'The Ace of Spies', to you. Is his hero, Jason Winkman, a copy of any specific bridge expert?"

Oswald: "No. I would say that Jason Winkman is a composite of the best qualities plus a few added bad qualities of several."

Jim: "He has your nickname, Jake, and like you he is a retired naval officer."

Oswald: "The resemblance ceases there. Jake Winkman is a carefree bachelor of 39. Jake Jacoby is a 64-year-old grandfather who still refers to your mother as "the boss."

Opening lead—♠Q

Oswald: "In the book, Ivan Erdos of Los Angeles was sitting North. The bidding is not given but Winkman comments, 'South opened one heart. Ivan got to six hearts by a brilliant series of tactical bids designed to discourage a save by his nonvulnerable opponents.'"

Jim: "Here are Winkman's comments on the play: 'South won the spade lead in dummy and immediately called for a low heart and put up the ace! Incredible, you say! Nothing is incredible at the bridge table. The odds are 78 to 22 against finding all three hearts in the same hand, and half the time when they do break that way the bundle of three will lie with East. All of which makes the king of hearts an automatic play at trick two'."

Oswald: "As usual, Winkman is correct in his analysis. If West held all three hearts, South had no way to avoid a heart loser. If they were going to break 2-1 as all good trump suits should, it would not matter how South played his trumps, but actual play lost a trick to East which correct play would have guarded against."

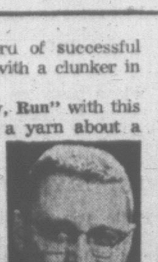
Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CBS-TV with a long, enviable record of successful comedy shows behind it has come up with a clunker in "Mr. Terrific."

The network replaced "Run, Buddy, Run" with this dull, unimaginative, crashing bore of a yarn about a meek service station attendant who becomes all powerful when he swallows a pill large enough to choke a horse.



Stephen

You can't fault actor Steve Strimpell for playing the role, just blame his 10 per cent agent for allowing his client to fall into the clutches of such a vehicle.

NBC-TV has a similar hapless-hero series spoofing comic book heroes the likes of Superman and Captain Marvel in "Captain Nice" but luckily it didn't air Monday due to a sports commitment on the Seattle outlet.

The past two seasons has produced more than its share of spoofs, proving without a shadow of doubt there is a great vacuum to be filled with an original product in the writing and production fields of Hollywood.

Unfortunately when originality does bare its infrequent head on TV there is no one around to appreciate it.

Viewers have only themselves to blame for allowing trash the likes of Mr. Terrific to infiltrate their entertainment habits.

They proved the old CBS-TV formula for comedy is one designed for success. Over and over again, shows like Andy Griffith, Gomer Pyle, Danny Thomas, Dick Van Dyke, Lucille Ball and, latterly, Family Affair bear the fact out.

So, neighbor, don't blow your cool. It can't get worse. Or can it?

TIDBITS — Thursday at 10 a.m. Canadian School Telecasts will present a program called Behind The Scenes in Television, to show the mechanics of television production . . . The National Film Board and the CBC have begun filming in Quebec City on a feature film being co-produced by the two as part of a program to mark Canada's Centennial Year.

Jason Robards Jr. has been set to tape a two-hour "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in London in February for showing on ABC-TV next season. Producer Dan Curtis says he has also obtained Laurence Harvey for "Dorian Gray," Tom Courtenay and Geraldine Chaplin for "Great Expectations" and is negotiating with Jack Palance to star in "Frankenstein."

152 WATERFRONT PROPERTIES

BUILDERS NOTE
2 LOTS — SIDNEY

Here is your chance to speculate. You know you can't buy any waterfront lot around Sidney under $120 a front foot (i.e. a lot with 100' along a beach would be $12-$15,000) But my client owns 100' right in Sidney facing the Islands and viewing beautiful Mt. Baker and is asking only $4,860. But due to a technicality that is being negotiated with the village council, he will accept any offer subject to a building permit being obtained, so, you can't lose: If you don't get a permit, you don't pay!! If you get a permit, you can build a lovely waterfront home on the combined 2 lots and might even get 2 permits for 2—a house on each lot. This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Call WILLS OF WHITTOMES, 388-4271. (Incidentally, if any builder is having trouble selling a house, give us a call. Maybe we can help. Our firm sold more than a house a day in 1966 and I was involved in more than 1 a week). J. H. Whittome & Co. Ltd., 706 Fort St.

5 Die in Fire

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fire raged through an old residential hotel on Chicago's northwest side Tuesday, and firemen said at least five persons were trapped and killed.

Department of Public Works
Extension of Time

NOTICE is hereby given that the time for the reception of tenders for FRASER RIVER IMPROVEMENTS, NEW WESTMINSTER TRIFURCATION AREA, PHASE 2, NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., due January 18, 1967, is extended to 3:00 p.m. (E.S.T.), WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1967.

. . . POLLUTION CONTROL

operation altogether.

"No person shall discharge sewage or other waste materials into the waters of the area or areas under the jurisdiction of the board," the act reads, "without a permit from the board."

In fact only 171 permits have been issued to date, better than two-thirds in the past four years.

Staff of Six

The board has a total staff of six. Four are engineers. It has no laboratories of its own.

Ontario's water pollution control agency, the Ontario Water Resources Commission, has a general manager, four assistant general managers, and a supporting staff of over 550.

Quebec's Water Board has a technical staff of 26 engineers (11 with masters degrees) and a large staff of chemists and biologists. Both agencies have their own up-to-date laboratories and technical facilities.

The B.C board's total budget for 1966 was just under $100,000 — on paper.

In fact the board only spent some $75,000 last year. Engineers and technicians the board planned to hire were the first victims of the provincial government's austerity squeeze.

Even at this the budget is up enormously from $25,000 in 1965 and $2,000 the year before.

But with this shortage of staff and money the board has had to content itself with requiring permits for new waste disposal operations and major expansions of old one while trying to gradually catch up on the most serious established offenders.

Hold-the-Line

The board has not been able to progress beyond a hold-the-line policy.

One bright spot in the pollution control picture came when three new pulp mills in the interior included extensive in-plant treatment facilities at the insistence of the control board.

Three more were turned down for their inability to undertake the extra expense. But the one interior mill that started before the board was organized — Columbia Cellulose's Celgar mill — presents a potential pollution problem.

The darkest spot in the picture is at Nelson where this city of 10,000 continues to pour its sewage raw into the Kootenay River.

Treatment would cost every Nelson resident about six cents a week, the control board estimates.

The dodge municipal authorities used in the past was a public referendum on the costs of installing sewage treatment.

"The bylaw may have been presented a little wrong as to the location of the treatment plant and the cost and such," the mayor of Nelson told The Times.

As a consequence an amendment last year to the Municipal Act frees councils from the obligation to consult their electors before spending money to comply with a control board order.

Nelson Warned

But despite a heated exchange of letters, in which the control board warned Nelson to come up with satisfactory sewage treatment plans or have plans drawn up for them, Nelson continues to pollute the Kootenay.

"We're going to do something about it eventually, but just when will depend on what the senior governments do about it," says the mayor.

If the attitude of Resources Minister Williston is any indication, the provincial government plans to do quite a lot.

"Nelson is the one really serious danger we've got in this province," he says.

"Eventually the pollution control board will have to have the power to see that pollution to that degree simply will not be tolerated.

"At some time in the future the people of Nelson are going to have to assess matters and the factor of grants between governments will not be unimportant," the minister warns.

One of the biggest problems facing pollution control agencies everywhere is the setting of the standards themselves.

Water pollution is whatever the board considers to be water pollution, according to the act.

In practice it employs the textbook definition of the pollution of water as: "The introduction into it of substances of such characteristics in such quantity that its natural quality is so altered as to impair its usefulness or render it offensive to the senses of sight, taste, or smell."

Taste, Odor

With nearly as many taste, sight and odor thresholds as there are people this really doesn't get you much further.

And the health arguments paraded when pollution action is called for are based mostly on folklore, according to the most modern medical evidence.

But some standards must be set so B.C. goes along with the water quality objectives accepted by the Pacific Northwest Pollution Control Council which includes Alaska and the northwestern states as well as B.C.

In November the council (with B.C.'s Keenan in the chair) established standards for water uses ranging from untreated drinking water to industrial and agricultural water supplies.

Each of the seven sets of standards specified requirements for bacteria, dissolved oxygen and acid contents, turbidity, temperature, dissolved and floating organic and chemical wastes, color and radioactivity and even aesthetic considerations.

Drinking water, for example, must contain only one-fiftieth the bacteria allowed for agricultural water and lack the color and sediment permitted in water to be used for agricultural purposes.

Little Money

But even if the board had enough staff and money to carefully apply these general standards to the province's sources of water pollution their problems would be just beginning.

As we saw with Nelson, persuasion is often futile and the nominal fine of $250 in the act is hardly enough to persuade municipalities or industries to install expensive anti-pollution equipment.

For municipalities, as Mr. Williston suggests, the answer may be carrot-stick coercion grants if they co-operate, pressure if they don't.

With industries a more subtle approach based on the economics of industry, has been shown to be far superior to the simple setting of absolute standards.

For contrary to common belief, the economic arguments are all on the side of the anti-pollutionists.

"The consensus among economists on the basic issue is overwhelming" notes Dr. Edwin Mills of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Pollution is unecomomic and the present set-up places a premium on economic inefficiency, "resulting in more pollution than would be desirable from the point of view of society as a whole," Mr. Mills points out.

Fee System

The remedy widely accepted by economists in the field is charging polluters for their pollution — a system of "effluent fees," Mr. Mills calls it. This scheme charges industrial polluters of air and water on the basis of the amount of pollution they produce related to the other uses of the water.

It is ironic that despite the backwardness of the provincial government in this field it was a B.C. economist, Paul Bradley of the University of British Columbia, who was invited to outline the scheme to the recent meeting of the National Council of Resource Ministers meeting in Ottawa.

Mr. Bradley pointed out that a properly operated effluent fee system gives industry a much greater incentive to improve waste disposal techniques than does the sort of effluent standard set-up we have now.

"The potential for innovation in waste disposal methods seems likely to be very large," Mr. Bradley added. "A major advance in the treatment or utilization of materials presently deemed wastes can be vastly more important than a series of marginal changes."

(An example of this sort of innovation is Trail where a huge profitable fertilizer complex has been built up around sulphur wastes previously discharged into the air in crop-destroying quantities.)

Economic Use

In addition, the effluent fee system does not put the same pressure the present system does on a firm to move away from a regulated location, or simply not locate there in the first place. Rather it encourages more eonomic use of a firm's present location.

And the fee system can be geared to induce industries to produce voluntarily the same amount of pollution control absolute standards impose.

Dr. Mills makes one final point in favor of a fee scheme which should appeal to an austerity-conscious government . . . it administers and more than pays for itself.

"Once the firm has found the most profitable rate of effluent discharge (under an effluent fee scheme) and this is known to the enforcing agency, the firm will have no incentive to discharge any amount of effluent other than the one for which it is paying.

"At this point the system becomes self-administering and the enforcement agency need only collect bills."

The control board, in the same situation, would need to spend money continually on monitoring the firm without bringing any money back in.

The details of a more comprehensive control of pollution in this province will have to be worked out.

But first the government is going to have to prove it is seriously prepared to tackle the problem before it attains the crisis level reached elsewhere on the continent.

B.C. PARTY SPLIT OVER LEADERSHIP

Tories Face Backroom 'Crunch'

By JOHN MIKA

Bubbling internal strife over the leadership question in the British Columbia Conservative Party may boil over at an annual meeting this spring to scald the provincial wing just as it did the federal party barely two months ago.

A collision over whether the recently-set March 3, 4 and 5 annual meeting in Vancouver also will double as a leadership convention appeared on the horizon today.

The backroom 'crunch' will come Feb. 5 when the provincial party executive of more than a score of officers meets again to resolve the controversy and confusion in the wake of its meeting last Saturday.

That meeting set the date for the normal annual meeting but produced considerable confusion when party president Stuart Fleming of Vernon denied an initial report that it was called to choose a new president and also a leader to fill the vacancy left when Davie Fulton re-entered federal politics in 1965.

SETTLE DISPUTE

Russel Simpson, Sidney, Vancouver Island regional vice-president of the party, told The Times he has demanded an executive meeting "before the end of this month" to settle the dispute.

He said a significant section of party officials feel they cannot continue any longer without a leader and "we certainly intend that there is a leadership election at the March meeting."

He denied reports that he and B.C. Tory MPs George Chatterton and David Pugh boycotted Saturday's executive session. Mr. Simpson said the MPs had to be in Ottawa for Monday's reopening of Parliament and he had declared publicly a year ago before accepting the vice-presidency that he could attend meetings any day except Saturdays due to his work.

'FIRST THINGS'

He said the "first thing that must be done at the next executive meeting is to appoint a nominating committee to present a slate of leadership candidates to a leadership convention."

Mr. Fleming, in a telephone interviews, said he has not seen Mr. Simpson's demand yet but already has called an executive meeting for Feb. 5, a Sunday, "specifically to accommodate Mr. Simpson's inability to come on a Saturday."

He said this executive meeting will hammer out "a recommendation to the annual meeting with respect to when a leadership convention might be held — if there are any potential candidates in sight."

RULES DIFFERENT

Mr. Fleming said the annual meeting could not double as a leadership convention because the rules for delegations are different in the two cases. He said many more delegates are permitted each group for a leadership convention than for an annual meeting.

Because a leadership convention would be large, it should be scheduled for late summer or fall rather than spring when weather conditions can keep more distant delegates away.

But Mr. Fleming was insistent that no leadership convention should be called unless potential candidates emerged in advance.

"I don't want to discourage any leadership material coming forward but until there are some potential candidates, there is no point to calling a convention," he said.

He also insisted that the executive could not form a nominating committee because this would identify the officers with particular candidates and make it difficult for the party should some other candidate win the post.

OUTSIDE EXECUTIVE

"I've been studying what has been done in other provinces when calling a leadership convention after there has been a vacancy for some time and I've found that it's standard procedure to not put up a nominating committee," he said.

"The names (of candidates) in most cases are put up by groups outside of the executive officers so the officers are in no way committed to any one of the candidates."

Only thing that both Mr. Simpson and Mr. Fleming agreed about last Saturday's meeting was that it did not discuss the leadership question.

"I don't know — I haven't a clue," Mr. Fleming said when asked how the erroneous report was made from the closed meeting.

Mr. Simpson said it was due to "faulty communications" and an overzealous public relations adviser who drafted the news release "and felt it needed to be added a bit to."

COMPUTERS MAY RUN CITY TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Victoria city council is investigating the possibility of traffic lights controlled by computer.

City engineer James Garnett has informed officials the cost of a computerized system would be $58,000, of which $46,876 would be spent on equipment.

Known as a "Selectrol" system the computer control would provide an electronic means of superimposing traffic light sequences over the major traffic control areas in the city.

The system would adjust the timing of traffic signals according to the amount of traffic at given times during the day.

It would also give firemen and policemen greater control over traffic lights during emergency runs by enabling them to pre-empt lights at key intersections.

In his report to the public works committee Mr. Garnett said once installed the system could be readily computerized and eventually "provide a sophisticated method of traffic control which we will wish to adopt in connection with adjoining municipalities in the future."

RESIDENTS BEAT HYDRO

Saanich Tosses Out Service Centre Bid

Council bowed before the pressure of 150 persons who crowded the council chamber to protest the rezoning.

The rezoning would have cleared the way for consolidation of a site at Tillicum and Trans-Canada Highway to be used for construction of a long-delayed technical vocational centre in this area.

ALTERNATIVE WANTED

B.C. Hydro owns part of the property at Tillicum and Trans-Canada and will not give it up unless it finds an alternative site for its sub-station.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said council had a difficult decision to make. He promised that municipal officials will try and find a site for Hydro south of Royal Oak and west of Patricia Bay Highway.

Coun. Edith Gunning said council faced an awkward conflict of interests — the need for the vocational school and the need for good community planning.

OBLIGATION

Bruce Hutchison, editorial director of the Vancouver Sun, who lives on nearby Rogers Ave., argued that council had a moral obligation to protect residents who live near the proposed sub-station site.

He said when these persons moved there they chose the location because it was residential or farm land. Council had an obligation to keep it that way, he said.

"The democratic function (of council) is to protect small and powerless people. We have no power, only a claim on your judgment."

A department of public works planner said the sub-station would have been well screened from surrounding homes, had little traffic, and would have included a park area.

NEW SCHOOL PURSE STILL CLOSED

The provincial government is continuing to hold back approval on new school construction.

Education Minister L. R. Peterson has told Sooke school board that urgently needed new schools will only be approved when the money market becomes easier.

Sooke school board had sought clarification of the situation from Mr. Peterson following the recent approval of a $2,165,000 building referendum for the district.

Mr. Peterson suggested the board ask only for approval of the most urgent new construction, adding "it is not a question of the government refusing to provide money for this project."

Financier Jailed On Morals Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Financier Arnold Swanson Tuesday was sentenced to two years less one day by Judge W. A. Schultz in County Court for having intercourse with a girl under 16.

The judge rejected a plea for leniency, saying the accused was 54 at the time of the offence and the girl only 15.

SWAPS JOKES

Folksy Charm Displayed By UN Envoy

NEW YORK (AP)—Nikolai T. Fedorenko, handsome chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, turned on folksy charm Tuesday night as he taped a television program for U.S. viewers.

Fedorenko, usually seen on TV in grim UN debate with envoys from the West, bubbled with mirth and good humor during his 35-minute appearance on the Merv Griffin variety show to be telecast tonight.

During the program, which is syndicated from coast to coast by the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., the tall, well-tailored diplomat swapped jokes with Griffin and showed pictures of his wife, three daughters and son-in-law.

Fedorenko's appearance on such a program apparently was without precedent. The closest thing to it in memory was premier Nikita Khrushchev's TV interview by David Susskind during the 1960 UN General Assembly.

He said the Soviet Union favored seating China in the United Nations, but could not support "the program of the Peking leadership."

Although an expert on Chinese literature who lived in China for 12 years, Fedorenko admitted he did not know what was going on there now.

Pair Treated At Hospital After Mishaps

A man and a boy were treated at Jubilee Hospital for minor injuries and released following traffic accidents Tuesday.

Frank Vucic, 3450 Calumet, suffered face cuts after a collision at Douglas and Topaz.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Hegyi Imre, 3450 Calumet, which collided with a car driven by David Salter, 100 Fernhill, about 3:40 p.m.

He was treaded for head injuries.

Jews Plan Major Protest Over CBC Guest

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Jewish Congress will launch a "massive demonstration" if Adolf von Thadden, a West German neo-Nazi, is interviewed on CBC television, Myer Sharzer, executive director of the congress, said Tuesday.

Von Thadden is the leader of West Germany's rightist National Democratic party, which received seven to eight per cent of the popular vote in recent state elections.

He is scheduled to appear on CBC's Sunday show of Jan. 29, the corporation announced Tuesday.

Mr. Sharzer said von Thadden's "anti-democratic and dangerous" party had many Nazis of the Hitler era as its members.

He said the congress would seek the support of other religions and veterans', women's and youth groups across Ontario to protest the West German's appearance.

Rolf Horn, consul for press affairs with the West German consulate-general, said in an interview that von Thadden's visit to Canada would be bad for his country.

He thought, however, it would be difficult for Canada to bar von Thadden since he has no criminal record.

Summer Village 1967 Officers Named in Vote

Miss Anna F. Wooton has been elected 1967 president of Vancouver Island Branch at Children's International Summer Villages.

First vice-president of the organization, a body set up to provide summeer meeting places for 11-year-olds from all over the world, is Robin Le Brasseur of Nanaimo.

Treasurer is Mrs. Myra Yarwood of Victoria.

Other officers are: H. B. Knapp, of Victoria, second vice-president; Miss Lorna Stuart, third vice-president, Victoria; and recording secretary, Mrs. A. B. McKinnon, of Victoria.

Waterworks Plan Approved

Saanich public works committee has approved a $170,000 plan for improving and extending the waterworks system.

The proposed expenditure involves $68,000 for replacement of two-inch mains, $55,500 for other main replacements, $23,500 for new mains, and $23,000 for other construction.

DRINK OF VITAMIN C USELESS FOR COLDS

LONDON (Reuters)—Vitamin C doesn't work in fighting the common cold, government research doctors said today.

People sniffling and sneezing can forget about hot lemon drinks and other fruit juices containing vitamin C, according to tests made by Britain's common cold research centre.

What does work? Unit director David Tyrell said: "The best thing is to have a hot bath, take aspirin, go to bed and keep warm."

Starving Horse Case Won by Mrs. Kennedy

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy has won dismissal of a $30,000 damage suit involving a starving horse that later died.

The wife of the New York senator said she was "relieved and delighted" when the jury ruled in her favor Tuesday in Fairfax County circuit court.

The case resulted from an incident in October, 1963, when Mrs. Kennedy came upon a "horse in distress" in what she said was a rotting chicken coop. She ordered her groom to take in the emaciated, starving horse and get it proper attention. The horse died five days later.

"Maybe she had the best intentions," horseowner Zemo's lawyer, Martin Morris, told the jury. "But what she did was wrong, without respect to property rights."

Mrs. Kennedy's lawyers argued that if the jury ruled against her, people would be "afraid to get involved" in coming to the aid of man or beast in distress for fear of legal retaliation.

Protest Change

A similarity in names will prevent Saanich from naming a street in honor of a pioneer resident who died last week.

Mrs. E. E. Cunningham suggested that either Wells Road or Wellsview Road be re-named after her father, John L. Pinder, who died last week at the age of 99.

But the fire department objected that a street named Pinder Place could be easily mistaken for Timber Place, several miles away in Cordova Bay. Public works committee rejected the proposal.

Quebec MP Opposes Royal Anthem Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Allard (Ind. — Sherbrooke) indicated in the Commons Tuesday that he will oppose a government resolution to proclaim God Save the Queen the royal anthem of Canada.

The same resolution, expected to be referred soon to a special Commons - Senate committee, would recognize O Canada as the national anthem.

Mr. Allard asked the government to split its resolution and allow separate votes on O Canada and God Save the Queen. He said this would give MPs more freedom of expression.

Prime Minister Pearson replied that it would be improper for him to say how Commons votes would be taken. He noted that no vote will be taken until the special committee makes its recommendations.

A motion to set up the anthem committee is expected to come up for debate in the Commons today.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette also has said his group will fight the royal anthem proposal.

WHILE YOUNGSTERS RAISE A FUSS

Old 'Company' Does the Job

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The unofficial Company of Old Canadians is, without fanfare, lending a welcomed hand in underdeveloped countries, especially in Africa.

Officials of the external aid office said in interviews Tueday that Canada has been sending teachers and advisers overseas since 1950 without a single incident to raise questions in the Commons.

About 3,000 Canadians, a few older than 70 years, have served in underdeveloped countries since the foreign aid program began 17 years ago. Some 800 now are abroad.

The official Company of Young Canadians has 66 workers in the field in Canada. Private actions by a few of its members brought on Commons questions Monday.

STAY HOME

Two years ago, Prime Minister Pearson said the Company of Young Canadians would have between 1,000 and 2,000 members in the field at home and overseas within two years. There now is no intention of sending Young Canadians abroad.

Officials said they are on the lookout for experienced, willing over-65s who have retired in Canada and are looking for something useful to do.

The number of applications from over-65s has risen lately, and one official said: "We could place more of them overseas if we had more funds."

He added that older persons have a great advantage in having lived through the depression of the 1930s. They knew how to do without, or to make do with very little.

For instance, an elderly Canadian science teacher who had taught on the Prairies in the 1930s and was serving abroad, went to a town dump to find enough old cans, pipes and the like to begin a rudimentary course in physics.

SPEAKS URDU

Theo Lamontagne of Quebec City, who is 71, has been working in the agriculture and water-power fields in Pakistan for nearly six years. He has learned to speak Urdu.

W. R. Carroll of Toronto, a retired vice-president of a big packing firm, has set up marketing boards in the West Indies.

Dr. W. F. Hanna, 72, and Dr. R. F. Peterson, 69, both of Winnipeg, are developing disease-resistant wheat in Kenya.

Clifford Harvison, who retired as RCMP Commissioner four years ago, has been advising on police matters in Trinidad.

"These kind of people are worth their weight in gold," said Ian A. Hodson, chief of the section which looks after placement of advisers.

A retired scientist here recently went abroad to set up research facilities for a certain country after being warned about the office politics he would encounter.

His reply: "I survived the office politics of the federal civil service for 40 years and I can survive there."

Canadian teachers and advisers overseas are paid salaries comparable to what they would receive at home.

St. Vitus' Dance Cause Unproven

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

St. Vitus' dance is an old term for what is now called chorea minor, or 'Sydenham's chorea." Chorea in Greek means a dance, but in the cases of the sick children, it is a very jerky dance. Usually, the child has rapid involuntary movements of her muscles. Sometimes they are limited to just an arm or a leg or one-half of the body. There may be grimacing, with grunting sounds. The clinical picture may be grotesque.

Alvarez

In spite of this, normal purposeful movements are possible. There is rarely any paralysis. When the girl is sitting, her legs may swing back and forth. She may thrash about. Chorea can be part of a "hyperkinetic syndrome," in which the child is constantly much too restless.

The cause of this disease of children is not well established, but usually half of the patients develop signs of rheumatic fever, hence it would seem that sometimes rheumatic fever, or the infection that causes rheumatic fever, has much to do with the chorea. Therefore, some physicians advise the giving of penicillin as well as a tranquilizer.

* * *

Dr. H. E. Thelander of San Francisco, warns that no immunizations should be carried out for any disease, when a woman is pregnant — especially in the first two months, and especially with a live vaccine, which produces a very mild form of the illness. A few cases have been reported in which a pregnant woman took a Sabin type of oral polio vaccine, and later was delivered of an infant with some defects which were probably produced by the virus (in the vaccine) which though too weak to bother the mother, was strong enough to injure the child.

* * *

One of the most awful diseases of children used to be the Wilms' cancer of the kidney. Up until a few years ago, the outlook for a child with that disease was almost hopeless.

Now, I read that when a special antibiotic, called dactinomycin, is given, as the kidney is being removed surgically, and when also radiation is given—as with X-rays—the "two-year survival," which is equivalent, with rare exceptions, to a cure, is 89 per cent. This is a miracle.

To me, one of the most hopeful facts is that in the past few years, a way has been found for the curing of several special cancers, each of a certain part of the body. It may well be that in the next 20 year, instead of our finding one "cure for cancer," workers in this field will gradually find ways of curing 9 in 10 of the patients suffering from certain special cancers.

I just read that children with acute leukemia who used all to die in a few weeks or months can now be kept alive for several years. Next, probably, the researchers will find a way of not only stopping the spread of the disease, but of curing it.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Gary Turk, age 13, of Huntsville, Alabama, for his question:

How long does it take an oyster to mature?

Oysters enjoy their lazy lives in the calm shallows by the sea. There are about 100 different species around the world in warm and temperate bays and quiet inlets. Some species produce gleaming pearls and others are delicious, nutritious morsels of food. Most other species have little value. All oysters, of course, are bivalved mollusks — two-shelled members of the animal phylum Mollusca.

Life for each generation of oysters begins when the temperature of the water reaches 66 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. In the warm Gulf of Mexico, egg laying begins in March and the spawning goes on through November. The New England oysters begin their spawning in July. Masses of tiny eggs float like yellowish cream in the gentle water. And through the season, one oyster may produce half a billion eggs.

An oyster is fixed to the spot and never moves, even to become a parent. The adult males and females pour separate masses of sperm cells and egg cells into the water. Here and there, a sperm and an egg cell meet by chance. The pair unites and forms a fertilized egg. In a day or so, the egg hatches into a larva oyster, small enough to swim easily through the eye of a needle.

On Sea Bed

The larva looks like a miniature melon seed wearing a shaggy wig. The hairs are cilia which he waves to propel himelf through the water. For perhaps two weeks he enjoys a free swimming life, feeding and growing. Then he forsakes his freedom for a settled life. He chooses a pebble strewn sea bed, the piling of a pier or some other submerged, solid surface. Then he secretes a tacky substance and cements himself to the spot he hopes to occupy for the rest of his life. The balmy water washes diatom food into his open mouth and the lazy fellow grows at a great rate.

If he lives in the warm Gulf of Mexico, he feeds and grows through the entire year. But if he is a native New Englander, he does not eat and grow during the cool winter season. These months of resting delay his progress toward maturity. Oysters of tropical and semi-tropical seas are mature and ready to hand on life at the age of three years. Oysters of cool winter waters, as a rule, are mature at the age of four years.

Edible oysters are pampered and tended by fishermen. The settled youngsters are called oyster spats until they become two inches long. Many spats are uprooted and placed to resettle themselves in more suitable locations. After three or four years, they are mature and ready to be harvested for the market. Pearl oysters are left undisturbed long enough to grow their secret treasures. After seven years, divers bring them up to be opened for their pearly prizes.

* * *

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Billy Doss, age 9, of Newport News, Virginia, for his question

How long does it take a cavern to form?

The life span of a mountain lasts millions of years and a river may follow the same path for countless ages. Other geological features have shorter life spans. Lakes may fill and dry up in a few thousand years. Many caves also form and collapse in a few hundred years. On the slow, ancient clock of geology, this is just time enough to blink an eye. Other caves take longer, perhaps thousands of years to form. But at last they too collapse and disappear.

Caves tend to form in thick beds of soft limestones where seeping ground water can dissolve the rocky minerals. The rain trickles down through cracks in the ground and nibbles bigger and bigger holes below the surface. In a few hundred years, it can dig out a small cave. In perhaps 5,000 years, the seeping water may nibble out a huge underground city of connecting caves and caverns. Sometimes the pounding surf of the sea digs caves in the cliffs. These sea caves may become vast caverns and endure for more than 30,000 years.

POWELL URGES NEGROES

'Break Allegiance With Democrats'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell, controversial Negro politician at least temporarily deprived of his seat in Congress, has urged his fellow Negroes to break their long allegiance with the Democratic party.

Powell, sharp-tongued member of the House of Representatives for New York City's Harlem district for many years, was deprived of his seat Tuesday, at least until a committee examines his qualifications.

Only the day before, he had lost his influential position as chairman of the House's education and labor committee after investigators looked into a private life that some said amounted to high living at government expense.

The man who has fought for Negro rights for many years told followers on the steps of the Capitol Tuesday night:

"We might start a third party!",

They cheered wildly and chanted "Adam for president! Adam for president!"

He told them to stop paying their taxes and to stop supporting the two major political parties.

SUGGESTS NEW PARTY

Later, in a statement, Powell called on Negroes "along with our white friends" to consider "a new independent course of action in which they are the balance of power in all elections."

Republicans and many Democrats had joined in rebuffing efforts by the Democratic leadership to have Powell seated as a member of the new Congress while his qualifications are investigated.

Instead, he was told in a 364-to-64 vote to stand aside while a special nine-member committee, to be named next week, examines his qualifications in the light of widespread charges that he has abused his congressional office in the past.

The committee is to make its recommendation in five weeks. Powell is to keep his pay and office staff in the interim.

Before the House voted, it was warned by Representative Morris K. Udall (Dem. Ariz.) it was "a cold, practical fact" that 20,000,000 Negroes would interpret the blow at Powell as aimed at them.

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and considered among the most moderate Negro civil rights leaders, said in a statement that Powell "did not get a fair deal."

"We insist that the yardstick which has been applied to Representative Powell be applied at once to all others in the House. . . ."

Conservative Money Fight Out in Open

OTTAWA (CP) — A dispute over control of Conservative party funds has broken into the open, with National President Dalton Camp seeking to break headquarters' control.

Mr. Camp said in Toronto Tuesday night that he will propose at an executive meeting in the spring that finances be controlled by the party's national association rather than by National Director James Johnston, an appointee of Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Johnston replied today that this would be an unprecedented move.

"It would be very interesting to be party president under those circumstances," he said in a statement commenting on Mr. Camp's remarks.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the policy meetings held last month by the Conservative MPs and senators will be resumed here Saturday, Jan. 14.

Mr. Camp said Tuesday night that the Conservative youth movement is endangered because of a lack of funds.

"We don't agree with the priorities in the budget. The national association thinks it is unfortunate that this area—youth—is being written down by the national office."

Police Abuse Civil Rights, Lawyer Says

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal lawyer Guy Guerin, Tuesday accused Quebec's police forces of greatly abusing the civil rights of some individuals and groups within the province, especially the right of assembly.

Addressing a meeting of the Civil Liberties Union, Mr. Guerin said that "police in Montreal and Quebec have gone to extreme of abuse with illegal detentions, searches of domiciles and interrogations."

He emphasized alleged infringements by police of "one of the most fundamental civil rights, the right of assembly." As an example he cited large-scale arrests during demonstrations in Montreal's Lafontaine Park last July.

"I question the legality of the city bylaw which states that to have a parade or demonstration, you must first obtain a permit from the chief of police," he said.

"This law gives the chief of police arbitrary power over the right of assembly without any criteria of objectivity."

Pearson Leads Nation In Sir John Tribute

KINGSTON (CP)—A Liberal prime minister led Canadians in a tribute today to Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister and the man who earned the title Father of Confederation.

Prime Minister Pearson shared in celebrations marking the 152nd birthday anniversary of Sir John a Conservative who was prime minister from 1867 to 1873 and from 1878 to 1891.

Kingston, where Sir John first entered politics as an alderman, and which he continued to represent in Parliament, is the focal point of the birthday observance.

Mr. Pearson joined in a day-long program of speeches, band music, civic dinners, choir singing and midnight dancing in costumes popular 100 years ago.

A giant birthday cake was cut this morning in Market Square, followed by a memorial service at Royal Military College and a trumpet fanfare by the Royal Canadian School of Signals Band.

School children have the afternoon off, but businesses remained open. A display on the life of Sir John was open all day at the Macdonald public school.

Crippled Weathership Heads Home

The crippled weathership Stonetown was battling heavy seas today in an emergency dash to Victoria.

The department of transport vessel was forced to vacate Station 'Papa' 900 miles west of here after a fault developed in her power steering mechanism.

Gale-force winds and heavy swells prevented repairs being carried out on the spot.

TOO DANGEROUS

"In present weather conditions it would have been too dangerous."

Ship's master, Capt. F. Gordon Nesbit radioed he was having trouble with the steering early this morning.

Although the ship can be steered by hand, it would have been virtually impossible to keep the former navy frigate on station under present conditions.

This is only the second time Station Papa has been vacated since it was first manned on a round-the-clock basis in 1950.

On the last occasion, three years ago, the Stonetown went to the aid of a stricken freighter.

With Stonetown's sister ship St. Catharines, undergoing refit at Victoria Machinery Depot, it will be impossible to man the station before next Tuesday. She will leave Sunday if ready.

Lani Satellite Heads for Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Lani Bird II satellite soared into a preliminary transfer orbit today en route to an outpost high above the Pacific to serve as a commercial space communications link between North America and the Far East.

NEW HOLIDAY COMING UP

EDMONTON (CP) — State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday a new national holiday will be established during Canada's centennial year.

It would not be Jan. 11, Sir John A. Macdonald's birthday, because that would be too close to Christmas and New Year's, Miss LaMarsh said. Tribute had already been paid to Canada's first prime minister by declaring Jan. 11 "Sir John A. Macdonald Day."

Miss LaMarsh said the new holiday would have both historical and centennial significance, but gave no further details.

Italy Foils Blast Plot

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Police found a hidden cache of explosives here Tuesday and took six pro-Peking Italian Communists in custody on suspicion of a plot to dynamite the U.S. consulate and library in Milan and the U.S. military base at Vicenza.

Police said one of those arrested was a woman, Professor Maria Arena Regis.

BARE BOTTOM BELT MAY BE ABOLISHED

LONDON (AP)—Abolitiion of spanking was urged today in a massive study of England's primary schools commissioned by the government.

British public and private elementary school teachers may use corporal punishment. In England, the cane—a flexible wooden switch—usually is used across the hand, although in extreme caes teachers apply it across a pupil's bare bottom.

Evidence presented to the committee indicated that 80 to 90 per cent of England's teachers want to keep the right to cane a child, mostly as a final sanction after other methods of punishment fail. But psychologists told the committee that they feel the cane has more disadvantages than advantages.

CP-MACDONALD PACT BLASTED

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—A concession made by Sir John A. Macdonald to the CPR in 1880 came under debate Tuesday in the Commons.

To entice the railway into building a line to link the country from coast to coast, Canada's first prime minister agreed to exempt it from municipal taxes.

The tax exemption, now a statute of Parliament and a part of the constitutions of Saskatchewan and Alberta, came under scathing attack from David Lewis (NDP — York South) as the Commons continued to make progress on a government bill outlining a new national transportation policy.

The House takes a one-day break from the transport bill today to debate the first stage of a bill to insure the deposits of banks and qualifying trusts and loan companies.

And since today is Sir John A. Macdonald Day, there were plenty of tributes to the Conservative who headed the first Canadian government.

Tuesday, however, Macdonald's commitment to the CPR 97 years ago was questioned not only by Mr. Lewis but by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Good or bad, the government was bound by the Macdonald-CPR pact, said Mr. Pickersgill.

"With all the wisdom I now have, if I had been Sir John Macdonald, I do not believe I would have made this particular type of contract with the Canadian Pacific," said Mr. Pickersgill.

Mr. Lewis, the NDP's deputy leader, said times have changed since Macdonald's government signed the pact with the CPR.

"If the exemption was ever justified—and my study of the matter has never persuaded me that even originally it was justified—it certainly has not been so for many years," the labor lawyer said.

The matter cropped up as both Conservative and NDP members sought assurances

MORE LOSS, COST, AGONY

Johnson Asks For Tax Hike To Fight War

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has asked Congress to increase taxes by 6 cents on each tax dollar to help pay for the Vietnam war in which he says the United States faces "more cost, more loss, and more agony".

Congressional reaction to a tax boost is cool. Republicans and many majority Democrats said a domestic budget cut, not a tax boost, is the way to finance the costly Vietnam war.

The president proposed the tax increase in his State of the Union address Tuesday night, a 70-minute speech to the Congress in which he outlined his legislative program for the forthcoming year. It was his fourth State of the Unidn address and his most sombre.

The president also proposed higher social security benefits, which will mean higher costs to both the employer and employee, but he didn't say how much the costs would be.

He called for reorganization of some of the machinery to run his Great Society program, renewed his appeal for more bridge-building to the Communist nations of Europe and asserted once more that "we will stand firm in Vietnam."

PROPOSES SURCHARGE

Johnson proposed a six-per-cent surcharge on corporate and most personal income taxes to last two years or longer unless war costs drop.

Married couples with two children and incomes up to $5,000 yearly would be exempt, as would single persons with incomes up to $1,900 and childless couples earning up to $2,000.

The president indicated he wants the increase effective next July 1. He said the plan will raise about $4,500,000,000 in its first year.

His proposal would cost an extra six cents for each dollar paid in income taxes. As an example, a person who now pays $1,000 a year would pay $60 more.

The president told the Congress in his speech, televised live in the U.S. and Canada:

"We shall continue on a sensible course of fiscal and budgetary policy that will keep our economy growing without new inflationary strains; finance the needs of our men in Vietnam and the progress of our people at home; support a significant improvement in our export surplus, and press forward toward easier credit and lower interest rates."

PLANS VIETNAM REPORT

He said he plans to send a detailed report to Congress on the situation in Southeast Asia, particularly in Vietnam.

"I wish I could report to you that the conflict is almost over. This I cannot do. We face more cost, more loss, and more agony. For the end is not yet. I cannot promise you that it will come this year—or come next year."

The president said he has no intention of scuttling his domestic programs. But he conceded there have been "setbacks and mistakes" that must be corrected. Not once did he use his usual label of Great Society.

He won his greatest applause with a proposal to raise social security payments by 20 per cent, $4,100,000,000 in the year beginning July 1, 1968. This would come three months before the presidential election in which he is expected to be a candidate.

WANTS BENEFITS RAISED

Johnson proposed that minimum benefits be raised to $70 from $44 a month and that anyone with 25 years of coverage get at least $100 monthly. He suggested raising the limit on income retired workers can

Mao's Backers Call on Army

Times News Services

HONG KONG—The central committee of the Chinese Communist party called today on the army and the people to beat back the forces opposing Mao Tse-tung in China's titantic power struggle.

The appeal was broadcast by the New China News Agency and was addressed particularly to pro-Mao elements in Shanghai.

It came shortly after reports from China said Mao's followers were wresting control of the city of 10 million persons from his opponents in a move hinting at mass arrests.

First appearances were that Mao had won a major victory in his struggle with the forces led by President Liu Shao-Chi and Communist party secretary general Teng Hsiao-Ping, if he had indeed won support of the central committee.

The message was signed by the central committee, the state council, the military commission of the central committee and the cultral revolution group under the central committee.

UNDER CONTROL

The message was sent to the pro-Mao elements in Shanghai who apparently have been able to keep the city under their control despite paralyzing strikes and demonstrations by thousands of workers opposing Mao and his Red Guards.

It told the Maoists they had "seen through and exposed in time the schemes" of reactionary elements and "have launched forceful counter-offensives."

If it was not a great victory for Mao it was at least a great propaganda coup.

Only this week informed sources in London said Mao had lost the support of many members of the central committee.

But the tide appeared to turn Sunday when Premier Chou En-lai entered the dispute publicly for the first time and appealed for moderation.

Big posters went up in Peking streets today urging demonstrating workers to go back to their jobs.

But other new posters demanded "drag out capitalist elements in the army," and singled out vice-premier and former Marshal Ho Lung as a main target.

Today's posters said "Ho Lung is a time bomb at the side of Mao Tse-tung," and "Ho Lung must be removed from the party central committee."

Not Yet Ratified By Gov'ts

Times News Services

LONDON—United States and Soviet negotiators have agreed on a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons, but their governments must still approve it, qualified diplomats said Tuesday night.

The sources said the breakthrough in the disarmament stalemate was achieved last month following a series of secret exchanges in New York and Geneva.

Details of the agreement were not disclosed, but informants said the Russians made at least one important change in their position by accepting the idea of West German participation in nuclear planning arrangements set up by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last month.

Leaders of NATO nations established a seven-nation high command that will manage the political and strategic use of the nuclear weapons available to the alliance. The plan gives West Germany and smaller Allied powers a share in the planning, but leaves the United States the right to veto any proposal by its partners for use of U.S. nuclear weapons.

The arrangement is designed to satisfy West German demands for a say in nuclear policy and also to meet Russian opposition to giving Bonn control of nuclear weapons, which the Soviet Union maintained was the chief bar to agreements on a non-proliferation treaty.

MESSAGE FROM LBJ

Meanwhile, Llewellyn Thompson, the new U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, arrived in Moscow today and said he was carrying a message from President Johnson to the Russian government. He refused to disclose the contents.

Johnson in his state of the union message Tuesday night called for better ties with the Kremlin, and on his arrival Thompson expressed optimism that U.S.-Soviet relations would improve.

Banks Take It on Chin At Committee Hearing

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Bankers in collusion? Exercising "fantastic power"?

They were so accused Tuesday in formal testimony before a committee of the House of Commons, by a non-conforming financial analyst on the one hand and by a young promoter on the other.

R. G. D. Lafferty of Montreal said interlocking directorates extend the influence of banks into big trust companies, into securities trading and into the biggest underwriting organizations in Canada.

Business initiative is stifled, competition goes by the board and the press holds back news unfavorable to the banking "cartel" for fear of reprisals, he said.

Terry Howes of Toronto, self-styled entrepreneur-general who freely admitted a background of curious business enterprises, said bankers are too powerful.

They ignored shareholders, published meaningless financial statements, and ran their institutions with "nowhere near" the efficiency of American banks.

It was bop-the-banks day for the committee, which was beginning another wave of hearings on government proposals for revision of the Bank Act.

Mr. Lafferty and Mr. Howes were witnesses No. 2 and 3.

They followed the morning appearance of Joseph Pope, Toronto investment dealer who said the banks should offer better services for foreign exchange trading.

They would get the necessary experience only if Toronto or Montreal were opened up as an international money market. This in turn depended on banishing an "absurd" and "wretched" Bank Act restriction against establishment of branches of foreign banks in Canada.

The committee met Mr. Howes first with amusement and then with some seriousness. The portly witness accused Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) of smearing him in bringing up his business interests.

He acknowledged that the U.S. post office had issued fraud orders in 1965 and 1966 against his use of the mails to distribute a so-called "air force diet". He had indeed advertised bargain prices for lease of square-mile tracts of wildlife domain in Ontario, he said.

NO BEEF ON ARTICLE

He had no complaint against an article in a national magazine that described other "money - coining enterprises".

"Okay," he said at last "I'm a thief, a crook, a no-goodnick from away back.

"Now that we're through with this, can we discuss my proposals?"

The 17 proposals were to change the Bank Act to improve corporate disclosure by the banks, change voting and proxy practices and accord the federal authority various devices of control.

He outlined the history of a private war with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, in which he holds one share. He had waged proxy fights to find out whether shareholders have

GUEVARA AT WORK IN BRAZIL?

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — Press reports, quoting police sources, said Tuesday night that pro-Chinese and Bolshevik Argentine leaders have made numerous trips recently to the Brazilian frontier to establish contact with Ernesto Guevara, Cuban Communist leader.

The reports said Guevara, whose whereabouts have been a mystery since he left Cuba two years ago, had been active in the Argentine - Brazilian frontier area for the last two months.

IT'S A WORLD OF PINK IN A CURRY KIND OF A-WAY

DARLINGTON, England (AP)—Miss X is 19, pretty, an efficient secretary, and everything she touched turned pink.

She touched her white blouse and left pink patches. There was pink on her desk, pink on her writing pad and pink on the letters she typed for the boss.

Her fiance's collar turned pink, too.

For two days Miss X put up with her pink problem at the Chrysler-Cummings works in this north England town. Then she went to see Dr. Valentine Crowley, the factory physician.

After laboratory tests, Dr. Crowley came up with the answer Tuesday. It was all caused by a curry dinner.

REACTED TO CURRY

"No wonder the poor girl was so upset," the doctor said.

"A spice called turmeric in the curry was the trouble. Her system reacted against it and sent something like a pink dye through her pores.

"I have never known a case like it. The girl didn't look pink, quite normal in fact, but everything she touched went that color."

Turmeric is used extensively as a dye in Asia, where it is cultivated.

Miss X's trouble is clearing up, and on Dr. Crowley's advice she is going to skip curry in future.

"We don't want to give the girl's name because she is so embarrassed," a factory spokesman said. "She can't help blushing."

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—Soybeans and corn were firm in relatively light trade on the Chicago Board of Trade grain futures market today.

There was only moderate interest in soybeans.

Wheat was firm a good part of the session then weakened in the two nearby contracts but remained firm in the deferred. Oats and rye were in light demand and light trade.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Full gains failed to hold near the end of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and an easier tone developed with rye being the only commodity not recording a recession.

Flax was hesitant with some export interest reported, but no sales were made.

The rye market got some stimulation from export interest with 4,000 tons sold to Norway and 1,200 to Japan. Oats and barley were irregular but some firming was evident with upturns in United States market near the close.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and Domestic wheat were all up ⅛ cent.

MARKET SUMMARIES ★

Sharp Drop Recovered

The Dow Jones industrial average was down 2.12 at noon whereas at the end of the first half hour it was off 11.47.

AT NEW YORK advances extended to more than eight points for Xerox, five fore Polaroid and Texas Gulf Sulphur and four for Ling-Temco-Vought.

Among Canadians traded, International Nickel was up ⅞ and Dome Mines ⅛. Canadian Pacific fell ½, Distillers Seagrams ⅝ and Granby Mining ¾.

AT TORONTO Bank of Nova Scotia advanced 1½ to 66¼, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines 1⅜ to 27⅝ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Moore Corp., 1 each to 59¼ and 91.

AT MONTREAL stocks reversed direction and edged higher today after dropping lower in early morning trading.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines was up 1½ points to 27¼ and Noranda Mines ¾ to 53¼. Inco firmed ⅝ to 92½.

Home Oil A was up ⅝ to 25⅝ and Interprovincial Pipe Line ½ to 89½.

Bell Telephone and MacMillan-Bloedel each won ¼ to 47⅝ and 23⅝ respectively.

AT VANCOUVER early trading on the stock exchange today reflected the see-saw action in other North American markets.

Magnum, with 126,000 shares, was the leading trader and gained .03 to .77.

In the industrials, Home A and B both went to 1966-67 highs but Trans Prairie dipped .37 cents to a low of $7.25.

B.C., Seattle Settle Land Deal

The compensation formula worked out in the Columbia River project has been used to set the price for a 99-year agreement allowing Seattle city to flood 6,350 acres near Manning Park, Resources Minister Ray Williston said today.

A rental of $34,566 annually in U.S. currency—along with stumpage royalties and land taxes—probably will bring the B.C. government some $3.7 million over the 99 years for the 5,710 acres it owns in the flood area.

The land will be flooded when Seattle raises its Ross Dam on the Skagit River to increase the reservoir for generating electricity.

As a hedge against inflation during the long life of the agrement, B.C. has the option of taking 9.2 kilowatts of power instead of money as the rental payment on one year's notice.

BOUNDARY DELIVERY

The electricity would be sold at the rate of 3.75 mills per kilowatt hour and would have to be delivered free to the B.C.-Washington boundary.

Flooding of the Skagit to build the Ross dam was approved under an international agreement in 1942 but no long-term agreement on price has been worked out until now.

After the dam was built, B.C. passed the Skagit Valley Lands Act in 1947 permitting a year-to-year arrangement.

A payment of $500 land rental was made by Seattle for the approximately 600 acres of B.C. land that has been flooded by the dam at high water periods each year since then.

Mr. Williston said Seattle has paid a $5,000 annual standby payment to compensate the province for reserving the flood area and allowing it to clear the land pending agreement on a long-term lease.

"We used the formulation determined in the Columbia River negotiations to set the terms here," he said. The price is based on computation of the value of the extra generating power created by enlargement of the reservoir area in B.C.

Mr. Willsiton said Seattle is in the process of signing the agrement but he did not know when the dam would be raised.

Machinists To Hold Up Payments

Victoria local No. 3 of the Machinists' Union has decided to withhold future payments to the B.C. Federation of Labour until E. P. O'Neal resigns from the federation's executive board.

The resolution was passed unanimously Monday night by the members of the union local.

O'Neal has admitted involvement in the Nov. 5 bugging of hotel rooms occupied by members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, a rival union to O'Neal's Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers Union.

The bugging incident is the subject of a public inquiry by Judge R. A. Sargent.

Craigmont Profits Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. D. Simpson, president of Craigmont Mines Ltd., has told a shareholders meeting the company's earnings would be subject to income taxes in the fiscal year ending in 1967.

Mr. Simpson said Craigmont, which operates a copper producer near Merritt, 110 miles northeast of Vancouver, had been exempt for the normal three-year tax-free period and exempt another two years because of deduction of preproduction expenses and other allowances.

Despite being in operation for only 6½ months of 1966 because of a strike, Craigmont reported profits of $7,627,627 or $1.50 per share, compared with $2,256,248 or 44 cents per share in the

HIGH LABOR COSTS BLAMED

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Tuesday said rising labor costs were the main reason for a special warrant adding $4 million to his $52 million appropriation for building roads, bridges and ferries.

The warrant was passed by the cabinet Tuesday.

He said it was needed for projects already committed. There were some extra contracts called but "when the labor boys went after fantastic increases everything went up."

New Companies Mark Up Record

New companies registered in B.C. last year set a new record.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner gave official figures Tuesday—a total 4,746 incorporations in 1966 compared with 4,646 in 1965, the previous record.

There were 372 extra-provincial companies against 344 in 1965, and 263 societies compared with 259 the previous year.

That makes for 5,381 new incorporations in the province, or 132 more than in 1965.

Like any city with a history worth mentioning, Victoria has certain unregistered and ectoplasmic citizens whom I for one would just as soon not encounter.

There's the Oak Bay clanker, for instance, who occasionally rattles a chain or some other item of hardware in a suburban basement, and the wistful female spectre of Golf Course Point.

Except on dark and windy night, I incline to take this sort of thing casually. So do a couple of friends who, on a dark and windy night about two years ago, began to wonder just what went on in their newly-acquired Rockland area residence.

Lights, for no apparent reason, dimmed themselves. Then the doorbell would ring, but not to the touch of any human finger.

This was all too mysterious for comfort, especially since the gracious Dutch colonial with its high ceilings and ornate plaster-work boasted a scandalous legend.

As the tale ran, a tycoon who wintered in Victoria had built the place, circa 1914, as a bower for his beautiful mistress.

The doorbell chimed again; and practical-minded though they are, the new owners began to wonder whether the long-gone lovely wanted her house back.

It would be nice if we could break off the account right here. But there are other reasons for lights that dim and doorbells that ring, and a flashlight check of the basement revealed the answer in the shape of a defective master fuse.

Too bad: but we still have that white flitter one you reported to me from a Greater Victoria woodland . . . and while it's probably a strayed Arctic owl, who can be sure?

★

A year or two ago in this corner, I uttered some fretful words about calendars that failed to purvey enough information to the householder.

Well, it's calendar time again; and to you, J. L., my grateful thanks for another North Countryman, 1967 version.

Even though I'll not be fishing the streams controlled by the Yordshire Ouse River Board, it's good to know that they'll open to anglers on the first of June, a day which I trust will be properly warm, with a light breeze from the south.

Fox hunting (pink coats, hounds and fine horses) will commence on Oct. 31, to an accompaniment of protests from those who abhor blood sports. More to my taste are the Quarter Days, the first of which will be Lady Day on the 25th of March.

★

A surprising number of Victorians appear to have shifted their complaints from the weather to the Confederation Train.

The old folk had to wait over-long and were hustled through too fast.

School children should have been given a holiday so they could visit the train without cluttering up the scene for their elders.

It favored Quebec (a French-Canadian viewer felt it leaned toward the English), failed to deal adequately with the fur trade, and slighted British Columbia.

And so on, with a moppet administering the capper. She found it all very disappointing after Disneyland.

With this in mind, it now becomes obvious that what Ottawa should have done is send out nine trains, with a narrow-gauge tenth for Newfoundland.

Each would crowd the rest of Canada into one car, while it gave the remaining five to lavish displays of the province to which it was assigned.

And that's it, except to chide the Saturday Review for permitting Lord Thomson of Fleet to style himself a Canadian in a probably ghost-written takeout on Canada.

HOW HEAVY? That's what public works department employees George wondered as plans were being made for shipping of Legislative Chamber desks to New Westminster for ceremonial opening of 28th British Columbia Legislature and return to Victoria next day. They found out—Popham, left, and James Winger 100 pounds and there are 55 of them.

Operation Chairlift To End in Sitdown At New Westminster

About seven times the normal number of spectators who have witnessed the ceremonial openings each year of the legislature over the past century will be on hand later this month for the 101st occasion.

But there will be about seven times more work for government employees too as they transfer the legislative assembly's furniture and paraphernalia to New Westminster for the event.

The ceremony—augmented by the additional traditions of choosing a speaker for the newly-elected legislature — will be staged in the Queen's Park Arena, Jan. 24.

EXACT ANNIVERSARY

The date was picked because it is the precise 100th anniversary of the first session of the first B.C. legislature which was held in the short-lived capital of New Westminster after union of the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

The 55 desks and chairs of the enlarged and redistributed 28th legislature will be placed in the centre of the arena in the same line-up they will have when the whole show comes back to Victoria the following day.

"It's expected up to 7,000 people will witness the opening," said L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

The arena — usually resounds to the rough-and-tumble thumping of lacrosse players and the roaring of fans but officials hope the loudest sounds this year will be the traditional desk-drumming after MLAs applaud their new speaker — likely to be William Murray of Prince Rupert again.

NO HECKLING

They also have their fingers crossed there will be no audience heckling or cheering as Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes reads the speech from the throne while author Premier Bennett listens.

Outside the arena, there will be a show for those who didn't get a seat, with the colorful arrivals of the dignitaries marked by the Royal New Westminster Regiment Band and the Royal salute given by the Ancient Order of the Hyack Anvil Battery which also gave the salute 100 years ago.

'SUPER PORT' TALKS HERE NEXT WEEK

National Harbors Board Chairman Howard Mann of Ottawa will come here next week to discuss the broad future of port facilities along the entire B.C. coast.

He will meet commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner and Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark next Thursday to evaluate all the ports but concentrate on Vancouver Harbor and a proposed "super-port" at Boundary Bay near Tsawwassen.

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Mann arranged the meeting.

"We are glad we have caught his attention on the necessity of expanding port facilities on the west coast and in particular Greater Vancouver," said Mr. Bonner.

By DESMOND BILL
Times Eeducation Reporter

Teachers "want to be professionals but they act like Hoffa's Teamsters" when it comes to salary negotiations.

That is the sort of impression school trustees sometimes have when they become embroiled in contract talks.

So said Peter Bunn, chairman of Greater Victoria School Board, at a meeting Tuesday night of the district trustee-teacher co-operative committee.

Mr. Bunn told how some trustees react when the committee discussed ways to avoid "the annual months of hate" that usually accompany the yearly dispute about salaries.

Trustee Dr. Carron Jameson said negotiations "always become a fight. This is the nature of the present method. But there are other ways."

REVIEW BOARD

Dr. Jameson suggested one such way: the setting up of a review board, consisting of persons nominated by both sides, to settle salary matters.

He said the use of intermediaries would prevent the bitterness that always creeps in when trustees and teachers bargain directly with one another.

Dr. Jameson pointed out that in the past few years this is actually what has happened since each year both sides have been unable to reach agreement and the issue has gone before an arbitration board.

Ray Wunderlich, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said it is impossible to over-emphasize the importace of improving the method of wage negotiations.

He suggested the co-operative committee could handle negotiations. He said the committee has been able to handle some loaded issues amicable and should be able to use the same approach on the question of salaries.

Irvine Dawson, a principal, agreed the present method is not entirely satisfactory but added, "My experience goes back to the time before we had bargaining rights and that was pretty unpleasant too."

Each side ended by agreeing to examine the other's proposal and to discuss it with their respective groups. They will bring back ther recommendations at a later meeting.

TRUSTEES SHOCKED OVER RECENT CASE

'HOW COULD IT GO ON SO LONG?'

Nobody Wants to Put Finger on Incompetent Teacher

Greater Victoria School Board seldom hears about the incompetent teachers in the system and if it does there is little or nothing it can do to remove them.

The committee meets regularly to discuss how both groups can co-operate to resolve mutual problems.

Peter Bunn, board chairman, raised the matter by asking the teacher representatives, "What can we do about teachers who are no good?"

Dr. Carron Jameson, the other trustee representative, emphasized the importance of the matter by referring to a recent case which came to the board's attention.

He said he was shocked that the teacher involved "could go on for so long. I'm surprised the principal either did not know, in which case he is incompetent, or else he knew and let it go on."

A. J. Longmore, assistant school superintendent, said "there is a great reticence in the profession to put the finger on these people."

He said the best persons to help inadequate teachers are their colleagues in the schools where they work. He said a teacher is more impressed by concern about his work shown by fellow teachers than by criticism from a supervisor.

Mr. Longmore said teachers "can get closer" to an unsatisfactory colleague, and give him more help, than any supervisor.

"There are people in our classrooms who are not getting this assistance," he said.

Irvine Dawson, a teacher representative, said the British Columbia Teachers' Federation has tried to "upgrade the competence" of its members but has not been too concerned "to weed out the bad ones."

He said the BCTF has a committee which will review the performance of any teacher about whom there are complaints but "the prime purpose is to salvage such a teacher."

Mr. Dawson, a principal, said he thinks part of the problem is that principals are too "reticent in rejecting unsuitable teachers" serving a probationary period.

The teacher representatives agreed to have this matter discussed among members of the GVTA in order to "make teachers more sensitive" to the problem and to find out what teachers can and should do to solve it.

Friends of Louis: He's Healthy, Still Wealthy, Wiser Than Us

Louis the parrot is fine, thank you.

These questions were answered today.

But the poser concerning Louis' whereabouts remains a secret locked in the hearts of his caretaker, Yue Wah Wong, 1706 Denman, and his lawyer, J. Howard Harman.

Louis' welfare is of community, even world interest because of a will left by his former owner, the spinster Victoria Wilson. She left a fortune for Louis' care by Mr. Wong with a stipualtion her parrot should live out its days in her old home which now is the White House Apartments, 737 Courtney.

Louis was moved on the weekend. Neither Wong nor his wife will say where he is now. Mrs. Wong said he will be lodged elsewhere in future.

HE'S ALIVE

And today she told a reporter that there are no grounds for speculation Louis is dead, despite his 102 years. He could reach 300.

"He's in the best of health," she said.

Meanwhile a spokesman for the present owners of the White House said he has no knowledge of the removal of any covenants which would permit Louis' removal and development of this old home—one of the choicest pieces of downtown real estate.

When Miss Wilson died in 1947 her property was purchased by a New Westminster man who was unable to fulfill his plans for a modern high-rise on the site.

CAR PARK FIRM

Today it was learned the property was transferred again to a Victoria firm, Capital Car Parks Ltd. This firm permitted development of part of the land as a parking area, but the old house was untouched except for its renovation for flats.

Directors of the company are George James Schaffer of Dublin and William C. Mearns of Victoria, an executive of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Mr. Mearns said from Vancouver he could not account for the removal of the bird from the property.

He said that while he is no longer a major shareholder in the property, he knows of no new use indicated for the proerty.

He said he also is unaware of any changes which might have affected the terms of the Wilson will.

"Anything which has occurred with respect to moving the parrot has been done by the executors of the will," he said.

Esquimalt Ship Back With Sister After Mercy Call

The Mackenzie, en route to the Caribbean for training exercises, transferred her ship's doctor, Surgeon-Lt. B. G. Roberts, to the U.S. freighter Santa Adela Tuesday to treat a burned man.

Lt. Roberts applied dressings to the right arm and back of the ship's master who received second and third degree burns while putting out a small fire on board.

The master declined an offer to transfer to the Mackenzie. The doctor and navy chaplain G. E. Tarrant, who asisted him, were taken by boat back to the Mackenzie.

The Santa Adela is due to arrive in Acapulco Thursday, the same day on which Mackenzie and Saskatchewan put into the Mexican holiday resort.

On arrival in the Caribbean, the navy ships will join east coast detachments and U.S. and British forces for a two-month anti-submarine warfare exercise.

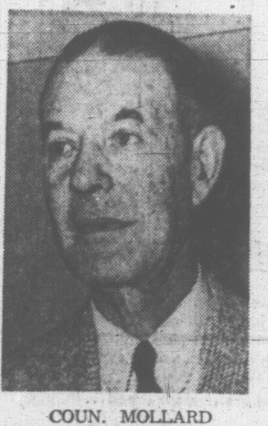
Ban Must Stay To Guard Water

Saanich Areas Fret About Elk Lake Use



COUN. MOLLARD
. . . every precaution

The Metro Health Board has recommended against relaxing a swimming and boating ban at the northwest corner of Elk Lake.

The recommendation came after Central Saanich expressed concern about requests made to the Victoria-Saanich Beach and Parks Committee for permission to swim and boat in the area.

"A population of about 10,000 on the north end of the peninsula depend on the Elk Lake water supply," Coun. Charles Mollard, chairman of the Central Saanich water board, said.

The board wanted to make sure every precaution is being taken to safeguard the water from pollution, he said.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer, said Saanich has two bylaws prohibiting boating and swimming in the area.

They should not be relaxed, he said, because the intake on the westerly part of the lake is a source of water for Central Saanich, North Saanich, the B.C. Government Ferries and Sidney.

The Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee sounded out the health board on the feasibility of permitting swimming near the water intake.

W. H. Warren, parks administrator, noted that at one time there was a popular swimming spot about 1,000 feet from the intake.

ROWING CLUB

The University of Victoria has applied for a lease in the area for a University Rowing Club.

The Elk Lake Water Skiing Association also sought permission to build a wharf on the northwest corner.

Dr. Whitbread recommended that the applications for leases be refused and the rowing club's lease be withdrawn.

NO SOULS, SAYS CLERIC

Christian Burial 'Wrong for Pets'

Pets should be buried decently and respectfully but without religious ceremony, the president of Victoria Council of Churches said today.

Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons was commenting on a report from Toronto that a dog had been given a Christian burial with prayers offered by a church minister.

"There is no justification for this," Dr. Parsons said, "and it tends to ridicule the function of the church. I see nothing wrong with pets' cemeteries if people want them, but any kind of religious observance is out of place.

"NO BASIS"

"We have no reason for believing that animals have souls. Many pet owners like to think they have, but there is no scriptural basis for such a belief.

"The Bible makes it clear that man has a soul which survives the death of the human body. There is no suggestion that animals live after death."

Dr. Parsons said there is a tendency for people to believe that dogs have souls because of their faithful companionship and devotion to human beings.

"Everyone is entitled to their own beliefs. I believe the dog belongs to another classification of being altogether.

"As human beings we have a responsibility to be kind to animals and bury them decently. But any kind of religious Christian burial is out of place."

IF A BUTTERFLY EMERGES in January, can spring be far away, is a question Mrs. B. Norwood, 536 Whiteside Street, is asking herself today. It's velvety grown with yellow wing edges and blue spots. She found the insect in the basement of her home. Entomologists say it is unusual for a butterfly to be on the wing in winter, but this month's mild weather probably put her timing mechanism out by three months. (Times photo.)

Saanich Rejects Mount Tolmie Apartment Bid

A proposal to allow an apartment development in the Mount Tolmie area was rejected Tuesday night by Saanich council.

Council turned down an application to rezone the northeast corner of Richmond and Mayfair to medium density apartment use. This would have permitted a town house development on the site.

The proposal was rejected after residents of the surrounding area objected that the district should remain a single-family unit area.

BARE BOTTOM BELT MAY BE ABOLISHED

LONDON (AP)—Abolition of spanking was urged today in a massive study of England's primary schools commissioned by the government.

British public and private elementary school teachers may use corporal punishment. In England, the cane—a flexible wooden switch—usually is used across the hand, although in extreme caes teachers apply it across a pupil's bare bottom.

Evidence presented to the committee indicated that 80 to 90 per cent of England's teachers want to keep the right to cane a child, mostly as a final sanction after other methods of punishment fail. But psychologists told the committee that they feel the cane has more disadvantages than advantages.

U.S., RUSSIA

Ban on N-Arms Spread Agreed

LONDON — United States and Soviet negotiators have agreed on a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons, but their governments must still approve it, qualified diplomats said Tuesday night.

The sources said the breakthrough in the disarmament stalemate was achieved last month following a series of secret exchanges in New York and Geneva.

Details of the agreement were not disclosed, but informants said the Russians made at least one important change in their position by accepting the idea of West German participation in nuclear planning arrangements set up by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last month.

Leaders of NATO nations established a seven-nation high command that will manage the political and strategic use of the nuclear weapons available to the alliance. The plan gives West Germany and smaller Allied powers a share in the planning, but leaves the United States the right to veto any proposal by its partners for use of U.S. nuclear weapons.

The arrangement is designed to satisfy West German demands for a say in nuclear policy and also to meet Russian opposition to giving Bonn control of nuclear weapons, which the Soviet Union maintained was the chief bar to agreements on a non-proliferation treaty.

MESSAGE FROM LBJ

Meanwhile, Llewellyn Thompson, the new U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, arrived in Moscow today and said he was carrying a message from President Johnson to the Russian government. He refused to disclose the contents.

Johnson in his state of the union message Tuesday night called for better ties with the Kremlin, and on his arrival Thompson expressed optimism that U.S.-Soviet relations would improve.

HOUSE COMMITTEE

Banks Suffer Sharp Criticism

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Bankers in collusion? Exercising "fantastic power"?

They were so accused Tuesday in formal testimony before a committee of the House of Commons, by a non-conforming financial analyst on the one hand and by a young promoter on the other.

R. G. D. Lafferty of Montreal said interlocking directorates extend the influence of banks into big trust companies, into securities trading and into the biggest underwriting organizations in Canada.

Business initiative is stifled, competition goes by the board and the press holds back news unfavorable to the banking "cartel" for fear of reprisals, he said.

Terry-Howes of Toronto, self-styled entrepreneur-general who freely admitted a background of curious business enterprises, said bankers are too powerful.

They ignored shareholders, published meaningless financial statements, and ran their institutions with "nowhere near" the efficiency of American banks.

It was bop-the-banks day for the committee, which was beginning another wave of hearings on government proposals for revision of the Bank Act.

Mr. Lafferty and Mr. Howes were witnesses No. 2 and 3. They followed the morning appearance of Joseph Pope, Toronto investment dealer who said the banks should offer better services for foreign exchange trading.

They would get the necessary experience only if Toronto or Montreal were opened up as an international money market. This in turn depended on banishing an "absurd" and "wretched" Bank Act restriction against establishment of branches of foreign banks in Canada.

The committee met Mr. Howes first with amusement and then with some seriousness. The portly witness accused Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) of smearing him in bringing up his business interests.

He acknowledged that the U.S. post office had issued fraud orders in 1965 and 1966 against his use of the mails to distribute a so-called "air force diet".

He had indeed advertised bargain prices for lease of square-mile tracts of wildlife domain in Ontario, he said.

NO BEEF ON ARTICLE

He had no complaint against an article in a national magazine that described other "money - coining enterprises".

"Okay," he said at last "I'm a thief, a crook, a nogoodnick from away back.

"Now that we're through with this, can we discuss my proposals?"

The 17 proposals were to change the Bank Act to improve corporate disclosure by the banks, change voting and proxy practices and accord the federal authority various devices of control.

He outlined the history of a private war with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, in which he holds one share. He had waged proxy fights to find out whether shareholders have

Crippled Weathership Limping Towards Port

Fighting Winds, Heavy Seas

The crippled weathership Stonetown was battling heavy seas today in an emergency dash to Victoria.

The department of transport vessel was forced to vacate Station "Papa" 900 miles west of here after a fault developed in her power steering mechanism.

Gale-force winds and heavy swells prevented repairs being carried out on the spot.

"Repairs would have meant shutting everything down," said district marine agent Larry Slaught.

"In present weather conditions it would have been too dangerous."

Ship's master, Capt. F. Gordon Nesbit radioed he was having trouble with the steering early this morning.

Although the ship can be steered by hand, it would have been virtually impossible to keep the former navy frigate on station under present conditions.

This is only the second time Station Papa has been vacated since it was first manned on a round-the-clock basis in 1950.

On the last occasion, three years ago, the Stonetown went to the aid of a stricken freighter.

With Stonetown's sister ship St. Catharines, undergoing refit at Victoria Machinery Depot, it will be impossible to man the station before next Tuesday. She will leave Sunday if ready.

CUTTING a birthday cake to open day-long celebrations of the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald is Kingston Mayor Robert Fray. Prime Minister Pearson and other dignitaries were on hand for the festivities.

Road to Greater Beauty Paved With Weight Charts

Women, has the recent party round left you with an 'extra tire' and the knowledge that extra pounds are sabotaging your chances of presenting your very best? If this is your problem, Josephine Lowman, who contributes a daily column to our women's pages, is coming to your rescue. Today on Page 24 Miss Lowman writes the third of eight columns outlining the format of her eight-week Beauty Improvement Plan which includes slimming exercises, height and weight charts and reducing menus for 15 days to help Times readers start the centennial year with the confidence that comes with good health, good looks and a perfect figure.

Pearson Leads Nation In Sir John Tribute

KINGSTON (CP) — A Liberal prime minister led Canadians in a tribute today to Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister and the man who earned the title Father of Confederation.

Prime Minister Pearson shared in celebrations marking the 152nd birthday anniversary of Sir John, a Conservative who was prime minister from 1867 to 1873 and from 1878 to 1891.

Kingston, where Sir John first entered politics as an alderman, and which he continued to represent in Parliament, is the focal point of the birthday observance.

Mr. Pearson joined in a day-long program of speeches, band music, civic dinners, choir singing and midnight dancing in costumes popular 100 years ago.

A giant birthday cake was cut this morning in Market Square, followed by a memorial service at Royal Military College and a trumpet fanfare by the Royal Canadian School of Signals Band.

School children have the afternoon off, but businesses remained open. A display on the life of Sir John was open all day at the Macdonald public school.

MORE LOSS, COST, AGONY

Johnson Asks For Tax Hike To Fight War

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has asked Congress to increase taxes by 6 cents on each tax dollar to help pay for the Vietnam war in which he says the United States faces "more cost, more loss, and more agony".

Congressional reaction to a tax boost is cool. Republicans and many majority Democrats said a domestic budget cut, not a tax boost, is the way to finance the costly Vietnam war.

The president proposed the tax increase in his State of the Union address Tuesday night, a 70-minute speech to the Congress in which he outlined his legislative program for the forthcoming year. It was his fourth State of the Union address and his most sombre.

The president also proposed higher social security benefits, which will mean higher costs to both the employer and employee, but he didn't say how much the costs would be.

He called for reorganization of some of the machinery to run his Great Society program, renewed his appeal for more bridge-building to the Communist nations of Europe and asserted once more that "we will stand firm in Vietnam."

PROPOSES SURCHARGE

Johnson proposed a six-per-cent surcharge on corporate and most personal income taxes to last two years or longer unless war costs drop.

Married couples with two children and incomes up to $5,000 yearly would be exempt, as would single persons with incomes up to $1,900 and childless couples earning up to $2,000.

The president indicated he wants the increase effective next July 1. He said the plan will raise about $4,500,000,000 in its first year.

His proposal would cost an extra six cents for each dollar paid in income taxes. As an example, a person who now pays $1,000 a year would pay $60 more.

The president told the Congress in his speech, televised live in the U.S. and Canada:

"We shall continue on a sensible course of fiscal and budgetary policy that will keep our economy growing without new inflationary strains; finance the needs of our men in Vietnam and the progress of our people at home; support a significant improvement in our export surplus, and press forward toward easier credit and lower interest rates."

PLANS VIETNAM REPORT

He said he plans to send a detailed report to Congress on the situation in Southeast Asia, particularly in Vietnam.

"I wish I could report to you that the conflict is almost over. This I cannot do. We face more cost, more loss, and more agony. For the end is not yet. I cannot promise you that it will come this year—or come next year."

The president said he has no intention of scuttling his domestic programs. But he conceded there have been "setbacks and mistakes" that must be corrected. Not once did he use his usual label of Great Society.

He won his greatest applause with a proposal to raise social security payments by 20 per cent, $4,100,000,000 in the year beginning July 1, 1968. This would come three months before the presidential election in which he is expected to be a candidate.

WANTS BENEFITS RAISED

Johnson proposed that minimum benefits be raised to $70 from $44 a month and that anyone with 25 years of coverage get at least $100 monthly. He suggested raising the limit on income retired workers can

Mao's Backers Call on Army

Times News Services

HONG KONG — The central committee of the Chinese Communist party called today on the army and the people to beat back the forces opposing Mao Tse-tung in China's titantic power struggle.

The appeal was broadcast by the New China News Agency and was addressed particularly to pro-Mao elements in Shanghai.

It came shortly after reports from China said Mao's followers were wrestling control of the city of 10 million persons from his opponents in a move hinting at mass arrests.

First appearances were that Mao had won a major victory in his struggle with the forces led by President Liu Shao-Chi and Communist party secretary general Teng Hsiao-Ping, if he had indeed won support of the central committee.

The message was signed by the central committee, the state council, the military commission

'Little Doubt' About Skeleton

SECHELT (CP) — Dr. R. A. Swan, Sechelt coroner, says a medical examination has failed to absolutely identify a skeleton found near Port Mellon last week.

Dr. Swan said, however, there appears to be little doubt the skeleton is that of Ricky Latham, who was thought to have drowned in June, 1965.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Two surgeons at the Medical College of Virginia have successfully transplanted hearts from dog cadavers to dogs, the surgeons said today.

IT'S A WORLD OF PINK IN A CURRY KIND OF A WAY

DARLINGTON, England (AP)—Miss X is 19, pretty, an efficient secretary, and everything she touched turned pink.

She touched her white blouse and left pink patches. There was pink on her desk, pink on her writing pad and pink on the letters she typed for the boss.

Her fiance's collar turned pink, too.

For two days Miss X put up with her pink problem at the Chrysler-Cummings works in this north England town. Then she went to see Dr. Valentine Crowley, the factory physician.

After laboratory tests, Dr. Crowley came up with the answer Tuesday. It was all caused by a curry dinner.

REACTED TO CURRY

"No wonder the poor girl was so upset," the doctor said.

"A spice called turmeric in the curry was the trouble. Her system reacted against it and sent something like a pink dye through her pores.

"I have never known a case like it. The girl didn't look pink, quite normal in fact, but everything she touched went that color."

Turmeric is used extensively as a dye in Asia, where it is cultivated.

Miss X's trouble is clearing up, and on Dr. Crowley's advice she is going to skip curry in future.

CP-MACDONALD PACT BLASTED

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—A concession made by Sir John A. Macdonald to the CPR in 1880 came under debate Tuesday in the Commons.

To entice the railway into building a line to link the country from coast to coast, Canada's first prime minister agreed to exempt it from municipal taxes.

The tax exemption, now a statute of Parliament and a part of the constitutions of Saskatchewan and Alberta, came under scathing attack from David Lewis (NDP — York South) as the Commons continued to make progress on a government bill outlining a new national transportation policy.

The House takes a one-day break from the transport bill today to debate the first stage of a bill to insure the deposits of banks and qualifying trusts and loan companies.

And since today is Sir John A. Macdonald Day, there were plenty of tributes to the Conservative who headed the first Canadian government.

Tuesday, however, Macdonald's commitment to the CPR 97 years ago was questioned not only by Mr. Lewis but by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Good or bad, the government was bound by the Macdonald-CPR pact, said Mr. Pickersgill.

"With all the wisdom I now have, if I had been Sir John Macdonald, I do not believe I would have made this particular type of contract with the Canadian Pacific," said Mr. Pickersgill.

Mr. Lewis, the NDP's deputy leader, said times have changed since Macdonald's government signed the pact with the CPR.

"If the exemption was ever justified—and my study of the matter has never persuaded me that even originally it was justified—it certainly has not been so for many years," the labor lawyer said.

The matter cropped up as both Conservative and NDP members sought assurances

MARKET SUMMARIES

Sharp Drop Recovered

The Dow Jones industrial average was down 2.12 at noon whereas at the end of the first half hour it was off 11.47.

AT NEW YORK advances extended to more than eight points for Xerox, five fore Polaroid and Texas Gulf Sulphur and four for Ling-Temco-Vought.

Among Canadians traded, International Nickel was up ⅞ and Dome Mines ⅛. Canadian Pacific fell ½, Distillers Seagrams ⅝ and Granby Mining ¾.

AT TORONTO Bank of Nova Scotia advanced 1½ to 66¼, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines 1⅜ to 27⅜ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Moore Corp., 1 each to 59¼ and 91.

AT MONTREAL stocks reversed direction and edged higher today after dropping lower in early morning trading.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines was up 1½ points to 27¼ and Noranda Mines ¾ to 53¼. Inco firmed ⅝ to 92½.

Home Oil A was up ⅝ to 25⅝ and Interprovincial Pipe Line ½ to 89½.

B.C., Seattle Settle Land Deal

The compensation formula worked out in the Columbia River project has been used to set the price for a 99-year agreement allowing Seattle city to flood 6,350 acres near Manning Park, Resources Minister Ray Williston said today.

A rental of $34,566 annually in U.S. currency—along with stumpage royalties and land taxes—probably will bring the B.C. government some $3.7 million over the 99 years for the 5,710 acres it owns in the flood area.

The land will be flooded when Seattle raises its Ross Dam on the Skagit River to increase the reservoir for generating electricity.

As a hedge against inflation during the long life of the agrement, B.C. has the option of taking 9.2 kilowatts of power instead of money as the rental payment on one year's notice.

BOUNDARY DELIVERY

The electricity would be sold at the rate of 3.75 mills per kilowatt hour and would have to be delivered free to the B.C.-Washington boundary.

Flooding of the Skagit to build the Ross dam was approved under an international agreement in 1942 but no long-term agreement on price has been worked out until now.

After the dam was built, B.C. passed the Skagit Valley Lands Act in 1947 permitting a year-to-year arrangement.

A payment of $500 land rental was made by Seattle for the approximately 600 acres of B.C. land that has been flooded by the dam at high water periods each year since then.

Mr. Williston said Seattle has paid a $5,000 annual standby payment to compensate the province for reserving the flood area and allowing it to clear the land pending agreement on a long-term lease.

"We used the formulation determined in the Columbia River negotiations to set the terms here," he said. The price is based on computation of the value of the extra generating power created by enlargement of the reservoir area in B.C.

Mr. Willsiton said Seattle is in the process of signing the agrement but he did not know when the dam would be raised.

Machinists To Hold Up Payments

Victoria local No. 3 of the Machinists' Union has decided to withhold future payments to the B.C. Federation of Labour until E. P. O'Neal resigns from the federation's executive board.

The resolution was passed unanimously Monday night by the members of the union local.

O'Neal has admitted involvement in the Nov. 5 bugging of hotel rooms occupied by members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, a rival union to O'Neal's Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers Union.

The bugging incident is the subject of a public inquiry by Judge R. A. Sargent.

Craigmont Profits Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. D. Simpson, president of Craigmont Mines Ltd., has told a shareholders meeting the company's earnings would be subject to income taxes in the fiscal year ending in 1967.

Mr. Simpson said Craigmont, which operates a copper producer near Merritt, 110 miles northeast of Vancouver, had been exempt for the normal three-year tax-free period and exempt another two years because of deduction of pre-production expenses and other allowances.

Despite being in operation for only 6½ months of 1966 because of a strike, Craigmont reported profits of $7,627,627 or $1.50 per share, compared with $2,256,248 or 44 cents per share in the

HIGH LABOR COSTS BLAMED

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Tuesday said rising labor costs were the main reason for a special warrant adding $4 million to his $52 million appropriation for building roads, bridges and ferries.

The warrant was passed by the cabinet Tuesday.

He said it was needed for projects already committed. There were some extra contracts called but "when the labor boys went after fantastic increases everything went up."

New Companies Mark Up Record

New companies registered in B.C. last year set a new record. Attorney-General Robert Bonner gave official figures Tuesday—a total 4,746 incorporations in 1966 compared with 4,646 in 1965, the previous record.

There were 372 extra-provincial companies against 344 in 1965, and 263 societies compared with 259 the previous year.

That makes for 5,381 new incorporations in the province, or 132 more than in 1965.

B.C. PARTY SPLIT OVER LEADERSHIP

Tories Face Backroom 'Crunch'

By JOHN MIKA

Bubbling internal strife over the leadership question in the British Columbia Conservative Party may boil over at an annual meeting this spring to scald the provincial wing just as it did the federal party barely two months ago.

A collision over whether the recently-set March 3, 4 and 5 annual meeting in Vancouver also will double as a leadership convention appeared on the horizon today.

The backroom 'crunch' will come Feb. 5 when the provincial party executive of more than a score of officers meets again to resolve the controversy and confusion in the wake of its meeting last Saturday.

That meeting set the date for the normal annual meeting but produced considerable confusion when party president Stuart Fleming of Vernon denied an initial report that it was called to choose a new president and also a leader to fill the vacancy left when Davie Fulton re-entered federal politics in 1965.

SETTLE DISPUTE

Russel Simpson, Sidney, Vancouver Island regional vice-president of the party, told The Times he has demanded an executive meeting "before the end of this month" to settle the dispute.

He said a significant section of party officials feel they cannot continue any longer without a leader and "we certainly intend that there is a leadership election at the March meeting."

He denied reports that he and B.C. Tory MPs George Chatterton and David Pugh boycotted Saturday's executive session. Mr. Simpson said the MPs had to be in Ottawa for Monday's reopening of Parliament and he had declared publicly a year ago before accepting the vice-presidency that he could attend meetings any day except Saturdays due to his work.

'FIRST THINGS'

He said the "first thing that must be done at the next executive meeting is to appoint a nominating committee to present a slate of leadership candidates to a leadership convention."

Mr. Fleming, in a telephone interviews, said he has not seen Mr. Simpson's demand yet but already has called an executive meeting for Feb. 5, a Sunday, "specifically to accommodate Mr. Simpson's inability to come on a Saturday."

He said this executive meeting will hammer out "a recommendation to the annual meeting with respect to when a leadership convention might be held — if there are any potential candidates in sight."

RULES DIFFERENT

Mr. Fleming said the annual meeting could not double as a leadership convention because the rules for delegations are different in the two cases. He said many more delegates are permitted each group for a leadership convention than for an annual meeting.

Because a leadership convention would be large, it should be scheduled for late summer or fall rather than spring when weather conditions can keep more distant delegates away.

But Mr. Fleming was insistent that no leadership convention should be called unless potential candidates emerged in advance.

"I don't want to discourage any leadership material coming forward but until there are some potential candidates, there is no point to calling a convention," he said.

He also insisted that the executive could not form a nominating committee because this would identify the officers with particular candidates and make it difficult for the party should some other candidate win the post.

OUTSIDE EXECUTIVE

"I've been studying what has been done in other provinces when calling a leadership convention after there has been a vacancy for some time and I've found that it's standard procedure to not put up a nominating committee," he said.

"The names (of candidates) in most cases are put up by groups outside of the executive officers so the officers are in no way committed to any one of the candidates."

Only thing that both Mr. Simpson and Mr. Fleming agreed about last Saturday's meeting was that it did not discuss the leadership question.

"I don't know — I haven't a clue," Mr. Fleming said when asked how the erroneous report was made from the closed meeting.

Mr. Simpson said it was due to "faulty communications" and an overzealous public relations adviser who drafted the news release "and felt it needed to be added a bit to."

COMPUTERS MAY RUN CITY TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Victoria city council is investigating the possibility of traffic lights controlled by computer.

City engineer James Garnett has informed officials the cost of a computerized system would be $58,000, of which $46,876 would be spent on equipment.

Known as a "Selectrol" system the computer control would provide an electronic means of superimposing traffic light sequences over the major traffic control areas in the city.

The system would adjust the timing of traffic signals according to the amount of traffic at given times during the day.

It would also give firemen and policemen greater control over traffic lights during emergency runs by enabling them to pre-empt lights at key intersections.

In his report to the public works committee Mr. Garnett said once installed the system could be readily computerized and eventually "provide a sophisticated method of traffic control which we will wish to adopt in connection with adjoining municipalities in the future."

RESIDENTS BEAT HYDRO

Saanich Tosses Out Service Centre Bid

Council bowed before the pressure of 150 persons who crowded the council chamber to protest the rezoning.

The rezoning would have cleared the way for consolidation of a site at Tillicum and Trans-Canada Highway to be used for construction of a long-delayed technical vocational centre in this area.

ALTERNATIVE WANTED

B.C. Hydro owns part of the property at Tillicum and Trans-Canada and will not give it up unless it finds an alternative site for its sub-station.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said council had a difficult decision to make. He promised that municipal officials will try and find a site for Hydro south of Royal Oak and west of Patricia Bay Highway.

Coun. Edith Gunning said council faced an awkward conflict of interests — the need for the vocational school and the need for good community planning.

OBLIGATION

Bruce Hutchison, editorial director of the Vancouver Sun, who lives on nearby Rogers Ave., argued that council had a moral obligation to protect residents who live near the proposed sub-station site.

He said when these persons moved there they chose the location because it was residential or farm land. Council had an obligation to keep it that way, he said.

"The democratic function (of council) is to protect small and powerless people. We have no power, only a claim on your judgment."

A department of public works planner said the sub-station would have been well screened from surrounding homes, had little traffic, and would have included a park area.

NEW SCHOOL PURSE STILL CLOSED

The provincial government is continuing to hold back approval on new school construction.

Education Minister L. R. Peterson has told Sooke school board that urgently needed new schools will only be approved when the money market becomes easier.

Sooke school board had sought clarification of the situation from Mr. Peterson following the recent approval of a $2,165,000 building referendum for the district.

Mr. Peterson suggested the board ask only for approval of the most urgent new construction, adding "it is not a question of the government refusing to provide money for this project."

Folksy Charm Displayed By UN Envoy

NEW YORK (AP)—Nikolai T. Fedorenko, handsome chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, turned on folksy charm Tuesday night as he taped a television program for U.S. viewers.

Fedorenko, usually seen on TV in grim UN debate with envoys from the West, bubbled with mirth and good humor during his 35-minute appearance on the Merv Griffin variety show to be telecast tonight.

During the program, which is syndicated from coast to coast by the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., the tall, well-tailored diplomat swapped jokes with Griffin and showed pictures of his wife, three daughters and son-in-law.

Fedorenko's appearance on such a program apparently was without precedent. The closest thing to it in memory was premier Nikita Khrushchev's TV interview by David Susskind during the 1960 UN General Assembly.

He said the Soviet Union favored seating China in the United Nations, but could not support "the program of the Peking leadership."

The message was sent to the pro-Mao elements in Shanghai who apparently have been able to keep the city under their control despite paralyzing strikes and demonstrations by thousands of workers opposing Mao and his Red Guards.

It told the Maoists they had "seen through and exposed in time the schemes" of reactionary elements and "have launched forceful counter-offensives."

If it was not a great victory for Mao it was at least a great propaganda coup.

Only this week informed sources in London said Mao had lost the support of many members of the central committee.

But the tide appeared to turn Sunday when Premier Chou En-lai entered the dispute publicly for the first time and appealed for moderation.

Big posters went up in Peking streets today urging demonstrating workers to go back to their jobs.

But other new posters demanded "drag out capitalist elements in the army," and singled out vice-premier and former Marshal Ho Lung as a main target.

Today's posters said "Ho Lung is a time bomb at the side of Mao Tse-tung," and "Ho Lung must be removed from the party central committee."

Waterworks Plan Approved

Saanich public works committee has approved a $170,000 plan for improving and extending the waterworks system.

The proposed expenditure involves $68,000 for replacement of two-inch mains, $55,500 for other main replacements, $23,500 for new mains, and $23,000 for other construction.

NEW HOLIDAY COMING UP

EDMONTON (CP) — State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday a new national holiday will be established during Canada's centennial year.

It would not be Jan. 11, Sir John A. Macdonald's birthday, because that would be too close to Christmas and New Year's, Miss LaMarsh said. Tribute had already been paid to Canada's first prime minister by declaring Jan. 11 "Sir John A. Macdonald Day."

Miss LaMarsh said the new holiday would have both historical and centennial significance, but gave no further details.

DRINK OF VITAMIN C USELESS FOR COLDS

LONDON (Reuters)—Vitamin C doesn't work in fighting the common cold, government research doctors said today.

People sniffling and sneezing can forget about hot lemon drinks and other fruit juices containing vitamin C, according to tests made by Britain's common cold research centre.

What does work?. Unit director David Tyrell said: "The best thing is to have a hot bath, take aspirin, go to bed and keep warm."

Starving Horse Case Won by Mrs. Kennedy

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy has won dismissal of a $30,000 damage suit involving a starving horse that later died.

The wife of the New York senator said she was "relieved and delighted" when the jury ruled in her favor Tuesday in Fairfax County circuit court.

The case resulted from an incident in October, 1963, when Mrs. Kennedy came upon a "horse in distress" in what she said was a rotting chicken coop. She ordered her groom to take in the emaciated, starving horse and get it proper attention. The horse died five days later.

"Maybe she had the best intentions," horseowner Zemo's lawyer, Martin Morris, told the jury. "But what she did was wrong, without respect to property rights."

Mrs. Kennedy's lawyers argued that if the jury ruled against her, people would be "afraid to get involved" in coming to the aid of man or beast in distress for fear of legal retaliation.

Protest Change

A similarity in names will prevent Saanich from naming a street in honor of a pioneer resident who died last week.

Mrs. E. E. Cunningham sug- or Wellsview Road be re-named gested that either Wells Road after her father, John L. Pinder, who died last week at the age of 99.

But the fire department objected that a street named Pinder Place could be easily mistaken for Timber Place, several miles away in Cordova Bay. Public works committee rejected the proposal.

WHILE YOUNGSTERS RAISE A FUSS

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The unofficial Company of Old Canadians is, without fanfare, lending a welcomed hand in underdeveloped countries, especially in Africa.

Officials of the external aid office said in interviews Tueday that Canada has been sending teachers and advisers overseas since 1950 without a single incident to raise questions in the Commons.

About 3,000 Canadians, a few older than 70 years, have served in underdeveloped countries since the foreign aid program began 17 years ago. Some 800 now are abroad.

The official Company of Young Canadians has 66 workers in the field in Canada. Private actions by a few of its members brought on Commons questions Monday.

STAY HOME

Two years ago, Prime Minister Pearson said the Company of Young Canadians would have between 1,000 and 2,000 members in the field at home and overseas within two years. There now is no intention of sending Young Canadians abroad.

Officials said they are on the lookout for experienced, willing over-65s who have retired in Canada and are looking for something useful to do.

The number of applications from over-65s has risen lately, and one official said: "We could place more of them overseas if we had more funds."

He added that older persons have a great advantage in having lived through the depression of the 1930s. They knew how to do without, or to make do with very little.

For instance, an elderly Canadian science teacher who had taught on the Prairies in the 1930s and was serving abroad, went to a town dump to find enough old cans, pipes and the like to begin a rudimentary course in physics.

SPEAKS URDU

Theo Lamontagne of Quebec City, who is 71, has been working in the agriculture and water-power fields in Pakistan for nearly six years. He has learned to speak Urdu.

W. R. Carroll of Toronto, a retired vice-president of a big packing firm, has set up marketing boards in the West Indies.

Dr. W. F. Hanna, 72, and Dr. R. F. Peterson, 69, both of Winnipeg, are developing disease-resistant wheat in Kenya.

Clifford Harvison, who retired as RCMP Commissioner four years ago, has been advising on police matters in Trinidad.

"These kind of people are worth their weight in gold," said Ian A. Hodson, chief of the section which looks after placement of advisers.

A retired scientist here recently went abroad to set up research facilities for a certain country after being warned about the office politics he would encounter.

His reply: "I survived the office politics of the federal civil service for 40 years and I can survive there."

Quebec MP Opposes Royal Anthem Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Allard (Ind. — Sherbrooke) indicated in the Commons Tuesday that he will oppose a government resolution to proclaim God Save the Queen the royal anthem of Canada.

The same resolution, expected to be referred soon to a special Commons - Senate committee, would recognize O Canada as the national anthem.

Mr. Allard asked the government to split its resolution and allow separate votes on O Canada and God Save the Queen. He said this would give MPs more freedom of expression.

Prime Minister Pearson replied that it would be improper for him to say how Commons votes would be taken. He noted that no vote will be taken until the special committee makes its recommendations.

A motion to set up the anthem committee is expected to come up for debate in the Commons today.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette also has said his group will fight the royal anthem proposal.
